Canucks Trade Pair For Three Rangers

VANCOUVER — The Vancouver Canucks today completed a major trade with the New York Rangers. A minor player swap with the St. Louis Blues may also be announced later in the day.

Canucks have traded defenceman Garry Doak and forward Jim Wiste to New York for three players — forward Dave Balon, who scored 36 goals last year for New York, veteran Ron Stewart and Wayne Connelly who, until Monday, was a member of the St Louis team.

Connelly, Jim Lorentz, and rookie Gene Carr of Nanaimo were traded by St. Louis to New York Monday for left wing Jack Egers, defenseman Andre Dupont, right wing Mike Murphy, and a player to be named later.

Key man in that deal from New York's standpoint was Carr, a 20-year-old, who was the Blues' No. 1 junior amateur draft choice last summer.

Carr had 38 goals and 104 points for Flin Flon Bombers; and has scored three goals and two assists in 14 games this year with the Blues.

Balon, 33, is the key man in Vancouver's trade with the Rangers.

He had 60 points last year, is a 12-year NHL veteran, and in the past two years has scored 33 and 36 goals. He has four goals this season.

Stewart, 39, has been in the NHL since breaking in with Toronto in 1952-53.

For the past four years he has been with New York where he was used primarily as a penalty killer. He has played in 1,265 NHL games with Toronto, Boston, St. Louis and New York. Stewart has 271 NHL regular season goals plus 12 from playoff action.

Wiste, 25, is a centre who started with the Canucks last season but ended up in Seattle where he had 11 goals and 13 assists in 29 games.

Connelly, a right winger, broke into the NHL first with Montreal in the 1960-61 season, but he didn't become a regular until 1966-67 with Boston after spending the intervening years mostly in the Western Hockey League.

He had 13 goals with Detroit and St. Louis last season. His best NHL season was in 1967-58 when he tallied 35 goals and had 21 assists for 56 points.

SCORING CHAMP

Lorenz is a 24-year-old centre who won the Central Hockey League scoring championship with 33 goals and 68 points for 101 points in 1968-69 with Oklahoma City. He was also voted the most valuable player award that year. He scored 19 goals and had 21 assists for St. Louis last season.

Doak was drafted from Boston by Vancouver in the expansion draft June 10, 1970, and was considered their first pick at that time.

He has been injured most of this season, and only recently rejoined the club. He played 77 games for the Canucks last year, and originally broke in to the NHL in 1965-66 with Detroit.

WAYNE CONNELLY
. . . joins Canucks

The expected deal between Vancouver and St. Louis has Fran Huck becoming Canuck property and Jim Hargreaves going to the Blues.

Huck, a centre, was a star of Canada's national team before turning professional with Montreal in 1969-70. He saw little action with the Canadiens and was traded to St. Louis last season where in 29 games he scored seven goals and had eight assists. He has been playing in Denver this year.

Hargreaves was once considered one of the brightest of the Canucks' list of younger players. But he failed to stick last year, and after seven games was shipped to Rochester of the American League. He is a defenceman, and is 21 years of age.

Egers has two goals in 17 games for the Rangers this year. Dupont has been with Providence of the AHL, and Murphy with Omaha of the Central League.

They All Voted For Bomber Ace

By The Canadian Press

Winnipeg Blue Bombers — led by Don Jonas as the unanimous choice at quarterback — dominate the offensive team chosen by the Football Reports of Canada in their balloting for the 1971 Western Football Conference all-star squad.

In selections announced today, Calgry Stampeders — with middle-linebacker Wayne Harris making it for the 11th consecutive year — got the majority of positions on the defensive team. Harris was one vote short of being a unanimous choice.

Bombers, who had the best offensive record and the second-worst defensive record in the Canadian Football League this year, placed seven men on the offensive team. British Columbia Lions, Saskatchewan Roughriders and the Stampeders won two spots each with Edmonton Eskimos shut out. There was one tie.

Stampeders, with by far the best defensive record in the CFL, won a similar seven spots on the defensive team with Edmonton and Saskatchewan picking up three each and Winnipeg one. B.C. did not place a man and there were two ties.

There were only two other unanimous choices — Jim Evenson, running back for B.C., and Dick Dupuis, defensive halfback with Edmonton.

Jonas, traded by Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Conference to Winnipeg in a pre-season deal, scored four touchdowns himself and passed for 27 others. He kicked 40 converts, 15 field goals and 12 singles for 121 points to lead the country in total scoring.

One of his favorite targets was Jim Thorpe, also traded to Winnipeg by the Argos, who fell one vote short of being unanimous choice as all-star WFC split end. He was 1970 EFC all-star flanker.

DON JONAS

WAYNE HARRIS

To win all-star quarterback recognition, Jonas had to beat Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan, who was last year's unanimous choice, won the job three years in a row and four of the last five years and was chosen Canada's outstanding player in 1970.

Hugh McKinnis of Calgary, unanimous choice at running back last year, got only two votes this time. Reed, who missed last year's list after five successive years on the team, is back. Evenson returns for a fourth consecutive year. Herron and LaRose are newcomers at back and flanker respectively.

Selectors, who had picked the now-retired Ted Urness of Saskatchewan at centre for six consecutive years, couldn't decide between Swift and Bark as a successor.

Bill Frank, for the second year in a row, dominated voting for the tackle spots.

On defence, Helton was back for a second year at tackle and LaGrone, who lost to Greg Pipes of Edmonton last season, returned for the fourth time in five years.

Shaw returns for a sixth appearance in nine years; it's a first time for McLaren but Gasser was an all-star last year.

Among the backs, it was a big debut for Dupuis. Andruski, who had a three-year string snapped last year, is back for the fourth time in five years. Larry Robinson made the all-star list once before — in 1965 — and Bennett is back for a fifth consecutive year. For Starks, it's a first.

OFFENCE

Flanker — Bob LaRose, Winnipeg.
Quarterback — Don Jonas, Winnipeg.
Guards — Jack Abendschan, Saskatchewan, and Bob Luecks, Winnipeg.
Tight End — Herman Harrison, Calgary.

DEFENCE

Middle Linebacker — Wayne Harris, Calgary.
Backs — Dick Dupuis, Edmonton; Frank Andruski, Calgary; Larry Robinson, Calgary; Bruce Bennett, Saskatchewan, and Howard Starks, Calgary.

"Big Deal' . . . 'Bad Deal' For Cougars and Kings

The weekend in review, and if it turned out to be a "big deal" for Victoria Cougars last week (Victoria 5, Swift Current 3), think what must be going on in Los Angeles at the moment. (Boston 11, Los Angeles 2. Wow!

Yes, it was only a few days ago that general manager Eric Bishop explained that he would deal for anybody who would assist the Cougars. But even by then, more than one newcomer was in the lineup, and two morewould be among those invited to play here on Saturday.

One of the parties of the first part was Wayne Bianchin, who has served his apprenticeship on the prairie road trip, and had distinguished himself. The new arrivals were to be Jerry Dudar and Barry Chernos who had been under the protective wing of Rudy Pilous at Brandon.

Bishop didn't explain that coach Fred Hucul would put these three chaps on one line together. How was he to know? But give Hucul some credit. He knew that both lads would be well trained. Pilous is a tough taskmaster and loves those fundamentals.

So Hucul left them together for their joint debut. And, lo, and behold, he came up with an instant hit. The trio got nine points, the Cougars won, and Biship's remarks could be recalled: "We're not going to stand idly by, and get clobbered."

But if the Cougars aren't just any old whistle stop in the west any longer, they still have some proving to do before they have a club that deserves to be called a contender.

A fact of life in their bid for fourth place is that they "have to beat Medicine Hat." That's another Bishop statement, and it makes sense, because the Tigers are in the Cougars' division, and ahead of them at the moment. Will the Cougars succeed? Off just one game, the unanimous opinion is in the affirmative. Big deal? It most certainly was.

'Defence is Knowledge' Disputed

Meanwhile in Los Angeles, the Kings' "big deal" has to be a "bad deal," and it owner Jack Kent Cooke is thinking dark thoughts about somebody, it is possibly general manager Larry Regan. He has come up empty in a bid to make L.A. a power in hockey.

It was Regan who said at the start of the season when the Kings were here: "Defence is knowledge" and that the Kings had secured much experience in the off-season, and this would stand them in good stead.

After all, hadn't the Kings been the highest scoring team in expansion history in 1970-71 and second only to Chicago in their own division in goals scored?

Yes, they had, and the Regan thinking was "if we tighten up the defence, we can't help but improve." Since then many things have happened, not all good for the Kings. They started slowly and since then have been in a slow trot, dead slow. Besides, they made that "big deal." They gave up their best young defenceman, Dale Hoganson, and three others, for Rogatine Vachon, once the pride of Montreal. For Hoganson it was a great chance, though he can't break into the Montreal lineup. For Vachon, it was a brand new shooting gallery, and no hope whatsoever. For Regan it has all been a frightening and a frustrating experience.

Speaking of Being 'Dead Last'

First, the Kings' vaunted "experience" has turned out to be a crew of old men who can't get the job done; second, that high scoring crowd of last year has not improved one iota, and the Kings are dead last as a team in golas scored; and now, the latest: the Kings have dealt off the one player, Dale Hoganson, who had a likely future, and whom centre Ralph Backstrom described here as "potentially an all-star."

What they're saying:

Bob Goldham, color man on the HL TV broadcasts from the east . . ." That Rick Martin certainly is playing well for the Sabres. He should be a shoo-in for the Calder." The Calder Trophy is awarded the NHL's top rookie, Goldham made his observation in the middle of October. The Calder is awarded in April, and there are a couple of fellows around who might argue the point — Ken Dryden, or Jocelyn Guevremont to name just two — even before then.

Meanwhile, it was nice to note that Victorian theme to weekend action in the Coast Soccer League . . . Victories by Gorge Molson and Vic West United point up the fact that now both can be recognized as threats for the championship . . . and perhaps now the fans will react out of a sense of duty . . . Gorge and Vic-West United deserve it . . . theirs is a determination to make this a two-team town and they're doing it . . . Also, Don Duguid apparently has retired as Canadian curling champion (if only temporarily) . . . Danny Fink of Winnipeg was skipping Duguid's old rink of Rod Hunter, Jim Pettapiece and Bryan Wood when they won the CBC championship last week over Hec Gervais . . . and in the football playoffs . . . stay tuned . . . time's up for today. . . .

DOUG PEDEN - EDITOR

Wayne Still Dreams Of Touchdown Glory

Considering the traffic through the centre of the line, Harris' weight is not formidable, but agility and power more than compensate.

When the Stampeders take on Saskatchewan Roughriders Wednesday night in an attempt to wrap up the best-of-three Western Football Conference final in two straight games, Harris says he will have to be at his best.

In his 11 years as a professional he has shown he is seldom bad or even mediocre.

TOP LINEMAN 5 TIMES

Each year he has been named to an all-star team and three times, in 1965, 1966 and 1970, he has been Canada's outstanding lineman.

His name is up for the award again this year.

In the first game of the WFC final, which the Stampeders took from Saskatchewan 30-21, Harris said Roughriders fullback George Reed ran strongly.

But to stop their ground game, the defence also has to keep an eye on Stlas McKinnie and Bobby Thompson; the latter can be devastating if he gets outside on a sweep.

"They can do so many things. We've played them so many times we know what they're going to do, but never how they'll do it," says Harris.

"They execute their plays so well none is easy to stop . . . they make it difficult to adjust. They run a lot of play action passes.

"Lancaster is the key to the offence because he can read the defence so well that he mixes up plays and disguises in such a way that he keeps the defence off balance."

ANKLES BOTHER HIM

In the last couple of years, says Harris, his job has been tougher and compounded a little by injuries to his 33-year-old ankles.

But what really bothered him was revised blocking techniques, aimed specifically at the middle linebacker.

He usually gets double-teamed on running plays with the offensive centre and a tackle coming at him.

One hits him straight on and the other comes in a blind-side angle to knock him out of the play.

The play is effective, he says, and has forced adjustments. But with two men on him it leaves someone else with less to handle.

WANTS TO SCORE

Although Harris has contributed much to Calgary's success in the last few years, there's one other thing he would like to do for the Stampeders—score a touchdown.

"I guess it's always a linebacker's dream.

"The closest I came was in Edmonton a couple years ago when I ran a ball back to the one-yard line then was knocked out of bounds."

HOCKEY TIPS

By Bobby Orr

Big players like Frank Mahovlich of the Canadiens have long skating strides that look graceful and easy—and give great speed.

Others like the Pocket Rocket Richard of Canadians, go for the short, quick strides.

You only have to look at the two players side by side to realize why they skate differently. Richard doesn't have the build for the long stride. He has to compensate for his size by quicker movements.

Everyone's characteristics determine his skating style. But it is better to try and lengthen the stride while young to avoid the choppy motion. It's a lot harder work to take short strides.

In the picture, I am rounding the corner and have just pushed off on my right foot. My back foot is used for this. The harder I push, the faster I skate. This is one sport where the coach can say to go out and really push — and mean it!

Remember to bend your knees slightly when skating. Don't be stiff legged. Otherwise, when someone gives you a stiff body check, you will go down.

And lean into your stride to get more speed. This will force you to push harder off your rear foot.

Chargers Trip Cards On Last-Second Kick

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) Dennis Partee's 45-yard, last-second field goal lifted San Diego Chargers over St. Louis Cardinals 20-17 in their nationally-televised National Football League game Monday night.

The kick that made the Chargers 4-5 in the American Conference West and the Cardinals 3-6 in the National Conference East was Partee's longest of the season.

"I didn't know how far it was," Paree said. "I didn't think about distance or anything — I was determined not to miss this one."

He said he felt his chance was one in three of succeeding from such a distance.

Partee's boot followed a game-tying St. Louis touchdown with 17 seconds left when Cid Edwards plunged for a yard. The Cardinals then attempted an onside kick, but they didn't recover and San Diego, with John Hadl throwing a 16-yard pass to Gary Garrison, got field goal position and stopped the clock with a last time out.

INTERCEPT TWO

The onside kick plus an all-purpose effort by San Diego running back Mike Montgomery in his first NFL start, two interceptions from rookie safety Bryant Salter were factors in San Diego's victory.

Rookie St. Louis coach Bob Hollway said he called the onside kick "to regain possession of the football" and go for winning points. He also hoped the ball would travel to the San Diego 30 or 35 if the Chargers recovered, force them to use their last time out and wind up with a tie.

But Charger rookie Le Thomas fell on the ball at the San Diego 47.

Montgomery, who ran for 98 yards, passed for 23 and caught passes for 77—total offence of 208 yards—was a Charger hero.

After Bobby Howard intercepted a Jim Hart pass to seemingly kill the Cardinals for the night, Montgomery fumbled the ball to Cardinal linebacker Jamie Rivers and St. Losis marched to its tying touchdown.

Salter's second interception led to San Diego's score that brought a 10-10 tie in the fourth quarter.

Romania Is Favored To Top Soccer Group

VIENNA (Reuter) — Romania emerged as the favorite to win Group One in the European soccer championship qualifying competition after beating Czechoslovakia 2-1 in Bucharest.

Czechoslovakia has completed its six-match group program with nine points, two more than Romania which still has to play a home match against Wales on Nov. 24.

Both Czechoslovakia and Romania have the same goal difference so the Romanians need to win only 1-0 against Wales to join Italy, Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union in the quarter-finals.

England, Belgium, Hungary and West Germany appear certain to fill the other four quarter-final places.

Hornets Open Tourney

Soccer Event Starts Thursday

Victoria High Tyees, champions of the Victoria Senior High School Soccer League and playoff titles, and runner-up Mount View Hornets will be among 12 teams participating in the B.C. High School championships scheduled to begin here Thursday.

Joining the Victoria entries from the Island are Nanaimo and Cowichan. Other teams participating in the three-day competition are defending-champion Burnaby North, Eric Hamber, Vancouver Tech, Nakusp, Kitimat, Kamloops, North Delta and Abbotsford.

The teams have been divided among four, three-team leagues for the purpose of round-robin elimination play which begins at 9 a.m. Thursday and continues until noon Friday at three locations — Centennial Stadium, Mt. Douglas High School and Royal Athletic Park.

Semi-finals are slated for Friday afternoon and evening, and Saturday. The final game goes at 8 p.m. Saturday at Athletic Park.

Hornets open play Thursday at 9 a.m. when they meet North Delta at Centennial, while Tyees tackle Vancouver Tech in an 8 p.m. contest at Athletic Park in the last game of the day.

Thursday's draw:

10:30 a.m. — Nanaimo vs. Burnaby North, Centennial; Vancouver Tech vs. Kamloops, Mt. Doug.

1 p.m. — Eric Hamber vs. Kitimat, Centennial; North Delta vs. Nakusp, Mt. Doug.

2:30 p.m. — Burnaby North vs. Abbotsford, Centennial.

Allen, Cunningham Spark Hoop Victory

Wayne Allen scored 21 points and Jim Cunningham added 19 more Monday night as Restoration Services edged Robertson's Men's Wear 79-62 in a Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball game at Colquitz Junior High School.

Robertson's, who were led by John Hart and Alex Brayden with 11 points each, led 38-32 at half time but couldn't contain Cunningham and Allen in the second half. Cunningham scored 13 points while Allen netted 10 after the intermission.

Robin Allen added 13 points for Restoration, which climbed out of the cellar ahead of idle Metropolitans with the victory. Robertson's missed an opportunity to break a three-way first-place deadlock.

'Hot Spot' Found On Mars' Surface

PASADENA, Calif. (Reuter)—Discovery of a mysterious area on Mars where the temperature rises suddenly was made by the Mariner 9 Mars probe Monday.

A scientist at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena said the area lies about 1,300 miles southeast of the towering Nix Olympica formation, one of the most prominent features of Mars.

Dr. Ellis Miner said "we have no idea what this anomaly is." He said that perhaps there was some internal source of heat, but declined to speculate whether it was a volcano.

Miner is a member of the team responsible for Mariner's infra-red radiometer experiment which measures the temperature of the soil. One of its main tasks is to look for "hot spots" which might indicate that sources of heat exist inside Mars as they do on earth.

The scientist was careful not to call the mystery region a "hot spot" until data relayed by the spacecraft's infra-red instrument had been studied further.

12 DEGREES WARMER

Soundings of the region taken as Mariner swooped about 1,000 miles above it during the spacecraft's second orbit Monday showed it to be about 12 degrees warmer than the surrounding area which had an average temperature of 55 degrees.

Miner said maps of the region did not show up any significant feature and it will be 18 or 20 days before the spacecraft crosses the region again.

Mariner is still giving a perfect performance after three days in orbit. Monday it fired a six-second burst of its rocket engine to adjust the orbit.

The aim was to reduce the period or orbit from 12 hours 34 minutes to 11 hours 59 minutes and ensure that the spacecraft maintains optimum position for its twice daily transmission of pictures and data to earth.

TARRED IRISH GIRL WEDS HER SOLDIER

LONDONDERRY (AP) — Marta Doherty, the 18-year-old Roman Catholic girl who was tarred and tied to a lamp post for dating a British soldier, defied the mob rule of Londonderry's Bogside district Monday and married him.

She wore a wig to replace the shoulder-legth auburn locks Bogside women sheared off as a waring to "soldier dollies."

Marta and 19-year-old Pte. Joh Larter, whom she once saved from a mob, were whisked out of Northern Ireland under a cloak of army secrecy for a honeymoon "somewhere in England."

The wedding took place in the well-guarded chapel of an army barracks, not in St. Columba's Church as planned. Troops with machine-guns at the ready ringed the barracks during the ceremony.

. . . REID COMPROMISE DEBATED

were allowed to comment but not to vote.

"The chief magistrate's dedication to free enterprise really gets to me," Pollen snapped. He said the city can build major streets to connect shopping centres but apparently this kind of tax-dollar spending was valid.

REDUDANT

Pollen said Haddock's resolution was "completely redundant."

"We are not interested in buying up half the damn city and turning it into a park," Pollen added, refusing to participate in a show of hands in favor of private development of the Reid site.

Haddock insisted that "we are not going to use taxpayers money" in order to control development of the Reid site.

Savage agreed with Pollen, saying he did not see the necessity of such a motion because it would bind council under future unseen circumstances.

Planning director Geoff Greenhalgh produced two alternative designs for the centre in the form of models, saying any development will have to include a "trade-off" between height and open space.

He told committee the towers could be limited to 10 storeys but this would require less public open space on the site.

In his report to council on the two-tower — now rejected — development, Greenhalgh said the design "does not meet" the criteria laid down by city hall.

One of the reasons for rejecting the two-tower project was that it does not include a pedestrian overpass from Bastion Square to avoid Wharf Street car traffic.

Olafson said at the beginning of the meeting he wanted to point out developer J. A. Reid was incorrect in saying he has been waiting for the city to make up its mind for three years.

PARKLAND

Olafson said Reid "wasn't prepared to go ahead" until the Ocean Cement property nearby was acquired by the city for conversion to parkland. Therefore, Reid has only been kept waiting "possibly around a year."

One of the alternatives put forward by Greenhalgh included buildings of 10, 7, 5, and 1 storeys. Another included two towers smaller than the rejected structures but also a broad one-storey structure which limits the public's use of the waterfront development.

Aldermen expressed interest in the new alternatives but no attempt was made to closely examine them.

SUGGESTIONS

Witt said it "quite obvious to me there are many other suggestions that could be made. I feel it is most unfortunate that these didn't come up earlier."

Pollen said he thought it was "fantastic" and also "incredible" to see the appearance of alternative developments.

Greenhalgh was unable to conform the exact size of the land portion of the Reid property. He said his figures showed the land and water to cover 2.85.

Pollen, however, said figures he received last week from the land commissioner put the land area at 1.4 acres and the water area at 2.3 acres for a total of 3.7 acres.

WATER AREA

He said the size of the buildings must be based on the area and added that "nowhere in Acres Western" economic study upon which Reid based his development was water area included.

"I want to see this defined."

Greenhalgh did not challenge Pollen's figures but said they do not coincide with those used by the planning department or by Reid. He also said that short of "grovelling" around underneath the built-up parking lot on the Reid site it would be a "a matter of conjecture" to decide on an accurate area for the site.

Pollen said an accurate land assessment is "a fundamental" in council's understanding of the development. He said Reid had been extremely co-operative in saying he would produce an economic justification for the size of buildings based on land area, but Reid has never produced the information.

Haddock said he was opposed to the "ugly" two-tower development. He said this has been "a consistent stand" by him all along.

Alderman Tom Christie said he did not think Reid had been "playing ball" with council because he had not introduced alternative developments.

"Reid with all his big newspaper ads has not been playing ball."

several hundred suspected Irish Republican extremists picked up by security forces when the government introduced internment without trial on Aug. 9. Most internees were later transferred to Long Kesh, an army camp south of Belfast.

MP DETAINED

Earlier, police detained a Northern Ireland member of the British Parliament and 21 other men for several hours in connection with the repair of a border road blasted by British troops.

The lawmaker and all but two of the men were later released after questioning by police, the army spokesman said. He said they had been held under the special powers act.

A police spokesman said some of the men were questioned about two heavy trucks used in the filling operation which had earlier been reported stolen in Northern Ireland.

Before the arrests, residents participating in the filling operation forced British troops to withdraw from the area by turning powerful arc lights on them, making them good sniper targets. The residents then celebrated by singing and dancing, a witness said.

"There was even one man selling hot dogs," the witness said. "It was like a country fair."

dochina, Taiwan and Korea. He said Taiwan is an integral part of China and the Chinese people will ever seek to regain it.

And he said China never will take part in superpower-run disarmament talks, saying that this is a subject for all the countries of the world.

Initial reaction to the speech was varied. Some delegations were surprised that the Chinese would come in with such a toughly-worded speech only three weeks after the assembly voted them in to replace the Nationalist Chinese of Taiwan.

But most agreed with one observer who said it was a "tough far-ranging review of known Chinese positions."

The Chinese speech came at the end of an unprecedented five-hour special welcoming meeting of the assembly.

In casting its first vote, China supported a resolution critical of the United States and calling on it to prevent the importing of chrome from white-ruled Rhodesia.

The resolution passed overwhelmingly, 106 to 2, with the U.S. delegation itself abstaining. Only Portugal and South Africa voted against it.

The UN action was in response to a move in the U.S. Congress last week which included provision for the procurement of Rhodesian chrome in a procurement bill. The Congressional vote was in violation of a UN ban on trade with the white-minority government ruling Rhodesia.

Document Confirmed

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp confirmed the general accuracy of a published report that the federal cabinet has decided on the outlines of new programs to control foreign investment in Canada.

Opposition MPs immediately demanded an emergency debate on the ground that Sharp deliberately misled the public and the Commons Monday by denying repeatedly that the cabinet had reached a decision on policy.

Men, Guns Head for U.S.

About 60 members of the 5th (B.C.) Field Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery, will travel to the United States' army base at Fort Lewis, Wash. for artillery exercises Nov. 26 to 28.

The local unit will take four 105 millimetre guns and about 12 vehicles, travelling via Port Angeles.

Most of the artillery unit's live firing exercises are carried out at CFB Shilo, Man. Once a year, however, exercises are held at Fort Lewis.

. . . LEGISLATURE PROTEST URGED

"We know that a political action program is essential but we have not financed it. We know that a massive publicity campaign is needed but we have not financed it.

"We know that unity and structural change are vital but we have been too slow in bringing about these changes and overcoming our differences."

HITS WELFARE STAND

Mr. Johnston also scourged trade unionists who have been "sucked into" joining phoney attacks on "lazy bums on welfare."

"We've been conned into accepting the myth that we all have equal chance to be rich and successful and into ignoring the fact that our economic system is based on exploitation.

Criticism of unions affiliated with the federation — which represents 155,000 organized workers in the province — was contained in convention reports.

The special unemployment committee expressed disappointment at the poor participation by affiliates in its campaign on behalf of the jobless.

"Only a few unions had functioning unemployment committees," its report stated. "Only one labor council actually established such a committee for their unemployed.

"It was not an impressive showing by organized labor in B.C. considering the volume of unemployment."

TACKLE SOCIAL ISSUES

Resolutions endorsed during the day reflected the concern over social issues.

Among them was a resolution calling for increased minimum wages, welfare payments and supplementary old-age pensions with the cost to be met through increased taxation of resource industries.

The resolution adopted on unemployment called for accelerated public spending on such works as hospitals, sewage treatment plants, rapid transit and housing.

It also sought support for a ban on overtime work and for a shorter work week, earlier retirement and longer vacations.

Turning to municipal affairs, delegates unanimously approved a report recommending among other things support for legislation to control land speculation and creation of community health clinics.

EXEMPTION BID LOST FOR CANADA

WASHINGTON (CP) Plans to have Canada exempted from the 10-per-cent import surtax are dead, supporters of an earlier attempt in the current Senate tax debate said today.

A spokesman for Senator James Buckley, Conservative-Republican of New York, said however, that the senator still backs the idea and a new attempt could be made later in the congressional session.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids ... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Duncan Plans December Start On $50,000 Park Project

DUNCAN — City council hopes to start the $50,000 Rotary Park development in December, Mayor Jim Quaife said Monday.

He said the city will utilize the federal-provincial winter aid program where the city can recoup 75 per cent of the actual work costs.

He said the sum is a tentative figure until professional parks and community planner Clive Justice from Vancouver can draw up a plan along with all costs and a breakdown of labor costs so council can determine how much the city will have to raise.

"As soon as he can supply us with those figures and indications are that they will be available by the end of the month, we will make application to the federal-provincial program. It is conceivable that work could start in December and we could work until the end of May," Quaife said.

30 ACRES

Council endorsed in principle last month a resolution to develop Rotary Park, which consists of about 30 acres on the Cowichan River in the McKinstry and Campbell Street area.

Although the Duncan Rotary Club gave the park to the city in 1966, arrangements for the transfer into the city's name could not be completed until 1970.

Park development plans basically include hiking and playing areas as well as a new senior playing field suitable for soccer, rugby and Canadian football; a fish spawning channel; and possibly a swimming pool.

HUNTER KILLED BY FALLING TREE

QUESNEL — Thomas Bruinsma, 33, of 91 Larch, Lake Cowichan, was killed by a falling tree Sunday while on a hunting trip 30 miles northwest of here.

RCMP said he and his companions were chopping down a tree which fell on him.

Bruinsma, a mechanic with McKenzie Logging Co., is survived by his wife Joan and four children, his parents Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Williamson of Cumberland, and six brothers and two sisters.

An inquest has been ordered.

Haywood to Seek Seat on Council

NORTH COWICHAN — Cowichan school board chairman Dave Haywood announced today he will run for an aldermanic seat in North Cowichan in the Dec. 11 elections.

Haywood said he intends to continue as a school trustee until his term expires in 1972, but he will not remain board chairman for another year.

"I think other people on the board are looking forward to being chairman, Haywood said. "However, I would like to remain as a trustee until several critical developments involving the school district are finalized. Should I be elected and the demands of the two offices become too great, I will, of course, review my continuation as school trustee."

There will be three two-year and one one-year aldermanic positions open in December. Ald. George Whittaker has resigned one year short of completion of his term to run against Mayor Gerry Smith.

While Ald. Jim Roome has announced he will not stand for office again, incumbents Margaret Robertson and Tom Burge will run again.

Ron McKinnon, Peter Idema, Henry Bepple and Archie Stevenson will also compete for the council seats.

Course Excluded

A replotting plan for roads in the Ardmore district of North Saanich will not include the golf course.

Fine of $500 For Assault

DUNCAN — Kenneth Gordon Roesch, 19, of Duncan, was fined $500 Monday for assault causing bodily harm.

Provincial court judge Lance Heard said, "This type of conduct has to be stopped" after he heard evidence about the assault of Jeffry Thomas Cumpston on Oct. 9 in a Duncan cafe.

SQUATTERS SLIP AWAY

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — The last of the squatters have moved away from the Long Beach area, part of Pacific Rim National Park.

The squatters, who had lived in makeshift driftwood shacks along the beach, were ordered by park officials to move out of the park by the end of September but about 80 persons were given additional time to move.

Fluoride Vote Set

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — City council decided Monday night to conduct a fluoridation referendum as part of the Dec. 11 municipal elections.

It will be expression of opinion only, and council will not be bound by the outcome. Fluoridation was defeated by Port Alberni voters in a 1958 plebiscite.

ONTARIO, N.S. TARGETS OF ROTATING STRIKES

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Letter carriers in Ontario and Nova Scotia launched the second day of 24-hour rotating strikes against the post office to protest hiring practices with walkouts today in Halifax, Toronto and several other Ontario cities.

Members of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada shut down mail delivery from the main post office in Halifax and several substations. However, in Saint John, N.B., hit Monday by a letter carriers' walkout, the men were back on the job today.

The letter carriers walked out of two post offices in Toronto's west end and shut down mail delivery in Weston, northwest of the city. Other walkout targets included Windsor, London, Amherstburg, Chatham, St. Catharines and Thorold in southern Ontario.

In Hamilton and the two nearby communities of Burlington and Stony Creek, the mailmen returned to their jobs today after walkouts Monday.

Today's walkouts, described as illegal by post office officials, involved about 700 letter carriers in Ontario, including 194 in London, 184 in Windsor and about 100 in Toronto. Another 500 inside workers—sorters and handlers—didn't report for work in post offices hit by the walkouts.

About 90 carriers and clerks were involved in the Halifax walkout.

Meanwhile, talks resumed today in Ottawa between the union and representatives of the letter carriers' employer, the federal treasury board. No progress was reported following Monday's meetings.

Ladders Flung Over Wall

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Nine men held on what police sources said were charges connected with using weapons and explosives broke from Crumlin Road prison today in a well-planned, daylight escape, government officials said.

The officials said two teams of prisoners were playing football in an exercise yard at the rear of the prison when two rope ladders were flung over one 25-foot wall from outside the jail.

COLLEGE GROUNDS

They said a number of the inmates, members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army apparently had been awaiting the ladders. Nine men immediately clambered up and over the wall to freedom in a maze of nearby streets after passing through the grounds of adjoining St. Malachy's College, the officials said.

Prison officers on duty in the yard sped forward to halt the escape but were blocked "in a concerted movement of remaining prisoners," said an official at the home affairs ministry.

"There was some scuffling between guards and a number of prisoners gaining valuable time for the prisoners to make good their escape," the official said.

British army troops and police raced to the prison and flung a net of roadblocks across streets in a two-mile radius of the prison, home office officials said.

By late afternoon, the men had not been recaptured, they said.

FALSE REPORTS

A number of persons stopped by police and questioned brought a flurry of false reports that some of the men had been caught, police sources said.

Police sources said the inmates were awaiting trial on charges connected with using arms and explosives.

The prison initially housed

Legislature Protest Urged by Unionists

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Federation of Labor annual convention has been urged to hold a second demonstration outside the legislative buildings in Victoria to protest the unemployment situation.

Two delegates recommended the action Monday despite a near-riot which occurred last year when the first demonstration got out of hand on the opening day of the legislature.

Secretary-treasurer Ray Haynes was not opposed to the idea, saying "if the situation arises that this would be worthwhile, we will recommend it."

Trade union leaders were generally blamed for not properly organizing the first demonstration, which saw some people actually storm the buildings.

RETURN VISIT

Suggesting a return visit, Lorne Robson of the Carpenters Union said that "a few provocateurs" disrupted the first outing, adding that these people should not be the determining factor on whether another is held.

Nick Chernoff of the Campbell River, Courtenay and district labor council also supported a second demonstration.

"We failed when we disbanded in front of the legislature instead of marching on," he said. The march to the buildings and the speeches there were "flawless," said Chernoff.

Self-flagellations got under way right at the beginning of the convention with the cue provided by president George Johnston.

"Let's face it," Mr. Johnston said as he reviewed the issure of unemployment and poverty, "our efforts in these areas are not good enough."

Job Scheme to Bring $8 Million to B.C.

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Manpower Minister Otto Lang told the provincial premiers today that British Columbia will get $8 million of the $80 million to be spent by the federal government on job-creating projects this winter.

B.C.'s share compares with $20 million for Ontario, $25 million for Quebec, $9 million for Atlantic provinces and $9 million for the Prairies.

Mr. Lang and Finance Minister E. J. Benson gave the federal-provincial economic conference a summary of the government's progress on the $498-million program announced Oct. 14 to stimulate winter employment.

Mr. Lang, in a statement released today outside the closed conference, said 25,000 fact sheets and 100,000 folders outlining extended manpower training programs have been sent to manpower centres.

By last Friday "several hundred applications" had been received for the local incentives program, which provides $100 million in grants to municipalities and community groups that undertake winter works projects.

USE IMAGINATION

"The flow of early applications and the heavy demand for information about the program suggest that the imagination and initiative of Canadians will take full advantage of the funds available," Mr. Lang said.

Mr. Benson told the premiers he expects approval by the end of December for loans to the provinces for construction projects that will create about 170,000 man-months of work. He said more loans will be made in January. The cut-off date for applications is Jan. 31.

A similar program last year produced more than 13,000 man-years indirectly, he said.

He also announced a change in a tax incentive given to industry for on-the-job training programs. The incentive allowed firms to deduct from their taxable income 150 per cent of the program costs, meaning that a firm paying 50-per-cent tax would save 75 per cent of the cost of the program.

But a recently-announced cut in corporation tax would mean this allowance would be slightly reduced, he said. Therefore, to keep the saving at 75 per cent, the writeoff was being increased to 160 per cent.

How to spread the country's wealth from the rich provinces to the poor was the prime topic today at the conference.

POLLUTION DEADLINE EXTENDED

A retroactive extension in the deadline for land and water polluters to register their discharges with the provincial government was announced today by Resources Minister Ray Williston.

The extension to March 31, 1972, was attributed by the government to "an unexpectedly high number of persons or businesses" failing to comply with the registration deadline. The original deadline as spelled out in legislation was Dec. 31, 1970.

Nearly 1,000 effluent discharges and 1,100 solid waste dumps were not registered, Williston said.

Student Charged In School Fires

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — A 12-year-old boy has been charged with arson after three fires in the past six weeks caused more than $175,000 damage to Cliffside Preparatory here.

The boy, a student at the school, was remanded to Wednesday without plea when he appeared in Duncan juvenile court today.

Inspector A. H. Taylor of the fire marshal's office in Vancouver said arson is suspected in at least two of the three fires, including the first, when combustible material was ignited in a classroom building closet six weeks ago.

No cause has been determined in the second fire Nov. 7, which resulted in $100,000 damage when the school's kitchen and dining room were destroyed.

The third fire, which Taylor also has attributed to arson, occurred early last Wednesday, when a $75,000 classroom building was destroyed.

Council Debating Reid Compromise

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE
Times Staff

The Reid Centre may still be built.

Victoria council's planning committee today rejected the two-tower development proposal but approved design guidelines which open the way for a new project.

After an hour and a half of tense debate, the so-called "compromise" development was unanimously rejected by planning chairman Harold Olafson, Mayor Courtney Haddock, Ald. Clyde Savage and Ald. Ove Witt.

A repeated attempt to close off from the city a future choice to buy the Reid property failed. Haddock's motion to guarantee that "private capital be used" to develop the site was given a rough ride by Ald. Peter Pollen.

The first of a five-part series by Chapple begins today on Page 5.

UN ENVOYS SURPRISED BY TOUGH PEKING STAND

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The People's Republic of China became part of the United Nations Monday with a speech full of revolutionary fervor, criticism of the United States and pledges to oppose the superpowers when their interests conflict with those of small countries.

"We are opposed to the power politics and hegemony of big nations bullying small ones or strong nations bullying weak ones," said Deputy Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua, in the first China speech in the General Assembly.

"We hold that the affairs of a given country must be handled by its own people, that the affairs of the world must be handled by the countries of the world, and that the affairs of the UN must be handled jointly by all its member states, and the superpowers should not be allowed to manipulate and monopolize them."

Then he said that at no time will China regard herself as a super power.

Chiao pledged Chinese support for the Palestine Arab guerrillas in the Middle East and the revolutionaries of southern Africa.

He called the United States an aggressor and said its troops must get out of In-

Patriotic Lansky Is American Dream Upside Down

Mafia Mobster Heads the GM of Crime

By NICHOLAS GAGE
(Second of a Series)

When Maier Suchowjansky arrived in New York from Grodno, Russia in 1911, his mother, in all the confusion, could not remember the day or even the month in which he had been born nine years earlier. So the immigration officials gave him July 4 as a birthdate, hoping, perhaps, to instill in the boy a sense of patriotism and high aspirations.

In many ways Maier Suchowjansky, who Americanized his name to "Meyer Lansky," lived up to that hope. He became so patriotic that he moved heaven and earth to get his oldest son into West Point. He is as ardent a supporter of U.S. involvement in Vietnam as any man in America. As for material success, he set his aspirations high and has achieved the directorship of a network of enterprises as big as General Motors. His personal fortune is estimated to be somewhere between $100 million and $300 million.

The thing that sets Meyer Lansky apart from most men who have achieved the American Dream is his line of business. He chose to pursue his ambitions not in steel or oil, not in automobiles or banking, but in crime. Lansky is the main architect of the giant conglomerate that is organized crime in the United States.

As a director of the organized crime syndicate, of which the Mafia is the biggest branch, Lansky is so powerful that he controls legitimate corporations, runs a gambling network that stretches from Las Vegas to the Middle East, and "buys" whole governments with bribes. Even the U.S. Navy once had to plead for his help.

He has convinced the syndicate to enter new fields such as banking, investments, manufacturing and real estate by using thousands of fronts, some so sophisticated they may never be penetrated. In addition, he has developed new ways to promote the most lucrative traditional sources of income — gambling — in the Caribbean, England, Europe and the Middle East.

Lansky the man is a fascinating series of contradictions. His personal style is radically different from that of the cigar-smoking professional mobster portrayed by Hollywood. At 69, Lansky is gray-haired, 5 feet 4 inches tall, and thin. His suits are conservative in cut, and his home, until 1969, was a modest three-bedroom ranch-style house in Hallandale, Fla., a suburb of Miami. He drives (rented) Chevrolets, walks the family dog and goes home every night to his wife.

In the summer of 1970 Lansky moved to Israel and settled down at a suite in the Dan Hotel in Tel Aviv. It so happened that about the same time Federal agents were investigating the skimming of millions of dollars of gambling profits from the Flamingo Hotel in Las Vegas from 1960 to 1967.

In March, 1971, Lansky was indicted by a Federal grand jury in Miami for conspiracy to engage in illegal gambling activity and to conceal and distribute proceeds from the Flamingo Hotel. Lansky, of course, declined to return to the United States to face the charges.

Acting like any good businessman with a social conscience, Lansky makes occasional contributions to charity, but he is careful to make them small, in keeping with his image. They are usually between $2,500 and $5,000 and are given to reputable institutions. Lansky had made at least two small contributions to Brandeis University at the behest of his friend Joseph Linsey, a Boston businessman with underworld links who is a large contributor to the university.

Even Lansky's tax returns, it is said, portray a retired investor living in moderate comfort off the return of a few prudent holdings. Lansky can justify every expenditure to the last cent, and he often doesn't take even the deductions to which he is entitled.

Another ploy used to justify his income came to light in November, 1969 when the Toronto Telegram told the story of a bemused Toronto stockbroker who, not knowing who Lansky was, agreed to arrange the purchase of $250 worth of mining claims in Canada for him. Four months later, Lansky had the broker handle the sale of the same mining claims to two New York brothers for $40,000.

Lansky subsequently claimed the $38,750 "profit" on the deal as a capital gain and paid tax on it to the dismay of the Internal Revenue Service. The IRS believe that Lansky himself had given the brothers the $40,000 to buy the claims and thereby legitimatize or "dry-clean" nearly $40,000 of mob profits. Because the deal had taken place in Canada, there was no legal action the IRS could take.

Lansky's main pleasures are simple. He likes to travel, to go for walks and to lie in the sun. Like many another self-made millionaire, Lansky adheres to a brand of politics

'Hot Spot' Found On Mars' Surface

PASADENA, Calif. (Reuter)—Discovery of a mysterious area on Mars where the temperature rises suddenly was made by the Mariner 9 Mars probe Monday.

A scientist at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena said the area lies about 1,300 miles southeast of the towering Nix Olympica formation, one of the most prominent features of Mars.

Dr. Ellis Miner said "we have no idea what this anomaly is." He said that perhaps there was some internal source of heat, but declined to speculate whether it was a volcano.

Miner is a member of the team responsible for Mariner's infra-red radiometer experiment which measures the temperature of the soil. One of its main tasks is to look for "hot spots" which might indicate that sources of heat exist inside Mars as they do on earth.

The scientist was careful not to call the mystery region a "hot spot" until data relayed by the spacecraft's infra-red instrument had been studied further.

12 DEGREES WARMER

Soundings of the region taken as Mariner swooped about 1,000 miles above it during the spacecraft's second orbit Monday showed it to be about 12 degrees warmer than the surrounding area which had an average temperature of 55 degrees.

Miner said maps of the region did not show up any significant feature and it will be 18 or 20 days before the spacecraft crosses the region again.

Mariner is still giving a perfect performance after three days in orbit. Monday it fired a six-second burst of its rocket engine to adjust the orbit.

The aim was to reduce the period or orbit from 12 hours 34 minutes to 11 hours 59 minutes and ensure that the spacecraft maintains optimum position for its twice daily transmission of pictures and data to earth.

TARRED IRISH GIRL WEDS HER SOLDIER

LONDONDERRY (AP) — Marta Doherty, the 18-year-old Roman Catholic girl who was tarred and tied to a lamp post for dating a British soldier, defied the mob rule of Londonderry's Bogside district Monday and married him.

She wore a wig to replace the shoulder-legth auburn locks Bogside women sheared off as a waring to "soldier dollies."

Marta and 19-year-old Pte. Joh Larter, whom she once saved from a mob, were whisked out of Northern Ireland under a cloak of army secrecy for a honeymoon "somewhere in England."

The wedding took place in the well-guarded chapel of an army barracks, not in St. Columba's Church as planned. Troops with machine-guns at the ready ringed the barracks during the ceremony.

Marta's ordeal began last week before a secret court set up in the Bogside by a women's group.

She was sentenced to tarring, the usual treatment for those who run foul of the Irish Republican Army, the guerrilla gunmen pledged to get the British army out of Northern Ireland.

Another girl was given the same treatment next day. Then the IRA, apparently alarmed by the wave of revulsion set off by the humiliation, announced that tarring and feathering was henceforth reserved for males.

After the tarring, Marta was under close army guard. The wedding originally was fixed for Saturday, but was set back to allow her to recover.

Her wedding gift from the army: John will be posted away from the Royal Anglian Regiment to another unit, and will not be sent back to Northern Ireland.

Safe in England, Marta told reporters: "It wasn't the sort of wedding I'd always hoped for, but I'm happier now than I've ever been in my life."

. . . REID DEBATE

were allowed to comment but not to vote.

"The chief magistrate's dedication to free enterprise really gets to me," Pollen snapped. He said the city can build major streets to connect shopping centres but apparently this kind of tax-dollar spending was valid.

REDUDANT

Pollen said Haddock's resolution was "completely redundant."

"We are not interested in buying up half the damn city and turning it into a park," Pollen added, refusing to participate in a show of hands in favor of private development of the Reid site.

Haddock insisted that "we are not going to use taxpayers money" in order to control development of the Reid site.

Savage agreed with Pollen, saying he did not see the necessity of such a motion because it would bind council under future unseen circumstances.

Planning director Geoff Greenhalgh produced two alternative designs for the centre in the form of models, saying any development will have to include a "trade-off" between height and open space.

He told committee the towers could be limited to 10 storeys but this would require less public open space on the site.

Throwaway Automobile Designed

LONDON (AP) — European and Japanese manufacturers are designing a $400 automobile that can be thrown away in a year, Europa magazine reported today.

One European builder "has already subjected a prototype to extensive tests," said the magazine printed in the Netherlands.

Another prototype is "well past the drawing board state" at the Volkswagen factory in Wolfsburg, West Germany. Volvo of Sweden and Toyota of Japan are other manufacturers working on the design of such a car.

The magazine quoted Antonio Gottardi of Turin, Italy, an auto executive, as saying his factory would aim at a 9,000-mile life for the revolutionary car. He said the cost would be about $300 with a selling price of around $400.

The throwaway car is scheduled to be introduced at the New York Automobile Show next spring. It probably will not hit the market until 1975, Europe said.

Newspaper Boxes Banned

MONTREAL (CP) — City council voted Monday night to ban the sale of newspapers through street corner boxes in Montreal.

The prohibition, which goes in effect immediately, applies as well to private property facing on to public domain.

Mayor Jean Drapeau said in defending the ban that newspaper publishers had 90 days to beautify and limit the number of newspaper boxes before Monday night's ban but had failed to comply.

Mr. Drapeau said that Montreal is a special case because of the great number of daily and weekly newspapers here.

He said it would be impossible to allow one paper to distribute through street boxes while limiting the sales methods of others.

He said it is entirely possible that eight, nine or 10 news boxes could clutter one street corner, creating an eyesore and making it almost impossible to clear snow from that area.

The mayor said newspapers are readily available in stores, kiosks which are registered with the city and subway stations and that home delivery service in Montreal is adequate.

Speed-Up Studied

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons public accounts committee today established a subcommittee to consider ways to reduce the time now necessary for the government to make its expenditures public.

Yorty Makes Bid

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles said here today he will seek the Democratic party's nomination to contest the 1972 United States presidential election.

the weather

Skies will be generally cloudy across B.C. today with some shower activity along the outer coast with an onshore flow of fairly mild Pacific air. A very weak disturbance in this flow will maintain the cloudy mild weather on Wednesday.

several hundred suspected Irish Republican extremists picked up by security forces when the government introduced internment without trial on Aug. 9. Most internees were later transferred to Long Kesh, an army camp south of Belfast.

MP DETAINED

Earlier, police detained a Northern Ireland member of the British Parliament and 21 other men for several hours in connection with the repair of a border road blasted by British troops.

The lawmaker and all but two of the men were later released after questioning by police, the army spokesman said. He said they had been held under the special powers act.

A police spokesman said some of the men were questioned about two heavy trucks used in the filling operation which had earlier been reported stolen in Northern Ireland.

Before the arrests, residents participating in the filling operation forced British troops to withdraw from the area by turning powerful arc lights on them, making them good sniper targets. The residents then celebrated by singing and dancing, a witness said.

"There was even one man selling hot dogs," the witness said. "It was like a country fair."

dochina, Taiwan and Korea. He said Taiwan is an integral part of China and the Chinese people will ever seek to regain it.

And he said China never will take part in superpower-run disarmament talks, saying that this is a subject for all the countries of the world.

Initial reaction to the speech was varied. Some delegations were surprised that the Chinese would come in with such a toughly-worded speech only three weeks after the assembly voted them in to replace the Nationalist Chinese of Taiwan.

But most agreed with one observer who said it was a "tough far-ranging review of known Chinese positions."

The Chinese speech came at the end of an unprecedented five-hour special welcoming meeting of the assembly.

In casting its first vote, China supported a resolution critical of the United States and calling on it to prevent the importing of chrome from white-ruled Rhodesia.

The resolution passed overwhelmingly, 106 to 2, with the U.S. delegation itself abstaining. Only Portugal and South Africa voted against it.

The UN action was in response to a move in the U.S. Congress last week which included provision for the procurement of Rhodesian chrome in a procurement bill. The Congressional vote was in violation of a UN ban on trade with the white-minority government ruling Rhodesia.

Men, Guns Head for U.S.

About 60 members of the 5th (B.C.) Field Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery, will travel to the United States' army base at Fort Lewis, Wash. for artillery exercises Nov. 26 to 28.

The local unit will take four 105 millimetre guns and about 12 vehicles, travelling via Port Angeles.

Most of the artillery unit's live firing exercises are carried out at CFB Shilo, Man. Once a year, however, exercises are held at Fort Lewis.

Battery commander Major F. E. Richardson will be in charge of the exercise.

Healing Substance...
Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

"We know that a political action program is essential but we have not financed it. We know that a massive publicity campaign is needed but we have not financed it.

"We know that unity and structural change are vital but we have been too slow in bringing about these changes and overcoming our differences."

HITS WELFARE STAND

Mr. Johnston also scourged trade unionists who have been "sucked into" joining phoney attacks on "lazy bums on welfare."

"We've been conned into accepting the myth that we all have equal chance to be rich and successful and into ignoring the fact that our economic system is based on exploitation.

Criticism of unions affiliated with the federation — which represents 155,000 organized workers in the province — was contained in convention reports.

The special unemployment committee expressed disappointment at the poor participation by affiliates in its campaign on behalf of the jobless.

"Only a few unions had functioning unemployment committees," its report stated. "Only one labor council actually established such a committee for their unemployed.

"It was not an impressive showing by organized labor in B.C. considering the volume of unemployment."

TACKLE SOCIAL ISSUES

Resolutions endorsed during the day reflected the concern over social issues.

Among them was a resolution calling for increased minimum wages, welfare payments and supplementary old-age pensions with the cost to be met through increased taxation of resource industries.

The resolution adopted on unemployment called for accelerated public spending on such works as hospitals, sewage treatment plants, rapid transit and housing.

It also sought support for a ban on overtime work and for a shorter work week, earlier retirement and longer vacations.

Turning to municipal affairs, delegates unanimously approved a report recommending among other things support for legislation to control land speculation and creation of community health clinics.

EXEMPTION BID LOST FOR CANADA

WASHINGTON (CP) — Plans to have Canada exempted from the 10-per-cent import surtax are dead, supporters of an earlier attempt in the current Senate tax debate said today.

A spokesman for Senator James Buckley, Conservative-Republican of New York, said however, that the senator still backs the idea and a new attempt could be made later in the congressional session.

Mafia Money 'Laundered' in Swiss Banks

that is distinctly right-wing. On Vietnam, for example, "He thinks we should go in there and blow Hanoi to pieces," says an acquaintance. "He's really disgusted with all these demonstrations against the war."

Lansky is so patriotic, in fact, that in 1949 he used all the political influence at his command to win an appointment to West Point for his oldest son, Paul. The appointment was made by the late New York State Supreme Court Justice Arthur G. Klein, who was then a Congressman. Paul Lansky did fairly well at the school and rose to the rank of captain in the Air Force before resigning in 1963 to begin an engineering career on the West Coast. He now lives in Tacoma, Wash., with his wife and children and is a respected member of his community. Lansky has two other children, another son named Bernard and a daughter, Sandra. Bernard, who is known as Buddy, lives in a comfortable house near his father's old home in Hallandale, Fla., and is often seen in supervisory positions in hotels and motels in which Meyer is said to have an interest.

Lansky's daughter Sandra has been married twice and had a reputation as a swinger when she was young. During her swinging period she got into scrapes that gave Meyer more than a few sleepless nights.

Good Reasons

Lansky is easily the most heeded underworld leader, and for several good reasons. First, he has survived longer than anyone in the underworld. In his 50 years in crime he has spent only three months in jail. Second, anyone who has associated himself with Lansky has made big money. Third, and most important, Lansky possesses the best brain in the underworld.

It was Lansky who developed the world-wide network of couriers, middlemen, bankers and frontmen that allows the underworld to take profits from illegal enterprises, send them halfway around the world and then have the money come back laundered clean to be invested in legitimate business. The way this works is beautifully simple. Lansky's couriers take the Mafia's "black money," profits from illegal activities — to secret bank accounts in Switzerland where middlemen in Europe take the money out of the accounts and send it back to the states through various devices such as mortgages and loans. This "clean money" is then used for legitimate investments. There is no way to find out the ultimate source of the money because it can be traced back only to the Swiss banks and they won't divulge the names of depositors.

In Europe, Lansky's chief watchdog and head of operations is John Pullman, a former bootlegger who started out in the rackets with Lansky in the 1920's.

Lansky got an early start in crime. He was first picked up by the police when he was 16. By the time he was 27, he had been arrested five times on charges ranging from disorderly conduct to suspicion of homicide. But not once were the police able to make the charges stick.

Lansky became a close friend and partner of Benjamin "Bugsy" Siegel. Short and hawkfaced, Lansky admired the tall, boyishly handsome Siegel, so much so that he borrowed his idol's nickname, calling himself Bugs Meyer for awhile. They first hired themselves out as gunmen to Legs Diamond, and then started their own gang. Siegel and Lansky did so well that when various East Coast gangs formed an alliance to co-ordinate rum-running on the Eastern Seaboard, they became members of the governing board.

In the early 1930s the Eastern syndicate began to link up with the Cleveland and Reinfield syndicates — groups that specialized in smuggling bootleg booze from Canada — and other regional mobs to form the National Syndicate.

The tieup with the Cleveland syndicate provided important lessons in Lansky's education as a gangster. The four leaders of this group — Moe Dalitz, Morris Kleinman, Sam Tucker and Louis Rothkopf (now dead) — were more subtle, and often more effective, than crime leaders in the East. They relied more on the bribe than the bullet, led inconspicuous personal lives and kept well hidden behind numerous fronts. Lansky was to study their methods, refine them and use them to lead organized crime in the United States into a new era.

For a time Lansky, Bugsy Siegal, Louis Lepke and Lucky Luciano ran a factory in the Bronx section of New York to extract morphine from an opium base for the illicit drug market.

Each man had other things going. Lepke, for one, teamed up with Gurrah Shapiro to recruit a group of vicious contract killers like Albert Anastasia and Abe Reles into the infamous Murder Inc.

Murder Inc. ended the lives of an estimated 800 persons before prosecutors Burton Turkus and the late Thomas E. Dewey moved forcefully against the New York mobs.

Bugsy Siegel went to Hollywood, Calif., where he socialized with the movie stars he had always envied. And Lansky went to Hollywood, Fla., although he kept returning to New York where he kept an apartment until 1953.

The top man, Lucky Luciano, refused to leave the center of his operations at all. He was ultimately convicted by Dewey on so many counts of white slavery that he was sentenced to 50 years in prison.

Dewey's Favor

Dewey in an indirect way did the organization a favor. By compelling many of the remaining leaders to leave New York, he forced them to spread their operations and make the syndicate truly national.

Lansky, for one, built a whole new empire in Southern Florida and the Caribbean by imitating the Cleveland group. With Florida secure, he went on to Cuba in 1937 to see what he could do about expanding his operations to the island. He found a willing listener in Fulgencio Batista, the former army sergeant then in power, and the two made plans for turning Havana into a playground for the rich. World War II, however, put an end to this initial effort.

During the war Lansky played a key role in one of the strangest deals in which the U.S. government has even been involved — Operation Underworld. The full story has never been told, but as it was outlined during the Kefauver hearings, Naval intelligence decided that it needed the help of the Mafia to protect East Coast shipping from sabotage. Lucky Luciano was the only man who could arouse the Mafia to such service, but he was still in prison — and not likely to be feeling patriotic.

The Navy turned to Luciano's attorney, Moses Polakoff, who promised to talk to his client. But he said he needed someone with him whom Luciano would trust — Meyer Lansky. For several months Polakoff and Lansky visited Luciano regularly, and ultimately got some kind of agreement from him.

How much Luciano's co-operation contributed to the nation's welfare is still a military secret, but it certainly contributed to Luciano's welfare. Lucky was paroled at war's end and allowed to return to his native Italy, on the condition that he wouldn't again set foot in the Western Hemisphere.

In exile Luciano continued to influence the syndicate, but active leadership passed to a triumvirate that included Joe Adonis, Frank Costello and Meyer Lansky.

Got Divorce

Right after the war, Lansky met Thelma Schwartz, a manicurist at a New York hotel, and decided to marry her. But he was already married to the former Anna Citron and had two sons and a daughter by her. So he had to persuade Anna to give him a divorce and to allow him the companionship of the three children.

To add to his problems, Lansky's old friend, Bugsy Siegel, was causing trouble for the syndicate. He was spending too much of its money to build the Flamingo Hotel in Las Vegas. And he was ignoring advice and getting involved in a factional struggle for control of the wire service supplying bookies with race track information.

Siegel was showing the kind of growing independence and recklessness that threatened the subtle organization that men like Lansky were building. So, early in 1947, syndicate leaders met in a Havana hotel suite with Lucky Luciano, who had sneaked back temporarily from Italy, to decide what to do about Bugsy.

On June 20, 1947, Siegel was sitting in the Beverly Hills home of his mistress, Virginia Hill, when two steel-jacketed slugs from an Army carbine tore into his face.

The Flamingo Hotel, which had gotten Siegel into trouble, started paying dividends the very day he was shot. Lansky, one of the original 21 investors, got back the $62,500 he had put up many times over.

Hard Work

Lansky worked feverishly to take advantage of the post-war boom by launching hundreds of new operations all over the country. He started real estate companies in several states; set up juke-box-distribution outlets in Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York; opened a string of new casinos that stretched from Miami, Fla., to Saratoga, N.Y. and bought into several television manufacturing and servicing companies.

Then in 1950 the Kefauver Committee turned the spotlight on Lansky and America caught a glimpse of his power for the first time. The heat the committee generated forced officials in Florida and New York to shut down his casinos and to make noises about sending him to prison. He was indicted for gambling violations in both states and an effort was started to have him deported. But in the end he served only a three-month sentence in New York — the first and last time Lansky ever went to jail.

Revive Dream

When he got out, he headed for Cuba to revive his old dream of turning Havana into a gambling paradise. His old friend Batista, who had won back the presidency in 1952 with syndicate financing, gave him free reign and Lansky turned Cuba into a gambling monopoly for himself and selected syndicate friends.

Lansky began instituting a number of changes that enabled the syndicate to penetrate deep into the economic life of America. He curtailed the practice of buying up small companies through friends and relatives. Such men always turned out to be more loyal than competent, and the businesses never got very far.

Instead, he started sending syndicate money to numbered accounts in Europe, where authorized middlemen would take it and lend it to American executives in quick need of capital. "Some of the biggest mergers and acquisitions in recent years have been financed with syndicate money from Europe," says a Securities and Exchange Commission official.

Lansky began recruiting bright young men with no links to the underworld and training them in the art of being invisible which he has perfected. These men will be the inheritors of power in organized crime, making the job of law enforcement officials in the future even more difficult than it is now.

Never a man to live in the past, he became resigned to losing Cuba and was already focusing on the Bahamas.

In 1963 a plush new hotel, the Lucayan Beach, was built in Freeport on Grand Bahama Island by a group of companies under the control of Wallace Groves, an ex-convict who had settled on the island 20 years ago.

Soon after it opened, the casino was running with professional efficiency worthy of the best gambling parlors controlled by Lansky in Las Vegas.

Then in 1966 it was revealed that some of the highest officials in the United Bahamian Party had received secret payments from several companies controlled by Groves. Sir Stafford Sands, then minister of finance and tourism, actually got some $1.8 million under the table.

Toppled Party

The revelations toppled the United Bahamian Party from power. Sands left the Bahamas for a castle he owns in Spain, and Lansky's men were expelled from the islands by a new party.

With the heat on in the Bahamas, Lansky turned his attention to the growing number of casinos that were opening in England, Europe and the Middle East.

At an age when several of his old partners in crime are selling their interests in the syndicate, setting up trusts for their children, and retiring, grateful to have the chance to die of natural causes, Lansky is still scanning the world for new outlets for Syndicate activities.

No Sweet Talk in Chinese

Any thought that China would be awed by its first meeting in the United Nations, after waiting 22 years for a seat in the Assembly, was dispelled by the aggressive, slam-bang style of Deputy Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-Hua in his initial address to the world body yesterday. The Peking spokesman's words were particularly notable in contrast to the conventional speeches of "warm welcome" from a number of delegates who preceded him.

If this is to be the style of the Chinese approach to UN matters it will be quickly clear that a new and independent element has been introduced into the Assembly. Chiao's address sharply criticized superpowers and accused them of stepping up war preparations and monopolizing nuclear force — which was one reason, no doubt, why Russia and the United States did not join in applause at the conclusion of the address.

In this thrust, Chiao was obviously making a bid for the support of small countries, who frequently feel at a loss when confronted by big-power pressures in the UN. He drove home the point by asserting that China would never act as a superpower — news, perhaps, to Tibet and some southeast Asian lands — and voiced support for such small countries as Angola in trying to throw off colonial domination, and for African peoples struggling against white domination.

Chiao drove head-on into such topics as Taiwan, Korea, Southeast Asia, Big Four peace efforts in the Middle East, and the right of small powers to be heard in disarmament agreements.

It appears that China is staking out a territory of influence among the Assembly membership, and may emerge as the large-country leader of the small-country members who hold a great number of the one-per-nation votes. The general tenor of the speech was such as to drive Russia and the United States closer together under attack, although many of the Chinese statements were more in line with often expressed Soviet principles than with those of America.

Issues will arise, of course, on which China may choose — or have to choose — between the two "superpowers" it has already scorned. But the UN can look forward to some brisk bargaining, aggressive debates and stone-wall tactics. The last 22 years, tumultuous though they were, may prove in retrospect to have been the quiet times.

"... gentlemen ... I've got a plan ..."

The Problems of Global Participation

The Economist of London pointed out in a recent issue that the Russian response to the current international monetary crisis has been less than clear-cut. The Russians' comparative discretion, the noted journal concluded, "is a further symptom of their difficulty in keeping their bearings in the complex new world replacing the old bi-polar one."

The Russian leadership is allegedly concerned about the impact of foreign contacts which a drastically increased Soviet trade campaign with the West would entail. According to this theory, there has been a lack of enthusiasm in the Kremlin to take advantage of any falling-off in trade between Western countries.

If the object of any country's foreign policy is, ultimately, the strengthening of the government's power at home, then Moscow may indeed be concerned at the effect which contacts with open societies would have. But it has become dated to assume the Russians are as concerned with ideology as in the past: a new class of technocrats and pragmatists is said to be assuming power. In such a case the new breed of Communist might well be prepared to take advantage of any intra-Western trade war, heedless of foreign contagion.

Recent trips of Soviet leaders to the West indicate a certain eagerness to increase trade with us. The Russians, in short, appear to be more sure of themselves than The Economist supposes.

How Did We Make It?

In this era of preoccupation with education for the future, Mr. Bascomb St. John of the Ontario Department of Education dropped some words of common sense into the hopper of the Canadian Education Association annual convention discussion last month.

"Nobody dreamed of attempting to educate us for today's present in the first and second decades of this century," he pointed out. "It did not occur to teachers, or even department officials to worry over what would happen to us when we grew up and lived in the unknown future.

"We did grow up, and we live in what people call a different world, and we push buttons and turn dials, and ride fast, and fly high, just as if mankind had been doing this since time began," he continued. "Schools did not fail us by educating us for the present of our childhood. We who are alive adjust to the Now, whatever the Now contains."

In other words, if a school teaches a pupil to use his brain, the pupil will be equipped reasonably well to meet the challenges that come up — and which no one can foretell with accuracy.

BRUCE HUTCHISON

Faith and Free Enterprise

On September 21, 1961, an obscure member of the Liberal opposition in Parliament made a speech at Banff. Presumably his audience of Young Liberals listened to Paul Hellyer that day but I recall no press report of the speech or any public interest in it. The nation, one supposes, was too fascinated at the moment by the first symptoms of fatal malady in the Conservative government to consider the heretical notions of a youngster who could think for himself and already was thinking ahead of his time.

In any case, it is impossible, without reading that speech, to understand what happened to Mr. Hellyer in the last decade and where he stands today, either in limbo or at the beginning of a new adventure. His recently published book, Agenda, a Plan for Action, is a logical progression of his thoughts at Banff. The wild surmise of youth, groping for answers, now reaches the maturity of middle-age conviction which, unhappily, is blurred, distorted and discounted in the scramble of politics, partly through Mr. Hellyer's own mistakes.

Informed Layman

Here I shall not attempt to review the book, noting merely that it is a deep study of our existing social arrangements free of economic jargon or any partisan tinge, the work of a layman who seems to be better informed, more widely travelled and certainly more candid than most professional economists.

It deserves a wide readership, not because its author is a controversial, belligerent figure in rebellion against his party but because the book proves, I believe, that the existing arrangements must change, are changing in progressive reform or in deepening trouble.

The Banff speech, remember, was made in the autumn of 1961 when the Diefenbaker government assumed that the arrangements would not change fundamentally, when the Liberal opposition had no coherent ideas beyond an appetite for office, when John Kenneth Galbraith had outraged conventional economists with his Affluent Society, and when the tragic President Kennedy was starting to crank up the engine of inflation.

Ten years later, almost to the day, another president, reversing all his lifelong principles, suddenly enforced the Galbraithian theories (with no credit to their inventor, of course), and changed the economic system (temporarily, he says), with lasting results beyond calculation. But in a vague, inchoate fashion, the Banff speech foresaw these events, just as Professor Galbraith's explosive book, The New Industrial State, foresaw them later, in detail.

HELLYER

How much the Canadian layman owes to the American professional I don't know, but they have reached the same conclusion by different routes. Both hold that a system of free enterprise is much better for everyone who values personal freedom than any alternative like Communism, socialism or fascism. They also hold, however, that free enterprise cannot succeed, or even long endure, unless it mends its ways and purges its own evils by self-discipline. "It is not the system that is at fault," Mr. Hellyer writes, "but the management of the system."

The proposed cure, adopted "temporarily" in the United States and so far rejected in Canada, is a flexible but mandatory control over profits, wages and prices wherever they are not controlled by real competition in the market place.

Or, as Mr. Hellyer puts it, the present system "is characterized by a split between an oligopolistic sector of huge unions and corporations and a competitive sector of unorganized workers and small businesses. The power of the oligopolistic sectors cannot be effectively confronted by classic economic policy. New methods are needed."

The required methods, as Mr. Hellyer and Professor Galbraith see them, are, roughly speaking, the methods of an American president who believes, or at least says, that they will be disbanded in a year or so. At this point, precisely, Professor Galbraith parts company with Mr. Nixon and Mr. Hellyer breaks clean with Mr. Trudeau.

The president and the prime minister assume in public, whatever they may think privately, that they confront an economic aberration, a passing phenomenon soon to disappear. Inflation is a hot but brief candle. Unemployment likewise will be cured by another boom.

The professional economist and the amateur regard such comforting predictions as absurd, like the many former predictions that brought the world to its contemporary crunch.

Permanent Disease

In these men's view the phenomenon may fluctuate but it will not pass. The inflationary candle will continue burning, with more heat, to wither the helpless moths of society. The next boom, if it occurs, will only hide, momentarily, the underlying structural problem of unemployment. The disease is permanent, it must be permanently cured and it can be cured without scrapping the free enterprise system in favor of some far worse alternative of coercion by an all-powerful state.

These are the economic arguments, which I am not wise enough to judge. But in Mr. Hellyer's case the economics of any system are nothing more than tools for a larger purpose. In his Banff speech, with all the sparkling candor of youth, he said this: "Notwithstanding human failures, and the finite limits they impose, I believe in God. I believe that man has a soul which is infinite. He is a being endowed with the power of independent thought and action and with ability to distinguish right from wrong. I believe, therefore, in the sanctity and dignity of the human personality."

A naked confession of that sort is not popular in politics and, indeed, is almost in bad taste (though Mr. Trudeau said much the same thing in a revealing moment of candor not long ago). Anyhow, the confession and the faith seem to have been lost to the public in the birth or death pangs of Mr. Hellyer's dubious Action Canada. That, I think, is a pity.

C. L. SULZBERGER

On Shaky New Ground

VIENNA — Aladdin recovered his magic power successfully by trading new lamps for old, but it has yet to be proved that one can emulate the formula in the realm of foreign policy. President Nixon is now engaged in the risky business of substituting new myths for old. Whether he achieves the same success as Aladdin remains for history to decide.

Myth Number One, of course, is China. For 22 years the United States was determined to prove that the Chinese Government was in Taiwan. The China that figured in our policy as China didn't really exist, although there is conceivably a country called Taiwan.

But the question is whether by substituting a new Chinese myth for an old one we will achieve a realistic policy. For the new China myth implies that the new China is ultimately predestined to be pried away from classical Marxist Communism in a kind of triangulation of superpower centres.

Outside the U.S. Camp

The Taiwan of the old illusion was demonstrably on America's side but wasn't China. The China of the new one is demonstrably China but is hardly likely ever to find itself in the U.S. political camp. Indeed, after many years of argumentation with Moscow, Peking is likely to be more feverishly wooed by the Russians now that it has started a mild flirtation with Washington.

The United States world view was distorted for an entire generation by the old China fantasy and we must take great care to avoid a similar if opposite kind of distortion by any new China fantasy. For in the process of making the much-needed revision of U.S. Chinese policy we risk, by inept methods if nothing else, sacrificing American influence in Japan.

Moreover, it is arguable that despite the population differential, Japan today is a more important power than China for economic reasons and tomorrow may be more important for military reasons. The United States "had" Japan on its side; it will never "have" China. It may soon no longer "have" Japan, which is being cleverly courted by Moscow, to say nothing of Peking.

A sudden lurching from familiar moorings is bound to produce profound change, and it will be hard to distinguish wishful dreams from reality. Already there is insufficient recognition that, as three so-called super-capitals tend to balance each other's influence, other — if lesser — groupings assume greater comparative importance.

PRESIDENT NIXON
new China policy . . .

Not only Japan, but also the European Common Market, to which Britain is now adhering, can speak with a clearer and louder voice. At the same time South Asia is changing. Moscow has become the predominant influence in India, where Washington long sought to help develop a democratic version of socialism to counterbalance China.

All America has in exchange is a Pakistan which never truly existed as a unified state, which is coming apart at the seams, which is a U.S. ally in name only and which is friendlier to Peking than to Washington.

Nixon was entirely wise to launch a new China policy although the lack of any positive India policy seems less commendable. And the abrupt method of seeking a fresh global balance has produced dangerous repercussions in America's own emotional political system.

Americans are endowed with great energy and equal impatience and, when changing myths, exaggerate both tendencies. The blow to U.S. prestige administered in the UN on the China issue — which the United States itself had virtually initiated — produced an avalanche of counter-productive internal reactions.

In the name of withdrawing from over-extended commitments abroad to bolster national prosperity, the Senate idiotically cut off foreign aid everywhere. Yet our own national totems such as the Wall Street stock index totter while a global slump befogs our remaining allies — and we berate them for not doing enough.

Myths are as dangerous in foreign policy as are factual miscalculations or emotional obscurantism. Furthermore, it is as silly for the United States to blindly terminate all overseas obligations as it was to over-extend them in the first place. And while it is indeed wise to recognize new realities and abandon old chimeras, it is folly to alienate friends or allies.

Foolish Movements

Heedless inclinations are especially notable in the legislative branch because of the traditional rivalry for ascendancy, exacerbated by the Indochina crisis. Such inclinations have inspired noble but foolishly devised movements, favoring Biafra against Nigeria — thus encouraging Africa's disintegration — or favoring East Begali independence — which may be inevitable but, by magnetizing West Bengal, will surely cripple India as well as Pakistan.

It was illusion to believe the globe was ever truly dominated by one nuclear superpower or two superpowers. It is an equal illusion to think there can be a system of three superpowers. Perhaps what is not yet realized is that the divided West seems now engaged in doing what it can to confirm Karl Marx's analysis of world politics and world revolution — even though, contrary to our actions, we believe those precepts to be wrong.

Those Who Can Work in Harmony

We often hear the expression at nominating conventions: "He's a fighter."

Personally, after reading various accounts of "fighters" in municipal, civic and provincial affairs I would now be inclined to favor a candidate that was credited with intelligence, personality and equanimity.

There is not a reason in the world why a gathering of intelligent people cannot forgo personal animosities and carry on the people's business for which they allowed themselves to be elected. One pugnacious individual, lacking in creative thinking yet with a critical eye for personal publicity, can completely upset the decorum of any council meeting.

Civic and municipal elections are near at hand. Now is the time to decide upon the merits and qualifications of the candidates. Let us choose only those capable of working in harmony in the administration of our affairs and forgo the "fighters" in favor of conscientious intelligence. — Archie M. Browne, 1165 Meares St.

Nanaimo Show

I was appalled by "art critic" Glenn Howarth's recent attempt (November 6) — his review of the Nanaimo jury show. Surely the fact that there was a large amateur response to the fledgling Nanaimo show in no way justified Mr. Howarth's public humiliation of one of the entrants, especially since the entry in question was rejected and holds, therefore, no possible interest for the reading public. The black star for the Nanaimo jury show undoubtedly goes to Mr. Glenn Howarth, critic at small. — Lynne Eversole. — No. 3, 1057 Moss St.

From the Times of Nov. 16, 1911:

OTTAWA — Those who have predicted a quiet session for the opening of the new parliament have changed their minds, for it has been made evident from the commencement that it would be a fighting session throughout. The ceremony of the election of a Speaker yesterday was marked by a duel of words between the new premier, Hon. R. L. Borden, and the leader of the opposition, Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Incidentally, the latter drew first blood and the premier showed the first trace of temper evinced in his new capacity.

Stockholm: World's Best Functioning Metropolis

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE
Times City Hall Reporter

An opportunity to control its destiny came to Stockholm in 1904 when a suggested city council purchase of a 1,500-acre site of land called Enskede gard was implemented.

The policy that evolved out of that purchase has become the basis of what may be the most carefully planned and best functioning city in the world today.

Some city councillors in the early days of the Stockholm land policy hesitated. The cost, after all, was a bit steep: about one cent per square foot for Enskede. But the idea never was railroaded, and Stockholm has never looked back.

Travelling in and around Stockholm on a recent two-week study session on Scandinavian urban planning and development, I drove into a "new community" called Farsta in the suburbs south of the city.

Farsta is a place mainly for people of ordinary incomes. A typical Swedish community of tenement housing.

In 1912 in Stockholm's council chamber many city fathers thought it quite unnecessary — and voted accordingly — to buy up an old farm called Farsta, situated the great distance it was from the built-up city. The visionaries prevailed, but some councillors may have died thinking they were correct. Farsta's 1,600 acres were not developed until the 1950s.

FARSIGHTED city fathers of Stockholm in 1912 bought a 1,600-acre farm—a deal that paid off in the 1950s. When the suburb of Farsta rose, much of the old countryside was retained.

Creating a new community to house thousands of citizens in a swelling, post-war metropolis was made immeasurably simpler because of the city's outright ownership of one large piece of land capable of providing the entire site.

The cost of repeating the process is much higher today. Foresight did not predict the huge urban boom that was to begin in the 1950s and 1960s and go on, perhaps, until the very end.

Stockholm's great land purchases, based upon that original deal of 1904, have mostly been made in the burgeoning 1960s. The entire cost has been about 570 million Swedish kroner, or more than $114 million.

The great value in the mass purchases of land, of course, has been in eliminating the speculative inflation of land costs, a major deterrent to orderly development on this continent.

Despite its reputation for socialist heavy-handing, however, this Swedish land acquisition has all been carried out by paying the fair market value.

The lesson for urban regions like Victoria and Vancouver is plain. Sporadic, speculative development in semi-rural city outskirts, with no prior organization but eventual tax shocks to the citizens — we lump it together as "urban sprawl" — can all be halted with a little plagiarism and a lot of willingness. Only the land-speculators, not the most popular fellows these days, can lose.

The 125,000 acres bought by Stockholm since 1904 are not all in the hands of the city today. In the beginning land was sold to the builders or developers by the city, once agreement was made on the type of construction. Later Stockholm began to retain the land and grant long-term leases of up to 100 years duration.

The trend has been toward greater tenure for the leaseholder of land not used for housing; he now has a chance to turn a profit, and can even mortgage the land as if he owned it. Almost total protection is made available, with guarantees in law for "unlimited" periods.

CITY CONTROL of land results in carefully planned urban environment. These single-family homes in Gothenburg are car-free and have a park-like atmosphere, but at cost of uniformity.

The Stockholm land policy has made detailed planning possible for not only individual places like Farsta, but for the Stockholm region as a whole.

The city can ensure a steady production of housing in heavy demand because of urban immigration and rising standards. Because the city also owns the predominant non-profit housing companies, it can also say what kind of housing will be built, where it will be built, and how it will fit into other parts of regional planning such as transportation and industrial centres.

Stockholm's new communities surround the city in a star-shaped pattern and all are connected to adequate public transit and or major highways.

Of the roughly 170,000 dwellings in Stockholm's outskirts, about 120,000 or 70 per cent are on leased property. The earlier days of buy-and-sell resulted in less control over the inner town housing: only 5,000 of the 170,000 homes in that region are on city land.

Housing is considered such an important commodity in Sweden that housing allowances are granted to families, and rents are subsidized for retired people. An old couple I visited in a new town called Gardsten outside Gothenburg paid only $126 a year for their spacious, one-bedroom flat on the top floor of a three-storey apartment.

When the city sets rents on its land used for housing, it recovers only the interest on the purchase price, plus development costs. Capital costs are not recovered. On commercial leaseholds, however, rents are at market value.

Almost all housing construction in the country is financed with the help of central government loans, but all the planning is at the local level and the loan funds are allocated through regional and county authorities according to five-year construction programs drawn up by each local government.

The costs of these policies are not small but they seem to fit into the regional economic planning that results in thriving industry, a stable economy and solid wages. From another viewpoint, the costs seem essential to the order and planning that Swedes are accustomed to in their cities.

Greater Stockholm today has a population of 1,350,000 and the figure is expected to reach 2.5 million by the year 2000. Because the standard of space will rise along with the standard of living increase, Stockholm planners say they will have to build at least one and a half new Stockholms before the end of the century.

As if this massive undertaking were not enough, Stockholm has also gone three quarters of the way in completely rebuilding the centre of its city, a move considered necessary when deteriorating traffic and commercial conditions began splitting the downtown centre and thwarting its effectiveness as a central business district. Such a massive undertaking was made possible only through the city's purchase of the land to facilitate total planning.

Explaining this operation last month, a city official admitted — openly, soberly, but without visible misgivings — that the city's finances have been strained. Only the financial aid of the state government has made it all possible.

One became a little self-conscious after a time for always wondering openly about the financing of such projects. There are certain things, one discovered eventually, that are costly, create controversies as to their detail, but usually end up being carried out anyway because a community is not considered habitable without them.

The people of Stockholm don't appear to have been beaten down in spirit because of the costs. They might look at it this way: what's the use of taking home extra pay if there is no place decent enough to spend it in?

As an economics professor put it to me, "We see we can live a good life here without being rich." He was Norwegian, and the Swedes are richer than Norwegians, but they both seem to rate a standard of living in the same way.

When You're Jail-Fodder, Pride Is Needed

By DAVE STOCKAND
The Sun

Dan George . . . more than blood

Take the Indian viewpoint says Joe Mercredi, and you find more than blood flows from a dying buffalo.

He was talking about Chief Dan George's buffalo, the big bull the actor brought down on his recent and highly publicized fly-in, fly-out safari to the Northwest Territories.

Under the Mercredi formula, you mix and stir all the ingredients — the buffalo, the actor, the big-game outfitter — and you come up with a conspiracy to kindle a new spirit of pride in a bunch of Indian kids.

The dead buffalo, in these terms, is not a trophy but a sacrifice made for a generation growing up without heroes.

And while this generation is deprived, the imbalance of Western Canada's prison population, Indian to white, soars like a hawk.

Indian pride in general, and Indians behind bars in particular, are the over-riding concern of Joe Mercredi.

Because this self-assured volunteer social worker on the Edmonton skid road, this part-time trumpet player with the jazzman's goatee, is also a Metis ex-convict who once hitch-hike from Edmonton to Ottawa wearing a ball and chain to dramatize the law's oppression of the native people.

He talked about the past — and his past — while defending chief George's trip to the buffalo ranges around Fort Smith, in the N.W.T.

Some people had the idea, he said, that Chief George was taken north to be exploited, and it wasn't so.

He explained: "In the Northwest Territories young native people are forced to attend schools in the larger communities and the native cultural living is being denied these people. There is no one in their own image that the young can look up to.

"By introducing Chief Dan George to the high schools in Fort Smith, it gave the native youth a chance to see a native who has made a name for himself in the public eye and they could look up to him as a model.

"To give the young children an ideal — this was the aim of Fort Smith."

A dividend was a spiritual boost for the older generation.

Come-a-hunting invitations to Dan George, to Chief Albert Lightning of the Hobbema reserve in Alberta and to Joe Blyan, an Edmonton Metis leader, provided the first opportunity in a century for an Indian chief to kill a buffalo for his people.

Mercredi became involved in the arrangements because he had met Chief George in Saskatchewan when the actor, an Oscar nominee for his role in Little Big Man, was working in a National Film Board production.

He passed along the invitation on behalf of the town of Fort Smith — his home community — and Frank Laviolette, a Chippewyan Indian whose outfitters licence gives him the privilege of nurse-maiding well-heeled hunters in the buffalo country.

Laviolette is booked up before the special buffalo season begins and he uses only Indian help, an infusion into the economy, in taking charge of the hunting parties that go after the bison overflow from Wood Buffalo National Park with its protected herd of approximately 27,000.

As for Mercredi, delinquency bought him his first ticket south when he was a 12-year old in Fort Smith. He spent a year in reformatory in Portage la Prairie, Man., after breaking into the post office.

In Portage, at least he was introduced to the trumpet.

The second time outside the north he was a runaway off to enlist in the Canadian Army where he spent three years, all of his service in Canada.

Third time south he was bound for the penitentiary in Prince Albert Sask., "as a guest of the attorney-general" on a charge of assault causing bodily harm. He served more than two years and was discharged in 1967.

"Centennial year," he noted wryly.

Now, at age 30, he is head of the Canadian Fellowship Club, an agency of his founding which scouts jobs for people leaving prison and otherwise helps them to readjust to freedom. He is also a promoter of small companies.

The statistics of the law versus the Indian state the urgency of his self-imposed mission.

Overall, Mercredi said, people of Indian descent make up more than 70 per cent of the inmate population of correctional institutions in Alberta. In Lethbridge jail, he says, the figure soars to 80 per cent.

Why is it that so many Indians land in jail?

To start with, Mercredi said, there is a basic lack of understanding of the workings of the law. Then there is another basic problem — shyness.

"Half of the native people don't understand what they are being charged with," he said. "It's easier to plead guilty than fight the case. A person becomes shy and cannot talk."

Memories of his own childhood bring in other factors.

Even in his boyhood there was the spirit of competition and comradeship in Fort Smith — "but progress killed the town."

The women used to compete in turning out winter finery, to the point where even the dogteam harnesses were decorated with beadwork.

The men competed by seeing who could heft the heaviest load, run the best trapline. There was moonshining, sure, but — illegality aside — the operation of a still required more initiative than lining up outside the liquor store.

"Now," Mercredi said, "welfare and the liquor store dominate the economy."

Meanwhile, back at the buffalo hunt . . .

If the people of the Northwest Territories have their way, they are going to get Chief Dan George back north as soon as his schedule permits, to travel to as many communities as possible.

Ready for the Hot Air

By RUSSELL BAKER

As soon as the big H-Bomb test was over and it had been established that the earth was still here and reasonably sound, the government issued statements emphasizing that the blast had gone splendidly, just as federal scientists had always told us it would, and that peace had been the gainer.

The government had several other press statements, however, prepared and ready for issuance in various contingencies. One went as follows:

"As the Atomic Energy Commission repeatedly made clear in advance of the test, there was always the remote possibility that some untoward occurrence might eventuate in a test of this magnitude.

"The Commission is proud to report that its scientists were extremely far-sighted in issuing this cautionary qualification, for eventuation of the not unanticipated untoward occurrence has, in fact, occurred. A small quantity of radioactive hot air, bubbling to the surface of the Pacific, has risen into the Jetstream and is at present being diffused in the upper air around the earth.

"There is no reason for fear, however, since the maximum radiation dosage likely to result for the average individual will be no greater than he would get if he had his teeth X-rayed while wearing 14 wrist watches with luminous dials."

Another press release that, fortunately, didn't have to be released read like this:

"The seals and walruses that are leaving the sea and marching south into Canada following the completely successful Cannikin test, which will bring mankind one step closer to peace, are no cause for panic. This phenomenon had been cited by AEC scientists as one of the possible minor side effects that might result from the test. It, therefore, presents no great surprise.

"A few simple precautions are recommended: Children should not be permitted to touch any of these displaced sea beasts while they are giving off steam, as they may be very hot and, consequently, irritable.

"Towns that may be invaded by large numbers of steaming seals and walruses should not permit them to loiter or panhandle in the expectation that the United States will take responsibility for them by underwriting their welfare cheques. Neither seals nor walruses are eligible for welfare under present U.S. regulations."

A third possible release went as follows:

"The extraordinary ocean wave created by Cannikin comes as no surprise to the government scientists. The AEC had always conceded that such a wave was one of the possibilities that might result from the test.

"Because such waves are relatively frequent occurrences around the Pacific basin, as a result of natural forces, we know from experience how to cope with them. As they are rarely higher than 25 feet when they strike land, all persons living around the Pacific basin may readily avoid ill effects from the present wave by moving their loved ones, homes, and personal effects to a point 25 feet above shore level."

Then, of course, the government also had this one ready, just in case:

"The United States Government takes an extremely grave view of the Canadian demand for compensation for the five provinces rendered uninhabitable or subterranean by the immensely successful Cannikin test. Five provinces, very sparsely populated through much of their former expanse, is not too great a contribution to the cause of peace to ask of a country like Canada or, as it now calls itself, Remaining Canada.

"It ill behooves the Canadian government to greet this magnificent achievement for peace with demands that the United States reimburse her for a few lost provinces by removing the 10 per cent surcharge on imports.

"The Atomic Energy Commission has instructed its scientists to examine sites off Labrador with a view to conducting further thermonuclear triumphs for peace unless Ottawa moderates her hostility."

India Courts Chinese

By LEE LESCAZE

NEW DELHI (WP) — India is seeking to improve its relations with China and informed sources believe an Indian ambassador may soon be sent to Peking — the first since the 1962 war between the two countries.

Relations between India and China were not broken off during the war, but ambassadors were withdrawn and each country has publicly insisted that the other should make the first move toward improving contacts. However, China's entry into the United Nations and the crisis in East Pakistan appear to have spurred Prime Minister Gandhi to a more active attempt at rapproachement with Peking.

FAVORABLE

During her three-week foreign tour which ended Saturday, the prime minister said she hoped ambassadors could be exchanged soon. On her return to Delhi, she refused to speculate when India might dispatch an ambassador, but said she detected a favorable change in Peking's position.

China is an ally of Pakistan and has supported the Islamabad government in its attempt to crush the Bengali independence movement in East Pakistan. However, Indian officials have recently been encouraged by signs that China's backing of Pakistan is lukewarm.

They point to widespread press reports of Pakistan special envoy Zulfikar Ali Bhutto's recent trip to Peking which have said that Bhutto came away with less in terms of rhetorical and military support than he had hoped for.

CRUCIAL ISSUE

In the framework of the India-Pakistan confrontation, which is the crucial issue for Delhi, an improvement of relations with China at this time would be very useful to Mrs. Gandhi. It would win her increased support from the Indian political left and would be widely hailed as new evidence of Pakistan's diplomatic isolation, informed sources say. It would also further diminish the already receding fear that China might intervene militarily on Pakistan's side in a full-scale India-Pakistan war.

However, despite Mrs. Gandhi's hints, Indian officials insist that they are still waiting for a positive response from China. One well-informed official said that the question of who sends an ambassador first is no longer important, but stressed that China must commit itself to reciprocating if India dispatches an envoy.

NO WORD

No word has come from Peking, but Chinese diplomats have told questioners recently that China would match an Indian move to upgrade diplomatic contacts. Such a move would be in keeping with China's present foreign policy of improving its relations around the world.

Indian officials said last week that an Indian-Chinese rapproachement would not interfere with India's close ties with the Soviet Union, cemented in August by the signing of a 20-year mutual co-operation treaty.

A Soviet diplomat here agreed. "We think better Indian-Chinese relations would help increase stability in the subcontinent," he said.

There is no indication here, however, that an exchange of ambassadors would lead rapidly to a settlement of the Indo-China border dispute that led to the 1962 war.

REASSESSMENT

A leading newspaper, the Indian Express, last week called editorially for a reassessment of India's position and suggested that India agree to yield its claim to the Aksai Chin region of the western border in exchange for realization of its claim to the MacMahon line boundary in the east. Although India claims both, it has neither and such a settlement would, in fact, result in China yielding territory to India.

However, Indian officials said this week that India's position is unchanged from 1962 although India is willing to open new discussions of the border question.

WOMAN SLAMS CLUB HAND

IPSWICH, England (UPI) — When Mrs. Patricia Green picked up her hand during a game of bridge Friday she found she had drawn all 13 clubs — a chance of 158,753,389,899 to one, according to experts.

"I was so shocked I didn't play my hand very cleverly," she said later. "I just put the cards down and called slam. Then we all had a drink."

Grits Taunted on Leaked Report

OTTAWA (CP) — Amid taunts of "tattletale gray," Revenue Minister Herb Gray denied in the Commons Monday that an article in Canadian Forum magazine was based on the report on foreign investment he has submitted to cabinet.

Mr. Gray, echoing Prime Minister Trudeau's terse statement Friday, said the article "was based on only one draft" of a study prepared for official discussion prior to cabinet scrutiny.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said it was an "early draft of a study prepared for the government in connection with the whole question of foreign ownership."

But he added later that the published document is one of several before the cabinet.

In a series of oblique responses, neither minister would say whether the ideas for policing foreign investment outlined in the magazine document are the same as proposals under discussion in the cabinet. They did not say that the final draft of the study was substantially different.

SCREENING PROPOSED

Mr. Sharp at one point said the idea of a federal agency to screen the activities of foreignowned companies and to oversee investments was one of several methods proposed for control.

He also said the published reference to encouraging banks to invest more in Canadian industry was a matter proposed to the government.

In their replies, the ministers said a number of separate studies had been compiled along with the main Gray report and the published article was one of them.

The gold pen of a U.S. diplomatic attache flashed in the Commons gallery as Mr. Sharp fielded questions on the article, which the Forum said was a summary of the Gray report.

Conservative House Leader Gerald Baldwin led the assault, saying there was a fair suspicion that the government deliberately leaked the document "for either domestic or international political reasons."

"It was either a theft because of slipshod and slovenly security or the tattletale gray of a deliberate leak."

Both he and New Democrat Leader David Lewis sought, without success, to have the government release the Gray report, which has been before the cabinet since last spring.

Mr. Sharp also was asked whether the subject would be discussed at the federal-provincial conference under way here. He said the federal government did not intend to raise it.

Ed Broadbent (NDP—Oshawa-Whitby), asked whether bank regulations may be changed to ensure that more funds are invested in Canadian industry.

DOESN'T STATE POLICY

"It is obvious from what has been revealed that this is one of the matters which has been brought to the attention of the government," Mr. Sharp said. "But the government still has to make its decision."

The published report had been abbreviated and was not a statement of government policy, he said.

Prime Minister Trudeau and the government wanted to reach a decision on foreign investment "as quickly as possible." But he couldn't guarantee a statement before Christmas.

Mr. Gray, brought into the cabinet in 1969 to launch the major study, sat silent throughout most of the questions.

"I have no knowledge at this time as to how any information may have reached The Canadian Forum in an unauthorized way," he said, replying to a needling question by former prime minister John Diefenbaker.

Mr. Sharp said the RCMP hadn't, at that point Monday, been asked to investigate.

Gains Clauses Stalled

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition MPs tried in the Commons again Monday to trample government tax proposals dealing with agriculture.

This time the targets were clauses in the tax bill that would introduce a capital gains tax.

They opposed application of the tax to profits gained on the sale or bequest of family farms.

Last week, some opposition MPs talked the government into suspending debate on several other clauses affecting dairymen and ranchers, by making it clear they were prepared to debate the provisions indefinitely.

Opening the capital gains debate, Conservative finance critic Marcel Lambert (Edmonton West) offered an amendment that would exempt farmland entirely from the new tax on profits from investments.

The amendment would permit farmers to sell, give away or will their land without incurring a tax on the increased value of the land when it is transferred.

DIFFERS ON METHOD

David Lewis, New Democratic leader, agreed that family farms needed a break from the proposed tax, but disagreed on how to get it.

He said the Conservative amendment would lead to speculation in farmland, driving land prices out of reach of farmers who wanted to stay in business.

He recommended a three-part alternative: Exempt from the tax any land passed on to heirs who continue farming; exempt money earned from the sale of farmland that is used to buy another farm, and exempt money earned from the sale of land that is put into a pension fund.

Mr. Lewis also differed with Mr. Lambert on the general question of the capital gains tax.

Mr. Lambert said now is the wrong time for a new tax, which he said could be inflationary.

But Mr. Lewis wanted to go farther than the government bill, which would apply tax to only half a taxpayer's gains from property or stock-market shares.

WOULD TAX ALL GAINS

He said all capital gains should be taxed, the same way wages and salaries are taxed.

If the wealthy don't pay their share, Mr. Lewis said, the less wealthy and the less powerful have to carry an extra burden.

On the issue of the capital gains tax on farms, Finance Minister E. J. Benson said the tax would be based on the fair market value on valuation day — to be set for sometime this fall—and the date of transfer.

The so-called V-day value would be set by the owner and checked by the revenue department.

Stanley Korchinski (PC—Mackenzie), a rancher, said the V-day value should be based on local property-tax assessment.

Mr. Benson said he was surprised that opposition MPs would ask for such a dictatorial formula, rather than market value.

Mr. Korchinski said the government plan to establish a fair-market value would lead to expensive legal arguments.

He and Walter Dinsdale (PC —Brandon-Souris) said farm communities had already suffered under the present government, and now were facing the added burden of the capital gains tax.

Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo) agreed with that, but said the Conservative amendment would benefit speculators in farm land as much as farmers.

The opposition won a measure of support from the Liberal benches, as E. B. Osler (Winnipeg South Centre) suggested that heirs of farmers and small businessmen should have five years to pay off the capital gains tax on the property they inherit.

Elmer MacKay (PC—Central Nova) called it "morally wrong and politically indefensible" to impose a capital gains tax on top of death duties still levied by some provinces. That could add up to double taxation.

Canadian relations with the United States were a major feature of the daily Commons question period, as they were at the opening Monday of a three-day federal-provincial conference.

Molson Wants Beaver

An offer worth $50-$60 million has been made by Molson Industries Ltd., for the outstanding common and class A stock of Beaver Lumber Co. Ltd.

One of the older, more successful building supply houses in Canada, Beaver Lumber has 262 branches, assets of more than $41 million and in 1970 had sales of $78.5 million.

Molson offers $20 cash and four Molson class A common shares for each five common or class A Beaver Lumber shares held by Canadian residents.

4 MILLION SHARES

There are 4 million authorized common shares in Beaver Lumber, of which 3.14 million are outstanding. Of 100,000 class A shares, 78,369 are issued.

Before the offer was made in Torono, Beaver Lumber closed on Toronto Stock Exchange at $13⅞, up ⅛ after trading about 7,500 shares. The class A stock did not trade.

Earlier, the company reported nine-month earnings substantially higher, $2.6 million (81 cents a share) compared with $2.17 million (67 cents), on sales up from $57.69 million to $6.94 million.

EARNINGS

For all of 1970 the company reported earnings of $2.4 million, not counting special items, down from $3.22 million in 1969, or 74 cents a share vs. 99 cents. The special items added one cent a share to the 1970 earnings, and four cents to 1969.

A formal offer was to be mailed to shareholders Wednesday, said Molson, which will accept 100 per cent of any tendered.

Beaver Lumber has headquarters in Winnipeg and was founded in 1906. Its subsidiary companies are mainly in lumber, hardware, sash and door products, but it offers building loan financing through Beaver Lumber Acceptance Corp. Ltd.

President is K. C. Kennedy, of Winnipeg, and one of its 10-man board of directors is R. H. G. Harman, of Victoria.

PWA

Pacific Western Airlines Ltd. shareholders have approved a new convertible preferred stock issue designed to raise about $2.3 million for working capital and debt conversion.

The issue is of 120,000 no par value preferred shares at $29.50 each and earning a dividend of $2.20 a year. The shares, dated Dec. 1, are convertible into common shares until Dec. 1, 1978, or over seven years.

Gross proceeds of the issue are expected to be $3.54 million of which $1.11 million will reimburse the company for the retirement of 105,595 first and second 6 per cent $10 par value preferred shares.

For the first nine months of 1971 PWA's gross revenues rose to $34.56 million from $31.74 million a year ago and net earnings rose to $1.5 million ($1.59 a share) from $58,423 (two cents).

Issues

Four new debt financing issues filed by prospectus with the Ontario Securities Commission include Household Finance Corp. of Canada, Newfoundland Light and Power Co. Ltd., Home Oil Co. Ltd. and M.E.P.C. Canadian Properties Ltd.

HFC plans an offering of sinking fund debentures, no stated amount, via an underwriting by A. E. Ames and Co. and Harris and Partners Ltd. Newfoundland Light expects to offer $6 million in first mortgage sinking fund debentures through Merrill Lynch Royal Securities Ltd.

Home Oil plans an issue of convertible, subordinated debentures through Woody Gundy Ltd., and M.E.P.C. an offering of sinking fund debentures via Nesbitt Thomson Securities Ltd., Merrill Lynch Royal Securities and Burns Bros. and Denton Ltd.

Denison

Gross income rose 12.2 per cent in the nine months of 1971, reports Denison Mines Ltd. without specifying the amount.

Net income for the period was $7.69 million, $1.69 million higher than a year earlier, including $1 million from investments compared with $908,000 in 1970.

There also was income of $439,000 ($88,000) from its equity in the earnings of Lake Ontario Cement.

Gen. Bake

Net sales of General Bakeries Ltd. and subsidiary companies at $19.2 million in the six months ended Oct. 2 advanced 8.8 per cent over $17.67 million in the corresponding 1970 period.

Net income in the same period was $46,112 or six cents a share, compared to a loss of $119,247 (16 cents) in the period last year.

Allied

Consolidated net income more than doubled in the three quarters to Sept. 30 and year-end profit is expected to be better than a year ago, reports Allied Van Lines Inc.

In its second year as a public corporation the company had operating revenue of $131.5 million ($128.37 million) during the nine months; with direct expenses of $121.22 million ($119.56 million).

Net income was $1.26 million ($513,288) or $1.03 a share (42 cents). Retained earnings rose from $937,887 to $2.23 million.

Greyhound

Greyhound Lines of Canada Ltd. increased its earnings during the three-quarters ended Sept. 30 to $4.58 million from $3.2 million in the first nine months of 1970.

The 1971 earnings, which included $481,456 from the sale of land, were equivalent to 99 cents a share compared to 69 cents a year earlier.

Gross revenue rose to $39.6 million from $36 million.

Dynasty

Its 40 per cent equity in Anvil Mining Corp. Ltd. helped considerably to raise Dynasty Explorations Ltd. out of a nine-month loss a year ago and produce earnings of 57 cents a share in the period this year.

Interest income was about $60,000 lower at $335,000 and operations produced a loss of $106,000 vs. $20,000 in 1970.

But Anvil accounted for $1.84 million income compared with a $272,800 loss a year ago, leaving net earnings for the nine months this year of $1.69 million compared with $322,985 loss (11 cents).

Alta. Gas

Alberta Natural Gas Co. Ltd. earned $1.22 million ($1.01 a share) during the nine months ended Sept. 30.

In the period last year, the company had net income of $1.2 million ($1.11) with fewer shares outstanding.

Alberta Natural is a transmission company carrying gas for other firms, most of which export to the U.S., and the increase in net income was due mostly to higher rates of delivery.

BP Canada

BP Canada Ltd. has revised the terms of its proposed merger with Supertest Petroleum Corp. Ltd. in an attempt to overcome shareholder objections.

One change suggested by BP reduced the price to be paid by Supertest for BP Canada's petroleum by nearly 4 million new common shares from 17 million, raising equity attributable to ordinary holders in the merged company from 16.35 to 20 per cent.

Trading in shares of Supertest and an allied holding company, General Products Manufacturing Corp. Ltd., was halted temporarily by the Toronto Stock Exchange Monday.

Molson

Molson Industries Ltd. reports earnings up 11 per cent for the first half of its current fiscal year.

Earnings for the six months to Sept. 30 were $9.33 million (82 cents a share) compared with $8.4 million (74 cents) a year earlier.

Sales totalled $182.88 million an increase of 8 per cent from the corresponding period in 1970.

Pato

Pato Consolidated Gold Dredging Ltd. reports third quarter earnings of $145,608, compared with $426,426 in the same period of 1970.

For the first nine months of 1971, the company had earnings of $940,296, down from $1.46 million in the first nine months of 1970.

Rothmans

Rothmans of Pall Mall Canada Ltd. reports consolidated earnings for the three months ended Sept. 30 rose to $2.99 million from $2.4 million in the corresponding period of 1970.

Earnings available to common shareholders after provision for preferred share dividends were $1 million (67 cents a share) up from $492,000 (31 cents).

Sales increased 9.5 per cent to $61.3 million from $56 million in the comparative period last year.

McIntyre

McIntyre Porcupine Mines Ltd. reports a loss of $3 million ($1.24 a share) for the nine months ended Sept. 30, compared with a profit of $4 million ($1.69) during the period last year.

Revenue totalled $18.45 million, up from $11.38 million in 1970.

The company said results from its Smoky River coal mines in Alberta have been charged against earnings from April 1, 1971. During the six months ended Sept. 30, the operation lost $5.4 million.

Laurentide

Laurentide Financial Corp. Ltd. reports consolidated net earnings of $4.3 million for the nine months ended Sept. 30, an increase of $1.26 million or 41.5 per cent over 1970.

After providing for preferred dividend payments of $1 million common share earnings for the nine months were 81.1 cents compared with 49.1 cents in the period last year.

M. L. Goeglein, president and chief executive officer of the Vancouver-based institution, said all major operating divisions contributed significantly to profits.

TO ALL B.C. EMPLOYERS:

More than 3,000 people now on Social Assistance have registered for the new Job Opportunities Program of the British Columbia Government.

Each of these persons now holds a "Certificate of Opportunity" which guarantees that the British Columbia Government will reimburse you with 50% of their gross wages or salary, including normal fringe benefits, if they are located in a newly created job.

PLEASE DO YOUR PART:

1 Grant an interview to the person carrying a "Certificate of Opportunity" when he or she calls on you.

2 Try and create a job opportunity in your business for a minimum of 8 weeks.

3 By participating in the Job Opportunities Program, you not only save money in labour costs, you help increase the number of people in our Province earning their living, thereby strengthening the entire ecnomy.

NEW JOB REGISTRY IS NOW OPEN:

To help you get the type of employee you need, as quickly as possible, a Job Registry of all persons carrying "Certificates of Opportunity" has been opened. You tell us what assistance you need. We'll see that you are sent those kind of people for consideration.

In this area, phone 384-0571 or 382-6111 and ask for "Job Opportunities" or write:

JAPAN CAR MAKERS CURB DEALER SPREAD

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan's two largest automobile companies say they will halt expansion of their dealer networks in the United States.

The move came in the wake of reports that the United States is considering restrictions on importation of Japanese cars.

"We do not intend to increase the number of our company's dealers in the United States any further," said Katsuji Kawamata, president of the Nissan Motor Co., maker of Datsun autos.

A spokesman for the Toyota motor company said that the dealerships in America would be stabilized at the end of this year.

Nissan has 920 dealers and Toyota 792.

DISC May Spark Massive Exodus of Jobs to U.S.

BY ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — To the anguish of Canada and other trading partners, a bit of tax legislation is edging through the United States congressional mill almost unnoticed by the American public and press.

It's practically a carbon copy of a bill that died in the 91st Congress last year. But Finance Minister E. J. Benson and some observers here suggest it has a much better chance this time.

Benson says its passage could lead to a massive exodus of manufacturing jobs from Canada to the U.S. European spokesmen say it would put the U.S. in violation of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade. Japan has expressed serious concern over the "potential disruptive" effects of the proposal.

The object of their concern is a clause in an all-embracing tax package that would provide for establishment of Domestic International Sales Corporations, which could defer tax payments on much of their income from export business. Some critics say a DISC in fact could be only a "paper subsidiary," and that deferment in some cases would amount to a tax exemption.

COULD HURT CANADA

Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin of Canada has lumped it together with other measures as part of U.S. "restrictive trade measures." G. A. E. Couture, chairman of the Canadian Export Association, says the DISC proposal in the long run could be more devastating than all other recent U.S. economic moves. He says it could divert to the U.S. the new factories and plant expansions already in the planning stage for Canada.

Aimed at stimulating export business, the DISC scheme would give U.S. companies generous tax benefits to produce inside the U.S. items for export instead of producing them through subsidiaries in other countries, such as Canada.

The over-all tax legislation already has passed the House of Representatives. It probably will get to the Senate floor next week.

Last session, a similar provision attached to a broad trade reform measure also passed the House but the Senate finnance committee balked at the protectionist aroma of the whole trade package and the bill died automatically when the congressional session concluded.

COULD SLIP BY

While the country could get along without a trade bill, there is popular support for tax reform and if the bill passes—in one form or another—it is seen likely the DISC proposal would slip through with it.

In both cases, the technique has been to attach the DISC proposal to other legislation that overshadows it in public attention. For instance, this time attention is focused on the bill's provision of some $15.4 billion in tax relief for individuals and corporations over three years.

In that forum, DISC gets little attention. Yet it is not without its critics.

Saying the Nixon administration's silence on the scheme "cloaks the efforts of the treasury department once again to slide the DISC proposal into the tax law," Prof. Stanley S. Surrey of Harvard law school has termed it a billion-dollar tax loophole.

A DISC—to qualify a firm would have to receive 90-per-cent of its revenue from exports or export-related investments—could defer tax payments, although profits when distributed to shareholders would be taxed in the normal manner.

Because of complaints that companies would receive a windfall for exports they would ordinarily sell anyway, the House revised the bill to limit deferment to 25-per-cent of the level of export earnings in the base years 1968-70. In addition, however, 100-per-cent deferment would be permitted on incremental growth.

This move, observers suggest, enhanced DISC's chances. It is estimated it would reduce the loss in federal revenues to between $100 million and $200 million annually from the $600 million originally estimated.

Recently the Senate finance committee voted to keep the DISC provision but in a slightly reduced form.

While the Nixon administration urged deferred taxes on all of a DISC's export sales and the House version favored the 25?per-cent limit, the Senate committee voted to limit benefits to 50 per cent of export sales. It also decided to limit the life of DISC to 10 years and adopted language designed to discourage use of the funds on which taxes are deferred to build plants abroad.

LABOR NOT HAPPY

Organized labor is opposed to the scheme, arguing that it would simply be a bonanza for big business. And some economists have suggested that DISC will not accomplish its main aim—vastly increased jobs and exports.

Another aspect of the bill is a job development credit clause under which a 10-per-cent tax credit would be granted on new investments, but only if the equipment is made in the U.S. This, together with the 10-per-cent import surtax, "would practically paralyse the export to the U.S. of machinery equipment," the European community has charged.

Surrey, writing in the Washington Post, asserts that the DISC law would open a "billion-dollar loophole in the income tax through permitting U.S. exports—especially our largest corporations—to escape that tax."

Elaborating, he says the value of 15 years deferral—"at the least the period the treasury and business have in mind"—is just about worth the amount of the tax itself, "which makes deferral the equivalent of exemption."

Surrey, assistant treasury secretary for tax policy in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, notes the treasury has said the profits of a DISC, free from taxes, will be used to promote export activities.

"But the tax experts who study the technical details know that these tax-free funds can be used for activities that have nothing to do with exports," he argues.

Union Paper Folds

MONTREAL (CP) — The city's newest newspaper, Le Quotidien Populaire or "people's daily" announced Monday it would publish its 13th and final edition today.

The tabloid, which hit the streets for the first time Nov. 2nd, was published by union members affected by a labor-management dispute at the Montreal daily La Presse which temporarily suspended publication Oct. 27.

Six newspapers continue to publish daily in the city, three English-language and three French-language.

A spokesman for the tabloid said the decision was made after one union withdrew its support, and after financial losses which occurred when advertising declined following rumors that the dispute at La Presse would be settled.

But settlement in the months-old dispute seemed no closer today.

After a meeting Monday, the four unions representing five groups of production employees affiliated with the Quebec Federation of Labor who were locked out by La Presse in July, voted to reject a formula for agreement proposed last week by Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer.

Canucks Trade Pair For Three Rangers

VANCOUVER — The Vancouver Canucks today completed a major trade with the New York Rangers. A minor player swap with the St. Louis Blues may also be announced later in the day.

Canucks have traded defenceman Garry Doak and forward Jim Wiste to New York for three players — forward Dave Balon, who scored 36 goals last year for New York, veteran Ron Stewart and Wayne Connelly who, until Monday, was a member of the St Louis team.

Connelly, Jim Lorentz, and rookie Gene Carr of Nanaimo were traded by St. Louis to New York Monday for left wing Jack Egers, defenseman Andre Dupont, right wing Mike Murphy, and a player to be named later.

Key man in that deal from New York's standpoint was Carr, a 20-year-old, who was the Blues' No. 1 junior amateur draft choice last summer.

Carr had 38 goals and 104 points for Flin Flon Bombers, and has scored three goals and two assists in 14 games this year with the Blues.

"We had Carr rated at the top of our list last June," said Emile Francis, general manager and coach of the New York Team.

EARNED 60 POINTS

Balon, 33, is the key man in Vancouver's trade with the Rangers.

He had 60 points last year, is a 12-year NHL veteran, and in the past two years has scored 33 and 36 goals. He has four goals this season.

Stewart, 39, has been in the NHL since breaking in with Toronto in 1952-53.

For the past four years he has been with New York where he was used primarily as a penalty killer. He has played in 1,265 NHL games with Toronto, Boston, St. Louis and New York. Stewart has 271 NHL regular season goals plus 12 from playoff action.

Wiste, 25, is a centre who started with the Canucks last season but ended up in Seattle where he had 11 goals and 13 assists in 29 games.

Connelly, a right winger, broke into the NHL first with Montreal in the 1960-61 season, but he didn't become a regular until 1966-67 with Boston after spending the intervening years mostly in the Western Hockey League.

He had 13 goals with Detroit and St. Louis last season. His best NHL season was in 1967-58 when he tallied 35 goals and had 21 assists for 56 points.

SCORING CHAMP

Lorenz is a 24-year-old centre who won the Central Hockey League scoring championship with 33 goals and 68 points for 101 points in 1968-69 with Oklahoma City. He was also voted the most valuable player award that year. He scored 19 goals and had 21 assists for St. Louis last season.

Doak was drafted from Boston by Vancouver in the expansion draft June 10, 1970, and was considered their first pick at that time.

He has been injured most of this season, and only recently rejoined the club. He played 77 games for the Canucks last year, and originally broke in to the NHL in 1965-66 with Detroit.

WAYNE CONNELLY
. . . joins Canucks

Huck, a centre, was a star of Canada's national team before turning professional with Montreal in 1969-70. He saw little action with the Canadiens and was traded to St. Louis last season where in 29 games he scored seven goals and had eight assists. He has been playing in Denver this year.

Hargreaves was once considered one of the brightest of the Canucks' list of younger players. But he failed to stick last year, and after seven games was shipped to Rochester of the American League. He is a defenceman, and is 21 years of age.

Egers has two goals in 17 games for the Rangers this year, Dupont has been with Providence of the AHL, and Murphy with Omaha of the Central League.

"Big Deal' . . . 'Bad Deal' For Cougars and Kings

The weekend in review, and if it turned out to be a "big deal" for Victoria Cougars last week (Victoria 5, Swift Current 3), think what must be going on in Los Angeles at the moment. (Boston 11, Los Angeles 2. Wow!

Yes, it was only a few days ago that general manager Eric Bishop explained that he would deal for anybody who would assist the Cougars. But even by then, more than one newcomer was in the lineup, and two morewould be among those invited to play here on Saturday.

One of the parties of the first part was Wayne Bianchin, who has served his apprenticeship on the prairie road trip, and had distinguished himself. The new arrivals were to be Jerry Dudar and Barry Chernos who had been under the protective wing of Rudy Pilous at Brandon.

Bishop didn't explain that coach Fred Hucul would put these three chaps on one line together. How was he to know? But give Hucul some credit. He knew that both lads would be well trained. Pilous is a tough taskmaster and loves those fundamentals.

So Hucul left them together for their joint debut. And, lo, and behold, he came up with an instant hit. The trio got nine points, the Cougars won, and Biship's remarks could be recalled: "We're not going to stand idly by, and get clobbered."

But if the Cougars aren't just any old whistle stop in the west any longer, they still have some proving to do before they have a club that deserves to be called a contender.

A fact of life in their bid for fourth place is that they "have to beat Medicine Hat." That's another Bishop statement, and it makes sense, because the Tigers are in the Cougars' division, and ahead of them at the moment. Will the Cougars succeed? Off just one game, the unanimous opinion is in the affirmative. Big deal? It most certainly was.

'Defence is Knowledge' Disputed

Meanwhile in Los Angeles, the Kings' "big deal" has to be a "bad deal," and it owner Jack Kent Cooke is thinking dark thoughts about somebody, it is possibly general manager Larry Regan. He has come up empty in a bid to make L.A. a power in hockey.

It was Regan who said at the start of the season when the Kings were here: "Defence is knowledge" and that the Kings had secured much experience in the off-season, and this would stand them in good stead.

After all, hadn't the Kings been the highest scoring team in expansion history in 1970-71 and second only to Chicago in their own division in goals scored?

Yes, they had, and the Regan thinking was "if we tighten up the defence, we can't help but improve." Since then many things have happened, not all good for the Kings. They started slowly and since then have been in a slow trot, dead slow. Besides, they made that "big deal." They gace up their best young defenceman, Dale Hoganson, and three others, for Rogatine Vachon, once the pride of Montreal. For Hoganson it was a great chance, though he can't break into the Montreal lineup. For Vachon, it was a brand new shooting gallery, and no hope whatsoever. For Regan it has all been a frightening and a frustrating experience.

Speaking of Being 'Dead Last'

First, the Kings' vaunted "experience" has turned out to be a crew of old men who can't get the job done; second, that high scoring crowd of last year has not improved one iota, and the Kings are dead last as a team in golas scored; and now, the latest: the Kings have dealt off the one player, Dale Hoganson, who had a likely future, and whom centre Ralph Backstrom described here as "potentially an all-star."

What they're saying:

Bob Goldham, color man on the HL TV broadcasts from the east . . ." That Rick Martin certainly is playing well for the Sabres. He should be a shoo-in for the Calder." The Calder Trophy is awarded the NHL's top rookie. Goldham made his observation in the middle of October. The Calder is awarded in April, and there are a couple of fellows around who might argue the point — Ken Dryden, or Jocelyn Guevremont to name just two — even before then.

Meanwhile, it was nice to note that Victorian theme to weekend action in the Coast Soccer League . . . Victories by Gorge Molson and Vic West United point up the fact that now both can be recognized as threats for the championship . . . and perhaps now the fans will react out of a sense of duty . . . Gorge and Vic West United deserve it . . . theirs is a determination to make [illegible] two-team town and they're doing it . . . Also, Don Duguid apparently has retired as Canadian curling champion (if only temporarily) . . . Danny Fink of Winnipeg was skipping Duguid's old rink of Rod Hunter, Jim Pettapiece and Bryan Wood when they won the CBC championship last week over Hec Gervais . . . and in the football playoffs . . . stay tuned . . . time's up for today. . . .

DOUG PEDEN - EDITOR

Wayne Still Dreams Of Touchdown Glory

Considering the traffic through the centre of the line, Harris' weight is not formidable, but agility and power more than compensate.

When the Stampeders take on Saskatchewan Roughriders Wednesday night in an attempt to wrap up the best-of-three Western Football Conference final in two straight games, Harris says he will have to be at his best.

In his 11 years as a professional he has shown he is seldom bad or even mediocre.

TOP LINEMAN 3 TIMES

Each year he has been named to an all-star team and three times, in 1965, 1966 and 1970, he has been Canada's outstanding lineman.

His name is up for the award again this year.

In the first game of the WFC final, which the Stampeders took from Saskatchewan 30-21, Harris said Roughriders fullback George Reed ran strongly.

But to stop their ground game, the defence also has to keep an eye on Silas McKinnie and Bobby Thompson; the latter can be devastating if he gets outside on a sweep.

"They can do so many things. We've played them so many times we know what they're going to do, but never how they'll do it," says Harris.

"They execute their plays so well none is easy to stop . . . they make it difficult to adjust. They run a lot of play action passes.

"Lancaster is the key to the offence because he can read the defence so well that he mixes up plays and disguises in such a way that he keeps the defence off balance."

ANKLES BOTHER HIM

In the last couple of years, says Harris, his job has been tougher and compounded a little by injuries to his 33-year-old ankles.

But what really bothered him was revised blocking techniques, aimed specifically at the middle linebacker.

He usually gets double-teamed on running plays with the offensive centre and a tackle coming at him.

One hits him straight on and the other comes in a blind-side angle to knock him out of the play.

The play is effective, he says, and has forced adjustments. But with two men on him it leaves someone else with less to handle.

WANTS TO SCORE

Although Harris has contributed much to Calgary's success in the last few years, there's one other thing he would like to do for the Stampeders—score a touchdown.

"I guess it's always a linebacker's dream.

"The closest I came was in Edmonton a couple years ago when I ran a ball back to the one-yard line then was knocked out of bounds."

They All Voted For Bomber Ace

By The Canadian Press

Winnipeg Blue Bombers — led by Don Jonas as the unanimous choice at quarterback — dominate the offensive team chosen by the Football Reports of Canada in their balloting for the 1971 Western Football Conference all-star squad.

In selections announced today, Calgry Stampeders — with middle-linebacker Wayne Harris making it for the 11th consecutive year — got the majority of positions on the defensive team. Harris was one vote short of being a unanimous choice.

Bombers, who had the best offensive record and the second-worst defensive record in the Canadian Football League this year, placed seven men on the offensive team. British Columbia Lions, Saskatchewan Roughriders and the Stampeders won two spots each with Edmonton Eskimos shut out. There was one tie.

Stampeders, with by far the best defensive record in the CFL, won a similar seven spots on the defensive team with Edmonton and Saskatchewan picking up three each and Winnipeg one. B.C. did not place a man and there were two ties.

There were only two other unanimous choices — Jim Evenson, running back for B.C., and Dick Dupuis, defensive halfback with Edmonton.

Jonas, traded by Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Conference to Winnipeg in a pre-season deal, scored four touchdowns himself and passed for 27 others. He kicked 40 converts, 15 field goals and 12 singles for 121 points to lead the country in total scoring.

One of his favorite targets was Jim Thorpe, also traded to Winnipeg by the Argos, who fell one vote short of being unanimous choice as all-star WFC split end. He was 1970 EFC all-star flanker.

DON JONAS

WAYNE HARRIS

To win all-star quarterback recognition, Jonas had to beat Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan, who was last year's unanimous choice, won the job three years in a row and four of the last five years and was chosen Canada's outstanding player in 1970.

Hugh McKinnis of Calgary, unanimous choice at running back last year, got only two votes this time. Reed, who missed last year's list after five successive years on the team, is back. Evenson returns for a fourth consecutive year. Herron and LaRose are newcomers at back and flanker respectively.

Selectors, who had picked the now-retired Ted Urness of Saskatchewan at centre for six consecutive years, couldn't decide between Swift and Bark as a successor.

Bill Frank, for the second year in a row, dominated voting for the tackle spots.

On defence, Helton was back for a second year at tackle and LaGrone, who lost to Greg Pipes of Edmonton last season, returned for the fourth time in five years.

Shaw returns for a sixth appearance in nine years; it's a first time for McLaren but Gasser was an all-star last year.

Among the backs, it was a big debut for Dupuis. Andruski, who had a three-year string snapped last year, is back for the fourth time in five years. Larry Robinson made the all-star list once before — in 1965 — and Bennett is back for a fifth consecutive year. For Starks, it's a first.

OFFENCE

Flanker — Bob LaRose, Winnipeg.
Quarterback — Don Jonas, Winnipeg.
Guards — Jack Abendschan, Saskatchewan, and Bob Lueck, Winnipeg.
Tight End — Herman Harrison, Calgary.

DEFENCE

Tackles — John Helton, Calgary, and John LaGrone, Edmonton.
Middle Linebacker — Wayne Harris, Calgary.

HOCKEY TIPS

By Bobby Orr

Big players like Frank Mahovlich of the Canadiens have long skating strides that look graceful and easy—and give great speed.

Others like the Pocket Rocket Richard of Canadians, go for the short, quick strides.

You only have to look at the two players side by side to realize why they skate differently. Richard doesn't have the build for the long stride. He has to compensate for his size by quicker movements.

Everyone's characteristics determine his skating style. But it is better to try and lengthen the stride while young to avoid the choppy motion. It's a lot harder work to take short strides.

In the picture, I am rounding the corner and have just pushed off on my right foot. My back foot is used for this. The harder I push, the faster I skate. This is one sport where the coach can say to go out and really push — and mean it!

Remember to bend your knees slightly when skating. Don't be stiff legged. Otherwise, when someone gives you a stiff body check, you will go down.

And lean into your stride to get more speed. This will force you to push harder off your rear foot.

Romania Is Favored To Top Soccer Group

VIENNA (Reuter) — Romania emerged as the favorite to win Group One in the European soccer championship qualifying competition after beating Czechoslovakia 2-1 in Bucharest.

Czechoslovakia has completed its six-match group program with nine points, two more than Romania which still has to play a home match against Wales on Nov. 24.

Both Czechoslovakia and Romania have the same goal difference so the Romanians need to win only 1-0 against Wales to join Italy, Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union in the quarter-finals.

England, Belgium, Hungary and West Germany appear certain to fill the other four quarter-final places.

Chargers Trip Cards On Last-Second Kick

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) Dennis Partee's 45-yard, last-second field goal lifted San Diego Chargers over St. Louis Cardinals 20-17 in their nationally-televised National Football League game Monday night.

The kick that made the Chargers 4-5 in the American Conference West and the Cardinals 3-6 in the National Conference East was Partee's longest of the season.

"I didn't know how far it was," Paree said. "I didn't think about distance or anything —I was determined not to miss this one."

He said he felt his chance was one in three of succeeding from such a distance.

Partee's boot followed a game-tying St. Louis touchdown with 17 seconds left when Cid Edwards plunged for a yard. The Cardinals then attempted an onside kick, but they didn't recover and San Diego, with John Hadl throwing a 16-yard pass to Gary Garrigon, got field goal position and stopped the clock with a last time out.

INTERCEPT TWO

The onside kick plus an all-purpose effort by San Diego running back Mike Montgomery in his first NFL start, two interceptions from rookie safety Bryant Salter were factors in San Diego's victory.

Rookie St. Louis coach Bob Hollway said he called the onside kick "to regain possession of the football" and go for winning points. He also hoped the ball would travel to the San Diego 30 or 35 if the Chargers recovered, force them to use their last time out and wind up with a tie.

But Charger rookie Le Thomas fell on the ball at the San Diego 47.

Montgomery, who ran for 98 yards, passed for 33 and caught passes for 77—total offence of 208 yards—was a Charger hero.

After Bobby Howard intercepted a Jim Hart pass to seemingly kill the Cardinals for the night, Montgomery fumbled the ball to Cardinal linebacker Jamie Rivers and St. Losis marched to its tying touchdown.

Salter's second interception led to San Diego's score that brought a 10-10 tie in the fourth quarter.

Allen, Cunningham Spark Hoop Victory

Wayne Allen scored 21 points and Jim Cunningham added 19 more Monday night as Restoration Services edged Robertson's Men's Wear 79-62 in a Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball game at Colquitz Junior High School.

Robertson's, who were led by John Hart and Alex Brayden with 11 points each, led 38-32 at half time but couldn't contain Cunningham and Allen in the second half. Cunningham scored 13 points while Allen netted 10 after the intermission.

Robin Allen added 13 points for Restoration, which climbed out of the cellar ahead of idle Metropolitans with the victory. Robertson's missed an opportunity to break a three-way first-place deadlock.

By generally-accepted standards, Glen Meadows and Royal Colwood are the "tiger" courses in the neighborhood. Gorge Vale and Uplands fall in the average category, thus leaving Cedar Hill and Victoria Golf Club to apologize for their compactness.

Oak Bay's yardage is a respectable 5,948 while Cedar Hill, with a par of 65, goes 4,705. By comparison, Glen Meadows, the longest, can stretch out to 7,014 yards.

Golf is reaching a point where small courses will no longer have to apologize for their shortness.

Astute professionals and prominent architects notice a trend towards the development of "executive-type" courses with pars between 58 and 64. The trend is being hastened by large land developers who relish the idea of reducing golf course acreage and transferring the saving to the housing aspect of their development.

Gene Sarazen for years has been forecasting a future of small, tight courses that may be played in 90 minutes instead of an entire afternoon.

Now a Minneapolis golf architect predicts "a good portion of new courses will be family sized — par 66 to 67 — ranging up to 5,000 yards. This will enable all golfers to compete on an even basis."

And a builder in Phoenix, quoted in Britain's Golf World, declares "shorter courses — 6,100 and 6,200 yards from the middle tees — are being requested almost entirely. Executive courses of 4,000 to 4,500 yards and with pars of 64 to 66 are becoming very popular . . ."

Little Cedar Hill, you can see, is ahead of its time.

Oak Bay's Vaughan Trapp and Bruce McFarlane successfully defended the city open buttons, coming from behind Sunday to edge Ken Nott and Don Billsborough 2 and 1 at Uplands.

The Uplands combination was two up at the turn, but McFarlane and Trapp pulled even by winning 12 and 15. Trapp's birdie on the 16th hole put the Oak Bay team ahead for the first time.

And on the subject of button play, a new "open" format seems to be creating greater interest among juniors.

In the past, all junior partnerships had to come out of the same club. Under the new format, a lad from Cedar Hill, for example, now can select a partner from Gorge Vale. The juniors like the idea.

Among the more interesting changes in the new rules of golf, scheduled to take effect on Jan. 1, is a regulation that restricts illegal markings on all club faces.

Previously, the regulation covered only irons. It was designed, in the main, to prevent sharpies from doctoring the grooves in the club face in order to achieve greater backspin on the ball.

Nowhere, however, was there a regulation to cover woods. Now all-wood sets are on the market, and there is nothing to prevent a golfer from doctoring his No. 7 or No. 8 wood.

Originally, woods were designed for distance, and overspin was preferred to backspin.

The new words Jan. 1 will fill in the loophole.

Canada's major golf manufacturers have been presenting their annual merchandise show in a downtown hotel for the benefit of Victoria professionals.

But what's new in golf?

Don't ask me. Only the professionals are allowed to know.

CTV Lands Rights to Pro Football

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Football League announced Monday it has sold its 1972 television rights to CTV for $1,145,000, up six per cent over the price the same network paid for 1971.

A joint announcement by CFL commissioner Jake Gaudaur and president Murray Chercover of CTV said the CTV network service has been extended into such new areas as Timmins, North Bay and Sudbury in Ontario and to Kamloops and Saskatoon.

The contract takes in television coverage of regular season and playoff games in the Eastern and Western conferences plus the 1972 Grey Cup in Hamilton.

Some of the games will be transferred to the CBC network.

Detroit Obtains St. Louis Winger

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League said Saturday they have sold right-winger Bill Sutherland to Detroit Red Wings.

Sutherland, 37, was obtained from Buffalo Sabres last year and scored 19 goals. He had two goals in nine games this season.

Archie Browning Selected To Lacrosse Hall of Fame

ARCHIE BROWNING
. . . in playing days

Archie Browning has become the third Victoria athlete elected to the player section of the Canadian Lacrosse Hall of fame.

Browning, now an Esquimalt policeman, was one of 10 former players honored Monday as 14 new names were added the lacrosse Shrine at New Westminster.

Established in 1966, the hall is divided into three sections to bring recognition to builders of Canada's national sport and outstanding players from both the field lacrosse and box lacrosse eras.

NAMED AS BUILDERS

Named this year in the builders' section are William Calder and Les Dickinson, two veteran organizers of teams and leagues in the Vancouver area; former Canadian Lacrosse Association president Fred Conradi of St. Catharines, Ont., and Ontario sportscaster Rex Stimers.

Browing, Nanaimo-resident Harry Wipper, former New Westminster ace Harry Carter and Ontario star Wilfred (Bucko) McDonald, are entering the hall in the box lacrosse category.

Selected for greatness in the field lacrosse area are Ontario players Edward Sullivan, Mush Thompson and Blyth Brown, and British Columbians John Vernon, Thure Storme and Leonard Turnbull.

Once one of the game's most spectacular performers, Browning joins a pair of former Victoria Shamrock clubmates — Whitey Severson, his "gold dust twin," and Arnie Ferguson — in the lacrosse hall.

The blond speedster with the booming shot broke into senior boxla with New Westminster Adanacs in 1945 and quickly established himself as a star, collecting 61 points and earning the rookie-of-the-year award.

After spending four seasons with the Adanacs, Archie shifted to Brampton, Ont., for two campaigns and then launched an eight-season career with the Shamrocks.

Active in minor lacrosse circles after ending his career, Browning collected a total of 724 goals and 316 assists for 1,040 points in senior lacrosse. His total included 214 points for Brampton and 826 for western teams.

Wipper started his boxla career in St. Catharines and shared in four Mann Cup triumphs with Peterborough from 1951 to 1955. He joined Nanaimo in 1956 and led his club to the national title.

Ski Fair at UVic

University of Victoria Ski Club will present its fifth annual ski fair Friday and Saturday in the Student Union Building.

Since the ski fair is a public service, non-profit presentation, no admission will be charged. Displays will be provided by interested firms and ski areas for the purposes of promotion.

Hours of the fair will be 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m Saturday.

Other Clubs Wondering How to Handle Rangers

MONTREAL (CP) — How do you cope with a team that scores two goals for every one scored by the opposition.

That's the question being asked by the other 13 teams in the National Hockey League today about New York Rangers.

Combining the scoring punch of linemates Vic Hadfield, Rod Gilbert and Jean Ratelle with the goaltending of Gilles Villemure and Ed Giacomin, the Rangers, with three victories again last week, stretched their winning streak to six games and their undefeated string to 14.

The last New York loss was Oct. 13 when Boston Bruins defeated them a 6-1 at New York. Since then the Rangers have won 11 of 14 games while outscoring the opposition 68-27.

In their last six games the Rangers allowed only seven goals against while scoring 36. This lowered New York's goals-against average to 2.23 from 2.81. In 17 games so far the Rangers have scored 77 goals while allowing the opposition 38.

The Rangers are off to the best start of any team in the last 20 years. However, Boston holds the records for both the longest undefeated and longest winning streaks, going 23 games without a loss in 1940-41 and winning 14 consecutive contests in 1929-30.

But despite all the heroics by the Rangers, Boston's Phil Esposito is once again the NHL's scoring leader.

Esposito, who picked up nine points last week-including five in the Bruins' 11-2 romp over Los Angeles Kings Sunday — for a total of 30, one more than Hadfield and two more than Gilbert. All three have 13 goals.

HIGH JUMPERS PICKED AS TOP B.C. ATHLETES

VANCOUVER — Two outstanding high jumpers — Debbie Brill of Haney and John Hawkins, a University of B.C. student from Courtenay — have been named the British Columbia Track and Field Association's athletes-of-the-year.

Miss Brill, a gold medal winner at this year's Pan-American Games, is the holder of the North American women's high jump record.

Hawkins, gold medallist in the 1970 Commonwealth Games, is the only Canadian jumper to ever clear seven feet.

Two Vancouver Island boys were selected as the best in their divisions. Phil Olson, Nanaimo, won the bantam section award and Gordon Grant, Duncan, was picked as 1971's top athlete among tyke boys.

VIC HIGH TAKES PLAYOFF

Victoria High tripped Mt. Douglas 15-7 in a playoff Monday night to capture first place in the Lower Island High School boys' volleyball tournament.

Vic High and Mt. Doug forced the playoff with 4-1 records at the end of play in the six-school round-robin tourney.

Claremont High finished third with a 3-2 record, Belmont and Mount View were tied for fourth with 2-3 standings, and Oak Bay was last with a 0-5 record.

Vic High, Mt. Doug and Claremont advance to the Vancouver Island high school volleyball championship slated to start at 10 a.m. Saturday at Claremont High. From there, the top three teams will travel to Revelstoke for the B.C. high school championships on Nov. 25, 26 and 27.

Vic High's Bob Munn received the greatest number of votes from coaches picking the all-star team. Other members of the squad are Kenson Quan (Mount View), Oreste Fanuchi (Vic High), Russ McKee (Mout View), Rick Wardle (Mt. Doug), and Gavin Proudfoot (Belmont).

STEPS FOR HEALTH — 88-YEAR-OLD RETIRED DENTIST DR. JEROME G. HESS gave up his dentistry practice after 42 years because of his declining health in 1952.

Nine years later he started taking dancing lessons to get some regular exercise and ward off the aging process. It evidently worked. Last year Hess won a national fox-trot and tango title in Miami, Fla., and now — at the age of 88 — is training hard to defend his title in April. "I'll be ready," promised the retired dentist, who has been going to Fred Astaire Studios twice a week for lessons since 1965.

Introducing our two big cars for 1972. One very, very luxurious. The other trim and adventurous.

The luxurious Ambassador.

When you ask for the lowest priced Ambassador you end up with a standard priced car that's built with the kind of craftsmanship and attention to detail that puts it firmly in a class by itself. Because even the most inexpensive Ambassador comes equipped with luxury features as standard equipment. Air conditioning. Automatic Transmission. Power brakes. A V-8 engine. Features you'd like to have on any big car. Test drive an Ambassador SST or the even more luxurious Brougham series. Both series are available in hardtop, sedan or station wagon models.

The trim Matador.

Matador has the roominess of a more expensive car but its exterior dimensions have been trimmed to put it in the intermediate price range. You can compare things like headroom, hiproom and legroom and you'll find Matador's roominess is excellent value. You can also compare Matador's standard engine—a 232 cu. in. 6—and its line of optional engines—all the way to a 401 cu. in. V-8—and you'll find it can hold its own all over town. But Matador really excels in the handling department. Matador gives you a ride unique among the intermediates and handling is quick, surefooted and responsive.

Ambassador and Matador, both protected by the American Motors Buyer Protection Plan. The plan that assures you of 1. total manufacturing quality 2. real dealer concern 3. a revolutionary 12 months or 12,000 miles guarantee 4. a free loaner car from participating dealers and 5. a Hotline number for immediate action from American Motors in Brampton, Ontario should you ever need it.

Ill-Treatment; Not Brutality

LONDON (CP) — A government-appointed commission said today some suspected Irish terrorists, caught in the internment swoop in Northern Ireland last August, had their heads hooded and were forced to stand with feet spread and hands raised against a wall for periods totalling up to 43 hours, with breaks every four to six hours.

But the three-man commission concluded that these and other hardships, substantiated among a small group of the large numbers arrested, constituted physical ill-treatmtnt and not savage brutality as internees alleged and as the commission judged brutality to mean.

The findings were published in a government white paper and presented to Parliament by Home Secretary Reginald Maudling.

The commission's report also said that the substantiated charges of physical ill-treatment, which applied to the cases of 11 men, also involved special uses of electronic noises to confuse the suspects and leave them with a sense of isolation. During the early days of questioning, they were denied sleep and fed only on bread and water.

"The records kept by the doctors for each detainee on entering and leaving the (interrogation) centre all show loss of weight during the time spent there," the commission reported.

HANDLED ROUGHLY

Six other detainees received rough handling and were frightened by a deception exercise in loading them in and out of a helicopter at a detention centre. Another man was forced to undergo a surgical operation for rupture when he was accidentally hit by a rubber bullet during the August roundup.

Eighteen others suffered "hardship," the commission said.

In rejecting charges of brutality, which the committee defined as a savage form of cruelty, the inquiry concluded, however, there was insufficient medical planning in the Aug. 9 internment swoop and this had added to the hardship.

It emphasized, however, that men forced against the wall did not undergo the usual spreadeagling that troops demand during search of terrorists' neighborhoods.

"This was not a stress posture; that is, the legs were not so wide apart, the arms so stretched up or the weight of the body put forward to the same extent as in the search position."

HELD AGAINST WALL

Nevertheless at least 11 men spent long hours against the wall. The lowest time was nine hours; the highest 45.5 hours. All suspects were hooded again when under direct questioning or in rooms by themselves. The electronic sound or "mush" was loud enough to "mask extraneous sounds and prevent effective oral communication between detainees. The noise was neutral—no music or speech sounds were intruded."

Prime Minister Edward Heath, in one of his toughest statements yet on the Ulster crisis, has reaffirmed his pledge of an unswerving military campaign to eradicate terrorism in Northern Ireland.

"The attempt to destroy the fabric of society in Northern Ireland cannot be tolerated," the British leader said.

"Terrorism serves only to postpone the day of reconciliation . . .

"That terrorism must be brought to an end and that we are determined to do."

Fire Victim's Condition 'Good'

Bertram Alfred Richard Thorpe, 521 Simcoe, suffered smoke inhalation.

Victoria fire officials said the mattress fire in Thorpe's room about 4:25 a.m. was caused by careless smoking. Damage was minor.

Thorpe was dragged from his room by Constable Peter Talavs and Lieut. Roy Chudleigh who broke down the door. They found the man lying on the floor.

Other occupants of the rooming house were evacuated by police and firemen.

47 School Districts Go to Arbitration

VANCOUVER (CP) — Forty-seven of British Columbia's 77 school districts and their teachers were committed to arbitration Monday after failing to reach agreement on teachers' salaries for 1972.

John Hardy of the British Columbia Teachers' Federation said Monday that 24 districts had reached agreement before the Nov. 15 deadline, and six remained in doubt.

Last year, only two districts went to arbitration. Teachers and school trustees blame the provincial government's new cutbacks in budgeting for this year's deterioration.

However, Byron Barker, president of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association, said in an interview Monday that although the Greater Victoria district was apparently among the 47 referred to this did not mean the district was committed to arbitration. It had simply applied for arbitration.

"Some districts have given up negotiations and are just sitting back waiting to see what the arbitrators decide," he said.

"We're not at that stage. I'm sure we'd be willing to go back and talk again directly, although probably not until after some other settlements have been made so we can see what's happening."

They had applied for arbitration, he said, so that procedures would be ready if arbitration was necessary.

"The agreements — were going quite well until the government stepped in," Hardy said.

This fall the government announced a cutback in allowable spending in larger districts, and said it would limit its share of teachers' salaries to increases of 6.5 per cent.

The Vancouver settlement with an 8.9-per-cent increase, according to a preagreed formula, was seen by trustees as another reason for disrupting province-wide negotiations.

"When the expenditures of one side exceed the ability to pay of the other side you arrive at an impasse," said Bob Bowman, director of personnel and employee relations for the B.C. School Trustees Association. Many districts were nearing settlement when the government intervened, he said.

"Education Minister Brothers injected himself into the bargaining to lay down a low ceiling guideline," said Mike Midzain, B.C. Teachers' Federation assistant director of economic welfare.

"Without that intervention there would have been considerably more success in settlements."

Only 11 school districts actually have firm signed settlements. The others have made settlements contingent on other districts; they are "satellite" settlements.

Those completely settled range from an increase of 7.4 per cent in Prince George and Qualicum to Vancouver's 8.9 per cent.

In a category by itself is Fort Nelson, where the settlement is listed as 8.9 per cent, but where the 55 teachers have voted to return their increases above 6.5 per cent to the board to prevent dropping of five teachers. This will apply until June 30, 1972.

Thieves Surprised

Two thieves who broke into the home of Maurice Merriwether, 2561 Queenswood Drive, Monday afternoon were surprised by occupants in the house at the time.

Saanich police said the two men, believed in their early 20s, fled with about $20 cash after encountering the residents.

Police said the culprits entered the house through an unlocked window.

Man Wounds Officer Then Kills Himself

VANCOUVER (CP) — A man who escaped from the city jail in September while awaiting trial on a bank robbery charge robbed the same bank Monday and then took his own life after wounding a policeman.

Police said Bruce William Thornhill, 24, was stopped by Constable Ed Johnson, 35, as Thornhill drove away after robbing a Bank of Nova Scotia branch of $1,300. They said Thornhill shot the constable twice, in the chest and groin, and then fled into the basement of a nearby home.

Police surrounded the house and used tear gas in an attempt to drive him out. They entered the basement an hour later and discovered him hiding among some cardboard boxes in a stairwell. Police said Thornhill immediately shot himself in the head. He died in hospital.

DITCH YIELDS BODY OF SURREY WOMAN

SURREY (CP — The body of a 44-year-old Surrey woman, missing since Friday, was found Monday in a weed-filled ditch.

A search for the woman, Emily Margaret Goth, was begun Sunday after her bloodstained clothing was found at the side of a highway.

Police said she was last seen Friday evening leaving a north Surrey home in the company of an unidentified man.

A police search in the area where the clothing was found failed to turn up the body, which was later spotted by a truck driver.

Police said medical tests were under way to determine the time and cause of death.

Two Phones Serve Job Assistance Plan

People looking for work under the provincial job opportunities program will be able to call two Victoria phone numbers for assistance.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said Monday the phone service begins Thursday. Prospective employees and employers will be able to call 382-6111 or 384-0571.

The program is designed to help B.C. residents who have been on welfare for three months. Under the plan, workers who have been given job opportunity certificates can be hired in new jobs for between eight weeks and six months.

During this period the province will pay half the worker's wages, the employer the other half.

Welfare recipients who have certificates will be sent a list of employers in their area who have jobs.

Campbell said workers will be matched to suitable employers from information on their application forms.

PHONEY CANVASSER USING CANCER TIES

A Canadian Cancer Society spokesman has warned that a young impostor has been canvassing the Greater Victoria area saying he's collecting donations for the society.

Wilf Burton, executive officer for the Vancouver Island branch, said the impostor is described as being "about 15, good-looking, well-dressed and clean cut. He carries a box with Cancer Society written on it."

Burton said the society's campaign is held in April, not now, and there are no official collectors in the field.

"He sounds like a smart young man who's looking for some early Christmas pudding," he said.

Year Out for Students Urged by School Board

Greater Victoria school trustees mulled over two far-reaching innovations in education at their meeting Monday night, passed one idea along for further study and defeated the other.

The proposal trustees backed was one by Trustee Dr. Harold Knight that students take a year out of school at some point in their educational careers, thereby creating more space while allowing for them to determine what they really want to do.

Knight's proposal was passed along to the school district administration, which will carry out a feasibility study.

The proposal trustees turned down was one by Dr. Philip Ney that deans be appointed in lieu of principals in Greater Victoria schools.

YEARLY FEE

Ney had moved that the board ask the department of education's permission to appoint the deans, who would work under five-year contracts and would be paid a flat yearly fee over what they make as teachers.

The idea, he said, was to narrow the financial gap between teachers and administrators as well as bring in new blood to administrative positions.

His proposal was defeated by a vote of seven to two. Dr. Victor Rogers seconded the motion.

On the question of taking a year out, trustees agreed with Knight that the break would be beneficial to students and to the school system.

POTENTIAL

Knight said the idea has "tremendous potential" and is sure to enhance educations of young people involved.

Ney supported the motion, saying:

"There is no doubt the educational system can be more efficient. We have to give the kids time to find out what they want to do. There are kids going through now who aren't quite sure what course they are on, what they want to do with their lives, which of life's real challenges and problems are facing them."

He suggested funds be sought for the study from the Educational Research Institute of B.C.

PRINCIPALS

Ney's proposal for deans was attacked by several trustees because they said it was made prior to consultation with the people affected—principals and vice-principals.

Dr. Donald Shorting, Mrs. Daphne Temple and Knight all said the principals should have been asked their opinions beforehand. Ney said he had talked to many teachers and some principals about the proposal and that they supported his position.

Trustee Walter Donald said he disagreed with the idea of "recycling" deans back into teaching ranks after five-year terms. Talented people are hard enough to come by, he said, without getting rid of the good ones after a limited period on the job.

TEACHERS

Board chairman Allan McKinnon said he, too, is concerned with the pay difference of teachers and administrators.

He said, however, that Victoria has a good set of principals already and should keep them.

Ney replied that the deans could be worked into the system gradually, replacing retiring principals and vice-principals without displacing any from their jobs.

It was pointed out by several trustees that five-year contracts for principals and teachers was a proposal already before the government.

The board considered two other proposals and recommended both.

APPROVED

The first called for students to be able to select the teachers they wanted. It was Ney's proposal and received unanimous approval.

The privilege will be restricted to schools where computer capabilities are able to accommodate the practice, and to schools which desire it.

Ney said students would not always pick the most popular teacher, but the one they felt would teach them the best.

SECOND PLAN

The second proposal, from Knight, was a recommendation that the district look into the posibility of hiring several unemployed artists under government make-work plans to beautify area schools.

"Most of our schools are pretty bare-bones," Knight said. "These artists could add to the aesthetics of the schools with sculptures and paintings."

Knight said the district should go ahead on the plan if it did not cost the taxpayers extra money.

It was suggested unemployed authors, poets and musicians could be hired under the same plan.

TRUSTEES HOLD BACK HALF ASSOCIATION FEE

The Greater Victoria school board voted Monday night to remain a member of the British Columbia School Trustees Association, but with a rider.

Trustees are going to withhold half the year's fees until a reassessment is made following the association's annual convention in May, 1972.

The board's opinion was unanimous on the motion by Trustee Peter Bunn.

School board chairman Allan McKinnon had narrowed the possible alternatives to three: that the board remain in the body, paying full fees; that it withdraw from the body; or that it pay for the half year until the next convention.

Trustees felt that quitting the trustees' group would do more harm than good, since the body's new executive has had little chance to implement the recommendations of an organizational priorities study made earlier this year. The report called for sweeping changes in the association's administration and framework.

DOING JOB

Bunn said he is not convinced the BCSTA is doing the job it should, but that it needed to be given the chance to improve itself.

"The BCSTA could be an important facet of education in this province," Bunn said. "It hasn't been, but it can be."

He said he didn't have much confidence that many changes would be brought about by the people elected to the BCSTA at its October convention.

Dr. Victor Rogers said the BCSTA has become "rather unwieldly" but that the Victoria position should be a challenge for the new executive to implement the recommended changes.

OUR ACTION

"It's not as useful as it used to be," Rogers said. "Our action should help make it aware it needs to be revamped."

Dr. Carron Jameson said the BCSTA could be useful for such things as provincial bargaining with teachers and worthwhile presentations to government agencies.

McKinnon said he experienced a few "rather disillusioning moments" at the October convention, when trustees chose not to act on the recommended changes.

"We must keep the pressure on them or those changes will be shelved," he said.

Machines Fooled

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — A machine that returns coins in exchange for one-dollar bills has been accepting photocopies and returning genuine coins at Virginia Commonwealth University.

A spokesman for the U.S. Secret Service said copies of the face side only of one-dollar bills were made on an ordinary office copying machine.

The secret service spokesman said the counterfeiting had been going on "a week or 10 days, and it's been stopped." He said less than 20 bogus bills were fed into the machine. The change machines have been reset to "be more selective," he said.

Cabinet Backs SC Candidate

Stewart council voted unanimously Monday to appeal to the provincial cabinet an order-in-council which ordered the municipality to drop suit against businessman Peter Curran for failing to obey the municipal building bylaw.

Following a special inquiry requested by Curran who charged that the municipality had discriminated against his attempt to go into business, the municipality also was ordered to grant Curran a business licence.

Stewart Mayor Ian McLeod said today the inquiry's ruling undermines the municipality's ability to enforce its own bylaws.

"In the future how in the world can we enforce our bylaws when this man did what he pleased and got away with it," McLeod said.

The mayor admitted that the cabinet can force a municipality to stop court proceedings and said council does not intend to break the law "as Curran did."

INQUIRY

The inquiry was held in October under former deputy municipal affairs minister J. Everett Brown. His hearing took testimony from four people and lasted 2½ hours.

Brown ruled council had not discriminated against Curran, a Social Credit candidate in the Atlin riding in the 1969 provincial election.

McLeod said Curran built bunkhouses and a trailer kitchen unit in violation of the building bylaw. Curran also admitted before Brown's inquiry that he broke into the municipal sewer line without council approval, McLeod said.

Stewart's bylaw is based on the national building code, said McLeod, but Curran has been allowed to keep his buildings under regulations of the Canadian Standards Association which is not law in B.C. or Stewart.

NO COMMENT

Proceedings were begun against Curran in June but now are in the process of being dropped. McLeod pointed out the inquiry was called on the basis of only one complaint and found council did nothing wrong.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbeel said today Stewart can appeal "whenever they want." He had no other comment on McLeod's statements.

Curran's buildings are being used to house construction workers. McLeod said he has no political interest in the case, because he is not a member of a political party and has never run for anything other than municipal office.

Esquimalt Gives Nod to Backstop

Esquimalt Municipal council Monday night agreed to share with Greater Victoria school board the cost of relocating and enlarging a playground backstop at Rock Heights Junior Seconlary.

The project, which will cost the municipality approximately $500, will make the playground suitable for community use, and is in keeping with a sharing agreement between the municipality and the school board reached earlier.

Considerable debate preceded approval, with some aldermen expressing concern it could be considered a precedent. Their reasoning was that it qualified as a capital project while the agreement with the school makes allowances only for maintenance work.

Mayor Art Young, however, said he thought the council could "judge things on their individual merit."

In other business, council: Agreed to accept a recommendation from the Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee to contribute to an operating grant for the Victoria Self-Help Society. The Esquimalt share will be approximately $200 of the $8,780 sought by the society;

Received and filed a letter from Canadian Forces Base Esquimalt Commander, Commodore R. V. Henning congratulating the municipality for the performance of its fire department during two recent fires on the base.

Agreed, in response to a letter from Esquimalt Chamber of Commerce to keep merchants informed of parking restrictions which may be instituted from time to time.

Robbery Probed

City police are investigating the knife-point robbery of an elderly grocery store owner at Martin's Store, 758 Humboldt, Monday night.

Police said a young man with a knife took between $60 to $80 from Gus Martin, 202 Howe, the owner-operator.

The bandit fled on foot about 8:45 p.m.

Police said Martin was in the customer area of the shop alone but there was a girl working in the back of the premises unaware of the robbery.

Handful of Directors Charged With 'Backroom Politicking'

Chamber Exploited, Pollen Says

The Victoria Chamber of Commerce is a front for backroom politicking by a handful of directors who are wasting the talents of a capable business community, Ald. Peter Pollen said Monday.

In a canpaign speech to a Gyro luncheon, Pollen called the chamber attitude in civic affairs "symptomatic of the disease" Victoria suffers from.

Pollen's comments came in an apparent response to a chamber luncheon last week at which many people present stood up and applauded Vancouver developer J. A. Reid.

Pollen told his Gyro audience of about 60 the chamber is "full of very, very able, capable people" but it is a "front for the backroom boys" who are its directors.

And he added the chamber is "now hiding behind a woman's skirts, by the way," referring to chamber president Helen Baines.

He said ordinary members of the chamber should come out and take a direct interest in the affairs of the city. He recalled chamber executives last year wrote a letter to city council endorsing the Reid centre without ever taking a vote of the membership.

This letter was written by a "real estate scion" who made "completely unjustified statements" of support for the project.

(The letter was written during the time Philip Holmes was chamber president.)

He said the talent in the membership is being "stultified" by chamber directors.

Pollen said there has been no economic justification for the Reid development, despite repeated requests made to Reid. The Reid project would be part of a pattern of development that would one day end up killing the city.

"We have to face the facts that we are going to kill Victoria . . . if we don't smarten up."

Pollen said the city has been "starved" for information on alternatives to its development. He said some people "don't really want information because it gives them responsibility."

He said he is advocating creation of an advisory board of businessmen from the downtown district "to get these guys from the back rooms out" into the open.

Pollen said he had been called an "obstructionist" on city council.

He said the Reid centre was "self-destructive" and compared his alleged obstructionist role to "Scott Wallace stopping W. A. C. Bennett."

Brothers Can't Understand Teacher Pay List Refusal

Education Minister Donald Brothers today denied there was anything sinister in his request for a list of teachers' salaries, which was refused by Greater Victoria school board Monday night.

The board voted to withhold the list of teachers and salaries and some questioned the motives for the request.

TRUSTEES RESERVED

But today Brothers said he wanted the list only "to have this information available at my fingertips. I'd like to know just how much teachers are being paid."

Some trustees felt such a list could be used for an advertising campaign by the government to show how much money teachers get.

They pointed to the publishing of doctors' salaries by the Medical Services Commission of B.C. in March. The list, carried by several B.C. newspapers, aroused considerable controversy.

Brothers added that the school boards include only a total figure for teachers' salaries when they submit their budgets.

"I don't know why there is any question of making this information available to me," Brothers said. The same request for salary lists was made to each of the province's 75 school districts, he added.

AVERAGE SALARY

Brothers said he did know the relative position of B.C. and Victoria teachers in the teacher salary scale across Canada.

"The average salary for B.C. teachers is the highest in Canada," he said. "And Greater Victoria's teachers are the second-highest paid in B.C."

He said Trustee Peter Bunn, who made the motion to withhold the salary information "has always been an intrepid defender of the concept of full disclosure."

Brothers' request for a list came in a letter to the board, advising that the government would not be willing to share in teachers' salary increases of more than 6.5 per cent.

It asked that school board chairman Allan McKinnon have the board's secretary-treasurer "compile a list of the names of all teachers in your district with their salaries as of next year including increments, assuming that their salaries will be increased by 6.5 per cent."

However, several trustees pointed out the letter did not specify to whom the letter should be sent, only that it be compiled.

In fact, a list of teachers and their salaries is available to any member of the public under the Public Bodies Information Act.

"The minister could come right up here and get a list," trustee Dr. Carron Jameson pointed out. "He has the same rights as any private citizen."

VOTED AGAINST

Several trustees voted against the motion to withhold saying it is not possible to impute motives to Brothers' request before his intentions are known.

Bunn moved that the list of salaries be withheld "at this time."

"I'm wondering about the motives and end result of this request," Bunn said at the meeting. "I'd hate to see that bad situation where advertisements are bought to say how well-paid people are."

"I didn't like the way the doctors' situation was bandied about in the newspapers," he said.

'NO HARM'

Dr. Victor Rogers said it is impossible to tell what Brothers wants with the list, but even if it is for a newspaper campaign: "I can see no harm in that."

"Teachers are paid by public money," Rogers said. "It is the right of the public to know where their money is being spent, even if the worst comes to the worst."

"I can see nothing wrong with the whole list of teachers' salaries being published in the newspapers."

McKinnon said it is impossible to impute motives to Brothers' action but said "the danger is always there" of the salary list being published.

"It does seem rather unusual for him to ask for the names," McKinnon said.

Dr. Harold Knight noted that the minister's request for names was not actually worded as a request. "One wonders what is behind it," he said.

The motion to withhold the salary information was passed by a vote of 5-4.

FAMILIAR CHRISTMAS KETTLES of the Salvation Army, soon to appear on Victoria streets, are checked over by Mrs. Major Hugh Tilley. Contents of the kettles and mail donations will provide hampers and toys to needy families and treats for more than 1,800 persons in hospitals and other institutions in the area. Kettles will be ready for filling Dec. 10.

O-Positive Blood Needed

Three hospital patients, one of them in Victoria, have produced an urgent need for blood donors with O-Positive blood type, a local Red Cross spokesman said today.

Charles MacNeill, supervisor of the Victoria donor program, said there were only 85 donors at the clinic Monday, 40 short of the objective.

There are two patients in Vancouver hospitals with Christmas disease, a condition which requires massive transfusions, and a patient in a Victoria hospital bleeding heavily, he said.

He urged people, particularly those with O-Positive blood, to turn out to this evening's clinic, between 6:30 and 9 p.m. at Red Cross House, 1046 Fort St.

There are donor clinics in Victoria throughout the week which means in effect it is this area's week to supply almost all of the province's needs.

Clinics in major centres are held in rotation each month and blood donations go to a central Red Cross depot in Vancouver where they are then distributed to hospitals throughout B.C.

Wednesday's clinic is at Royal Roads Military College from 3 to 5:30 p.m. and 6:30 to 8 p.m.

Thursday the clinic is in the Georgian room of The Empress, from 2 to 5 p.m. and 6:30 to 9 p.m. The Saanich fire hall on Vernon Avenue is the site of Friday's clinic, from 9:30 a.m. to noon and 1:30 to 4:30 p.m.

Pollution Fighter Quits In 'Frustration, Despair'

Kurt Horn, president of the Cowichan Bay-Malahat Society for Pollutional and Environmental Control and provincial vice-president, resigned today "in frustration and despair."

Horn, a leader in the provincial anti-pollution campaign, said he had made the decision when aboard the Greenpeace Too at the time of the Amchitka detonation.

"I held back," he said, "thinking I might reconsider. I can't conceive of a future battle that will attain the power and calibre of the Amchitka fight. It still proved futile."

Horn, 40, said there was an increasing apathy and indifference to an environmental situation that was fast approaching critical.

He added there was no further point in expending his health, energies and money "in a totally futile battle."

Harbor Condition 'Serious' Following Minor Oil Spills

A "very serious" condition exists in the Inner Harbor following two or three days of minor gas or oil spills, Ald. Peter Pollen said today. Pollen told council's B committee jurisdictional problems have prevented attempts to clean up the mess.

But harbormaster Capt. Ron Newell denied any knowledge of any serious spills, as did Bob Baird, steamship inspector for the department of transport.

The matter rose before committee which heard arguments from Imperial Oil Ltd. representatives, who have applied for a 60,000-gallon marina tank farm on Huron.

Pollen said there has been no attempt to control spills in the Inner Harbor, but did not describe where the spills had originated. Pollen also told Fire Chief Eric Simmons he had last year advised the Victoria Advisory Planning Commission tank farms near the shore created a serious hazard.

Simmons said, however, the application by Imperial Oil included adequate facilities against the danger of spills or fire. He said the plans include the first built-in protection against fire on any tank farm in Victoria.

A bylaw to allow the tank farm to built is before council so a decision was not made today.

Both Baird and Newell said they had no knowledge of any oil spill that would cause concern except for the one occurred near the foot of the Johnson street bridge on the east side several days ago.

Source of that spill has never been determined although a full investigation was made. It was thought that it might have come from one or two storm drains entering the harbor.

He summed up: "I'm not getting out of the kitchen because I can't stand the heat. I'm getting out because the kitchen's on fire."

Ask The Times

Q. Can you advise what rank Mr. Trudeau attained in the services and which branch of the services he was in during the Second World War and the Korean conflict?—J. G.

A. The prime minister was enrolled for a time in the Canadian Officers Training Corps during the Second World War while he was studying law at the University of Montreal and later was in a reserve unit of Les Fusiliers de Mont-Royal. He saw no military service during the Korean War. Trudeau has been quoted as saying he was "kicked out" of the COTC for lack of discipline although other accounts insist he was not dismissed.

Former Doctor Fined $400

A former doctor, whose case was termed "very tragic" by Judge Edmond St. Jorre, was fined $400 today for possession of a narcotic.

John D. Good, 39, of 3975 Beal, earlier pleaded guilty to possession of a bottle of medicine containing the narcotic hydrocodone (dihydrocodeinone).

The judge said he felt the accused deserved a fine rather than a prison term. He noted that Good's case had been publicized.

Defence counsel Edwin Popham said earlier his client had imposed more punishment on himself than the court could impose.

Police found Good in a car Oct. 5 with a near-empty bottle of the medicine.

A policeman testified that the accused had phoned a drugstore and identified himself as a doctor using another name. The officer said the accused ordered the medicine as a prescription for another person.

The medicine was picked up by a person purporting to be the man named in the prescription.

Good was found in the car with the bottle a short time later, the officer said.

Bureau to Give Certificates

Gift certificates instead of hampers will be distributed by the Christmas Bureau this year so that needy families here will have "maximum freedom of choice" in planning their Christmas.

However, should a donor wish to provide a hamper, the bureau will provide the name of a family in need. Requests from recipients for hampers must be referred through a social service agency, public health, the Victorian Order of Nurses, a clergyman, a doctor or a hospital.

The bureau, sponsored by the Community Action Group, asks organizations and individuals planning to assist families to register as soon as possible.

Keg-Shaped Beer Bottles Likely to Go Following Talks

Canadian Breweries Ltd. and the B.C. Liquor Control Board will get together next week to discuss elimination of the company's distinctive Heidelberg keg-shaped beer bottle.

Canadian Breweries' Alan Branston said today he had contacted LCB chairman William Bruce immediately following an Ontario decision to do away with the keg bottles.

Heidelberg Brewing Co., a division of Canadian Breweries, has decided to drop the bottles in response to a request by the Ontario government, an announcement from the office of Premier William Davis said Monday.

The changeover to regular-shaped bottles was asked in the interest of standardizing all beer packaged in Ontario, an announcement said.

Heidelberg was introduced in 1970 and its keg bottle was designed as a marketing advantage — one that has worked well in B.C., where the newcomer is ranked at the top of retail sales with Molson's Old Style.

"We asked for the meeting with the board because the whole issue of recycling has become an important fact of life, one which must be taken into serious consideration," Branston said.

The meeting is set for next Tuesday.

Old Song to a New Arrangement

THEY LAUGHED WHEN Walter Gordon sat down to play, but his melody does seem to have lingered on. It's the theme song of the Gray report on foreign ownership in Canada, which by well-timed leakage made headlines last week.

Revenue Minister Herb Gray proceeds somewhat more moderately than the headlong ex-finance minister Walter Gordon was in the habit of doing. But the message is the same — a warning against the dangers of uncontrolled foreign investment and a pitch for a Canadian screening agency which would keep an eye on the performance of foreign-controlled companies operating in Canada.

It interests me to note that Gordon was still urging a Canadian watchdog operation when he addressed a Victoria audience in the fall of 1970. On that occasion, he predicted that the Trudeau government would come up with a developed policy on American control of Canadian business in a matter of months. This policy, he added too modestly, "would be based on the work of Revenue Minister Gray."

Since the gist of the Gray report has now found its way into the public domain, a certain amount of speculation is unavoidable.

Was the report leaked in the strict sense of the word?

Or was government itself indulging in the devious but frequently useful tactic of kite-flying as a roundabout means of acquainting us with the shape of things to come?

If so, we can wonder whether the Canadian Development Corporation — Walter Gordon's battered brain-child of 1963 — may emerge from the parliamentary works as an instrument with a dual role:

First, to act as a screening agency of the sort Gray has in mind. And second, to "buy back Canadian industry," as Gordon proposed.

Present Finance Minister Edgar Benson was much less blunt when he dusted off the CDC motion and laid it before Parliament last January.

It was designed, he said, "to help develop and maintain strong Canadian-controlled and Canadian-managed corporations in the private sector, and to provide greater opportunities for Canadians to invest and participate in the economic development of Canada."

If the Trudeau government is indeed giving us a repeat performance of Walter Gordon's song, it would be well for Canadians to be aware of the dangers implicit in a nationalism that might make our trading relations with the U.S. even less friendly than they now are.

At worst, it might be necessary for us to decide how proud, and how poor, we can stand to be.

But even with that extreme contingency in mind, I'm dubious about the effects of the remedy proposed by Premier Bennett at the Federal-Provincial Conference on the econmy in Ottawa Monday.

In what seemed mighty like a rebuttal to the Gray report, B.C.'s premier offered a brimming dose of Bennett think-big. In the course of the next 10 years, we should seek to achieve economic union with the United States.

I'm all for amiable relations with our large neighbor in trade as elsewhere. Before committing ourselves to so sweeping a union, however, it would be necessary to arrive at answers to certain questions.

For a start, we would need to know whether the U.S. had any desire to enter into an economic union of the sort envisioned by Premier Bennett. After all, in terms of advantages to be gained, the partnership might well seem pointless and even encumbering in American eyes. Better, perhaps, to do business with a Canada anchored in her role as a home away from home for American branch companies, a source of raw and semi-processed materials, and an importer of American manufactured goods.

Another question. If economic union were agreed to on terms acceptable to Canada, how long until pressure for a more comprehensive bonding began to make itself felt?

For if control of foreign investment has its dangers, so does union in any shape or form. That could get us gobbled up.

The Gray modification of the Gordon thesis may offer at least a partial solution to the problem of retaining a firm hold on our country while not unduly discouraging the foreign investor.

In any case, that cat is out of the bag, and it will be interesting to see what, if anything, Ottawa does with it.

Centre Helps Women 'Change'

family

WENDY DEY – EDITOR

TORONTO (CP) — Marnie Clarke says the Humber College Centre for Women has been organized in response to a restlessness among women.

She says women who are not content are realizing it is all right for them to want to change, to improve their lot in whatever way seems best.

"The 1950s were a period of adjustment. If you couldn't adjust, there was something the matter with you, not with society.

"Now a lot of women are feeling ill at ease with themselves but they're also saying, 'Gee, it's all right to want to do these other things.'

"We should be grateful to women's lib. It's partly because of them that women realize it's OK to think about politics or education, to want something more."

Mrs. Clarke is director of the centre that was set up by the continuing education department at the community college last spring. It was originally a pilot project to find out if there was a need for such a centre.

Mrs. Clarke says the centre is already operating an initial counselling service.

"We have women calling saying, 'I want to make changes but I don't know what I want to do.'

"We are going to do group counselling sessions where women can talk to each other as well as to a counsellor.

"I would like to see us do something about the serious financial needs of mature women wanting to re-educate themselves to get better jobs. Society almost makes it impossible. If they are on welfare and get money for education, they may lose their welfare. I know of a woman who can't afford $15 to take a course that would up-grade her qualifications.

"I would like to have a fund available. Perhaps women's groups with money for bursaries might want some of them to go to mature women.

"We now are working on a field of community development in an apartment complex with women who are not in a category where they can hop in a car and come to Humber.

"We want to use the recreation room in one of the buildings and maybe take Humber to them to set up programs they choose.

"I feel that a centre for women should act as a catalyst. It should get people talking about the problems of women.

"Because of the way we raise our girl children, they think as soon as they get married they're set for life. We should teach girls to look at what they'll be doing at 40.

The centre also puts out a periodical called Cycles that goes to schools, agencies and women in the community.

Mrs. Clarke is a wife and mother of two young children. She has been a teacher and a volunteer worker and she got her degree in history recently, after a number of years out of school.

Unions Must Help Secure Equal Rights

VANCOUVER (CP) — A two-day conference on women's rights wound up with adoption of resolutions aimed mainly at providing more female strength at the local union level.

Ray Haynes, secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labor, which sponsored the conference which ended Sunday, said unions must play a leading role in securing women's rights.

"This will depend on what comes out of your local meetings when you go back to them," he said.

Mr. Haynes underlined an earlier suggestion during the session that women should get involved in politics.

He pledged that the federation would do all it could to publicize inequalities, act on conference recommendations and work for legislative changes affecting the status of working women.

"This conference will only be a success if we take what we have learned and put it to use," conference chairwoman Lena Kress said.

"I hope each of you will be better equipped to take a more active role within your own local union and the trade union movement.

"Don't be just an activitst, but more important, be a good trade unionist. Don't demand equal recognition because you are a woman but because you are a dedicated unionist."

On Saturday, the union record concerning women was termed "a disgrace" by Grace Hartman, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

Mrs. Hartman said union leaders discriminate against women. Rate of pay for male union members is higher than for women in the same jobs and unions have fewer women in top positions.

Resolutions passed included the following:

- The B.C. Federation of Labor should encourage all affiliated unions to get rid of all regulationa discriminatory towards women;
- The federation should urge all union locals to hold seminars on women's rights;
- Women should get involved in union activities at the executive level;
- The federation should urge the Workmen's Compensation Board and future safety councils to work towards establishment of more safety features for women on jobs;
- The conference should be a semi-annual affair, first in a series of educational programs concerning women's rights.

Magazine criticizes Prince Charles

'Square Heir'

LONDON (UPI) — It's not that Prince Charles is a sartorial slob but he still comes out looking "slightly square."

So said the British Menswear Magazine Style in suggesting — ever so politely — that the heir to the throne take a style lesson from his great uncle.

The uncle was King Edward VIII, wo abdicted in 1936 and became the Duke of Windsor. He popularized the Windsor knot tie, the widespread collar and suede shoes in the 30's.

That's the sort of thing Charles should be at, said Style.

"The young Prince has never reflected any discredit on the British clothing trade," the magazine said. "But his establishment background has tended to project a slightly square image in terms of his age."

By using superimposed photographs of the Prince's head on models, Style showed just what a swinging Charles would look like.

Style said the Prince still is influenced in his dress by the "very strong personality" of his father, the Duke of Edinburgh.

Computer Teaches Deaf

EDMONTON (CP) — A computer has worked well in a test to teach deaf children how to read.

Vic Muller, director of the pilot project, said he is pleased with the results.

The 29-year-old graduate student in education received an $8,000 grant under the Opportunities for Youth program to develop a reading experiment for the deaf using the computer.

Mr. Muller, who has his master's degree in education and now is working on a PhD, was joined in the project by seven other students.

The aim of the program is to complement the present schooling for deaf children by giving them more extensive language experience and by helping them develop better skills in reading, Mr. Muller said.

"It is too complex to describe in 50 words. Essentially it is pairing words with pictures."

Two television screens are used to teach the deaf to attach word meanings to pictures. One screen shows the image, the other the words.

For example, a picture of a cat flashes on one screen with the word symbolizing that picture. The second screen flashes up to four words, one of which is cat. Using a light pen the child points to the appropriate word.

After he has touched the screen with the pen, the computer is signalled to flash a second set of pictures and so on until a series is completed.

If a child's choice is incorrect, the next picture still appears but the computer is programmed to tally the results.

If the child has not learned the material at the end of the series, the computer will take him through a program reviewing the material.

The computer decides on the basis of each individual child's response how rapidly he will cover the material.

The next step is basic language structures — an advance from words to simple sentences to more complex sentences.

"At present, we are developing the program so students can read simple sentences," Mr. Muller said.

"We are teaching the older ones eight years old and if it works, we will proceed to the younger ones six years old."

Eight Edmonton eight-year-olds were given the course this summer. The course now is available in the Alberta School for the Deaf.

Operation First for N. America

TORONTO (CP) — A surgeon repaired a dent in he skull of an eight-year-old girl at the Hospital for Sick Children last week in an operation believed to have been performed in no other North American hospital.

Dr. Bruce Hendrick, the hospital's neurosurgeon-in-chief, cut out the indented bone, turned it upside-down and sewed it back into Karen Maughan's skull. Karen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Maughan of Cavan, Ont., near Peterborough, was released from hospital Friday.

The bone, which had been pressing Karen's brain, now bulges out, but Dr. Hendrick said the shape of her skull will return to normal in about two months.

Mr. Maughan said Karen fell off her bicycle June 26. She showed no sign of injury at the time but her parents later noticed the dent in her head and took her to hospital. He said doctors told him she might suffer brain damage unless she underwent surgery.

Dr. Hendrick has performed the operation on several other children.

Deadly Bean Comes Back

OTTAWA (CP) — Christmas is coming and the deadly jequirity bean is back, this time as the eyes in a toy monkey shaped from a coconut.

The consumer affairs department, in a warning to parents, says, one-half of one bean is poisonous enough to kill a child who swallows it.

It urged anyone who has bought the novelty product — a coconut carving of an adult monkey holding a baby — to check the eyes of the baby monkey for the two beans and remove them.

The egg-shaped beans are a glossy scarlet with a jet black tip. They have been banned in Canada since 1969.

Care of Aged Big Problem

Mrs. Olive Wakeham enjoys playing piano

Frank Barby has a go at concertina

By ANN DUNSMUIR
Times Staff

The elderly are haunted by two constant worries — fear of outliving their savings and fear of becoming bedridden.

They cling to their homes for as long as they can, often refusing needed hospitalization.

"I've had to call the police to take some old people to hospital," a local doctor said. "They are afraid that once they are admitted they will never get back home."

This fear is often well grounded. Once an elderly person is unable to cope with the work of a house or apartment, there is usually only one alternative in modern society — some form of institutional care.

Moving in with children is seldom possible. Few of today's houses have an extra room. The spare bedroom that once harbored granny in her old age has vanished, just as the hired girl who helped with her care.

Most elderly people now sell their homes and move to a guest, boarding or nursing home.

They spend the rest of their days in a macabre race to the finish between failing health and shrinking capital.

One local woman knew what to look for when she had to find accommodation for her mother five years ago.

Looks not important

"When you see crystal chandeliers and brocade chairs in the living room, you can bet the old people aren't allowed to sit there," she said.

Mrs. Johnson (not her real name) passed up the more ostentatious homes and chose a somewhat shabby nursing home where the care and food were excellent.

"It's the attitude of the staff that matters, not the look of the place," she said.

"When I visit and find all the old people sitting outside in the garden I think of the struggle the staff has gone through to get them all dressed for maybe half an hour's sun."

Mrs. Johnson thinks it would be almost impossible for families to give the nursing care a bedridden patient requires. Her mother had suffered a stroke and needed constant supervision.

When the nursing home was torn down to make way for an apartment building, Mrs. Johnson's mother had improved to the point where she could move to a guest home.

Mrs. Johnson explained that a guest home provides some help with dressing and bathing, but guests are supposed to be ambulatory and fairly independent.

Private hospitals or nursing homes give 24-hour supervision and complete nursing care.

When a series of small strokes left her mother bedridden Mrs. Johnson once again placed her in a nursing home. The cost for her care was $350 a month with an additional $25 a month for drugs.

Drug bill dropped

She has recently been moved to an equally good but slightly less expensive private hospital. The bill for drugs has dropped to $13.

Mrs. Johnson said that her mother's money would soon be gone. "We are hoping to place her in one of the extended care hospitals before her money runs out," she said. Last September her mother was 50th on the list of applicants for Mount Saint Mary.

There are only two extended-care hospitals in the Greater Victoria area. Patients are covered by B.C. Hospital Insurance and pay only $1 a day.

If the 600 to 700 elderly people who move into the Greater Victoria area every year from other provinces all took sick at once they would fill the extended care beds available three times over. The total number of such beds at Mount Saint Mary's and St. Mary's Priory is about 200.

At present, 16 per cent of the population in the area is 65 years of age or older. Many are filling acute care beds in general hospitals because there is no place else for them to go.

Current figures are not available, but the telephone book lists 108 nursing, boarding and guest homes in the Greater Victoria area.

Mrs. Marolin Dahl, assistant to the chief inspector of community care licensing, said many elderly patients now paying high rates in nursing homes would "be eligible for extended care if there were only enough beds available."

Mrs. Dahl pointed out that many elderly people in guest and nursing homes are eligible for welfare payments up to $150 a month and more in some cases.

Brig. R. B. Weddell, who administers Matson Lodge, a boarding home subsidized by the Salvation Army, thinks there is a "definite need for more extended-care hospitals."

Virus Cancer Proof Expected in Months

OTTAWA (CP) — Proof that a virus causes some kinds of human cancer is probably only a few months away, says Dr. J. A. McCarter of the University of Western Ontario.

But this knowledge may turn out to be just as hard to apply against the disease as has been the knowledge that a virus also causes the common cold.

It was known for a long time that a virus caused poliomyelitis before Dr. Jonas Salk and his group found a vaccine that would protect against the disease.

Dr. McCarter was one of four members of the research advisory group of the National Cancer Institute of Canada who reported developments to the Canadian Cancer Society here.

He said that demonstrating that a virus causes certain human cancers will be an enormous step forward.

10 per cent of cancers

Nevertheless the fact must be faced that the virus may be involved only in 10 per cent of cancers and may prove to be a kind that cannot be made into a vaccine.

Another promising line of research involves the theory that the genetic makeup of human and animal cells includes substances which are triggered into a cancer virus by some chemicals.

Some cancers have been produced in this way in animals such as mice and in animal cells grown in the laboratory.

This "turning on of a virus in a cell where none was present before" may mean that no "cure" is possible for some forms of cancer.

The weapon then may have to be prevention through elimination of chemical agents that provoked this change in cells.

Results in March

Dr. A. A. Axelrad of the University of Toronto said that results will be known in March from trials in Canada and the United States of a mass test for bowel cancer, developed by Dr. Phil Gold of Montreal.

Queen's University, University of Alberta and the Montreal General Hospital are Canadian participants in the trials. In the U.S. they are Yale, University of Pennsylvania and University of Michigan.

Dr. J. M. M. Dante of Memorial University, Newfoundland, said new methods of giving radiation to victims of leukemia has added two years to the survival period.

It now stands at five years as a result of giving a dose of radiation to those whose disease had apparently been checked by drug therapy.

It was found that 30 per cent of patients with leukemia relapsed because brain and nervous system was untouched by drugs.

By giving a radiation dose to brain and spinal column after remission of the leukemia, life expectancy was lengthened.

HEROIN, LSD FOR PATIENTS

NEW YORK (AP) — Scientists reported recently the use of heroin and LSD to ease both pain and anxiety in patients dying of cancer.

They also heard a warning from a leading authority on death that psychopharmacologic agents must not be used as a substitute for human care.

The reports were made at a symposium on drugs and dying patients and bereaved, sponsored by the psychiatry department of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University and the Foundation of Thanatology of the Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Centre.

Dr. R. G. Twycross of London reported on the sue of heroin in hundreds of patients at St. Joseph's hospital for 10 years and at St. Christopher's Hospital since it opened in 1967.

The heroin is used in conjunction with close personal attention, Twycross said.

"Although diamorphine (heroin) may be an excellent, even unrivalled, potent analgesic," Twycross said, "it never has been, nor ever will be, the answer to all the problems of terminal care."

Given orally in most cases, the heroin, he said, causes less vomiting and nausea than morphine, often results in a return of appetite, enhances the patient's mood back toward normal, is more effective at relieving anxiety.

LSD has been used in an experimental program in the U.S., said Dr. Albert A. Kurland, director of the Maryland Psychiatric Research Centre, and Dr. Stanislav Grof, chief of psychiatric research at the centre.

It has been reported that the LSD can produce more tolerance to pain and a calm acceptance of inevitable death. There was "dramatic improvement" in 13 of 36 cancer patients, while 13 showed moderate improvement, seven were unimproved and three became worse.

Pesticide Use 'Restricted'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An administration-backed bill to tighten federal regulation of 60,000 pesticide products ranging from weed killers to housewives' bathroom sprays was approved by the House recently on a 288-91 vote.

Similar legislation is pending in the Senate.

The bill classifies some pesticides as safe for general use and freely available to all.

But in a new regulatory crackdown, it classifies as "restricted" some others, stipulating that they may be used only by trained applicators licensed by the states.

The legislation would give the Environmental Protection Agency the power to decide which chemicals should be placed in the restricted category.

Nearly 1 billion pounds of pesticides used annually would be controlled by the legislation. Farmers use nearly half of the pesticides to control insects, weeds and diseases attacking crops.

Consult a Lawyer For This Problem

DEAR ABBY: Am I some kind of nut? My husband says we should ignore the news that our 18-year-old son (I'll call him "Bud") and his girl friend, who has just turned 17, are about to become parents.

Bud doesn't want to marry the girl, but she is going to keep the baby anyway.

Bud is working, but is making poor wages. However, he said he paid some of her doctor bills, but he hasn't contributed lately because the girl refuses to see him. She is from a very poor family and is motherless, and I feel certain she needs help.

What do responsible parents do? I can't believe we should just sit back and ignore the whole thing. We can well afford to help her financially. Can you advise us? — Bud's Mother

DEAR MOTHER: First, consult a lawyer and learn what your son's legal obligations are to the girl and her child. And aside from that, any moral and financial support you can give the girl should be a generosity on your part. (P.S. In the meantime, try to make a man of your son. Your husband seems lacking in manhood himself so you can't depend on him.)

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I recently visited a marriage counselor for advice on saving our marriage.

During the course of the counseling, we learned that the counselor had been married twice and is presently in the process of getting his third divorce.

Now my wife wonders just how good a marriage counselor is who can't solve his own marital problems. What is your thinking on the subject? — Confused In California

DEAR CONFUSED: One should not assume that in order for a doctor to practice good medicine, he himself must exemplify good health. However, in matters of counseling, one would naturally have more confidence in a winner, so I think your wife's skepticism is understandable.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Wednesday, Nov. 17, 1971

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): New outlook concerns mate, partner, investment procedure. Emotions are intensified; nothing occurs halfway. Be receptive. You could receive offer which puts you on more solid emotional-financial ground.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Pace yourself. Don't insist, cajole or chide. Permit others to show their hands, have their say. Your role now should be that of careful observer. Emphasis is on marriage and public relations.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Be wary where apparent minor details are concerned. Take nothing for granted. Key is to be thorough. What appears simple is complicated — if you are careless. Keep medical, dental appointments.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be ready for change of scenery, variety of experiences, emotions. Opposite sex is involved. Creative juices flow. You overcome obstacles. Loved one pays meaningful compliment. Children bring joy.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Practical issues dominate. Accent on security in relation to home, property, domestic affairs. Strive to harmonize family situation. Make gesture of reconciliation. You'll be happier as a result.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): New moon position stresses short trips, dealings with relatives and neighbors. Pisces person figures prominently. Throw off secret fears, doubts. Express ideas, take notes. Plan for future.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): New financial arrangement works out in your favor. Insist on facts, inventory. Get what's due you. Some around you now are fast talkers. Realize you have authority on your side. Stand pat.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Welcome contacts, challenges; you are stimulated by one who expresses confidence. Accent original methods. Lead rather than follow. Lunar position coincides with success.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): New light shed on mystery. Puzzle pieces can fall together. Work behind scenes. Co-operate in charitable project. Remember one who is temporarily confined to home, hospital. Be considerate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Income from professional efforts could increase. New moon position coincides with greater pride, achievement. Cancer individual could play important role. Be aware of security requirements.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Utilize alternative methods. Analyze ambitions. You can go far — if versatile. Sagittarian can help you solve dilemma. Don't be afraid to ask questions. Some surprising, helpful answers come forth.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Favorable now for publishing, submission of plans, formats. Plan ahead. Look to future instead of brooding about past. Barrier to progress is removed — if you don't procrastinate. Act on beliefs.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are a powerful adversary and a loyal ally. You are not one for splitting hairs. You desire facts, not speculation or gossip. Some claim you lack sense of humor. But those who really know you disagree. If single, marriage is on horizon.

Woman Named Senator

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Senator-to-be Renaude Lapointe does not want to be known as Senator Renaude Lapinte.

"I have been in journalism for most of my life and have been known as Renaude Lapointe and that is the way I want to stay until death do us part," she said in an interview.

Miss Lapointe, journalist, civil servant and now a member of the Canadian delegation to the present session of the General Assembly, was commenting in an interview on the announcement by Prime Minister Trudeau last week that she has been appointed as a senator.

The short, charming 59-year-old French-speaking Canadian displayed no excitement over her appointment to the $18,000-a-year position in Parliament.

She said she will return to Ottawa next week to be sworn in but intends to remain here until the end of the assembly in December before taking her seat.

"I think Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Marchand want me to get Quebec women interested in politics," she said. She was referring to Jean Marchand, minister for regional economic expansion who has charge of Quebec affairs in the federal cabinet.

"Not many Quebec women are involved in politics," she said. "If I was 40 I would run for Parliament but at 59 I am too old for that."

She said she will attempt to improve the lot of women in all of Canada — not just Quebec. But she added that she is not a feminist.

"I never talk of myself as a woman," she said. "I always have worked as a man."

The work has been in journalism. Years ago she was writing for a Liberal party publication and got into one of her first fights over her work when she advocated the use of margarine.

She was a reporter for Le Soleil of Quebec City from 1939 to 1951 and for a time was a correspondent for Time magazine.

She left Le Soleil to join La Presse, the Montreal daily, and eventually became the first woman to join the editorial board of that newspaper. She retired early and joined the federal Indian affairs and northern deveopment department.

One of the little things you'll like about our pocket-size Pontiac is its price.

Ventura II Coupe

It's a smaller Pontiac.

Pocket-size.

So you get the qualities Pontiac stands for—like a Wide-Track ride—along with values you'd expect in a smaller car.

Like a smaller price.

Pontiac's Ventura II is big on the little things that matter.

Such as the hood, the doors and the trunk lid. They're all double-panelled for added strength. And the fenders. They're lined with inner fenders to fight corrosion damage.

And Pontiac puts it all together with rattle-free welds because any car that's a Pontiac must be quiet as well as strong.

Do you get the idea Ventura II is put together to last?

You get the idea. Pontiac figures an economy car should be built for years of economizing...or it isn't worth the money you save in the first place.

And that's one of the not-so-little things you will like.

You start saving money with the purchase price. And go on and on. Ventura II's standard 250-CID Six is a proved performer, refined over the years to make it even more reliable and smoother.

If you prefer V8 performance, a 307-CID V8 is available.

Both engines use no-lead, low-lead and regular gas. Economically.

One area where "little" is just not a Pontiac word is in the interior roominess.

Comfort comes in generous measure. Along with the luxury of cloth-and-Morrokide upholstery. All-Morrokide is optional.

If your choice is our two-door and you choose to sport it up even more, you can order all-vinyl highback front buckets of molded foam construction.

You can order a sun roof.

Even consider the Ventura II Sprint option with floor-mounted shift, special wheels and steering wheel, special outside mirrors and very special exterior side striping. Some economy car!

But that's what Ventura II is.

An economical six-passenger Pontiac that will make you proud for a long, long time.

GM MARK OF EXCELLENCE

Pontiac on Accident Prevention

A car can not, by itself, prevent accidents. But every '72 Pontiac has features designed to help prevent some kinds of accidents from happening. If you must pull over to the shoulder of a road at night, the four-way hazard warning flasher will alert other drivers that you are stopped. Your direction signal control has a lane change feature. And when you signal for an upcoming turn, the front side marker lamps will flash with the direction signal. Among Pontiac's many other accident prevention features are a dual master-cylinder brake system with warning lamp, self-adjusting brakes, dual action safety hood latches, wide-view inside mirror and backup lamps. But accidents can best be prevented by safer driving on everybody's part. Always drive carefully, defensively, and soberly. And have your car serviced and tuned regularly.

Tourist Question Facing Saanich Voters

Saanich taxpayers will be asked at the Dec. 11 municipal election if council should increase its financial support of the Victoria Visitors' Bureau and the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau.

But the referendum will not ask voters to spell out the actual amount of any such increase, Saanich council decided Monday night.

By a 6-3 majority council gave three readings to a bylaw setting out the question which will be put to voters. Aldermen Alan Newberry, Foster Isherwood and William Noel were opposed.

The question reads: 'Are you in favor of this municipality increasing its grant to the Victoria Visitors Bureau, the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau or any similar, non-profit tourist promotional agency from the 1971 grant of $5,000 (1-27th of a mill)?"

In its original form as presented the draft bylaw would have allowed voters to indicate the specific amount of any increase in the grant, expressed as a fraction of a mill.

But in the discussion it was agreed the question should be a broader one of principle.

The 1971 Saanich grant to the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau was $1,500—$500 less than the bureau had requested. The grant to the Victoria bureau was the full $3,500 it had requested.

WHOLE QUESTION

Voicing his opposition at second reading of the bylaw, Newberry said the issue was "far too broad" to be put to the electorate.

But he said he could support the motion if it embraced the whole question of grants in general; whether taxpayers were in favor of grants going to social agencies and community and cultural groups.

Newberry said in the past council has argued about the principle of giving grants to a variety of organizations and he couldn't see the logic of tackling just one aspect.

However, Ald. Edith Gunning said the motion under discussion was in an entirely different category from grants to social service agencies and cultural groups.

"The one we are talking about is a subsidy for our first industry, so to speak . . . an industry that is profit making."

The other organizations mentioned by Newberry were different because they could not exist without grants, and the community would be "simply bereft" if the support were cut off, she said.

Mayor Hugh Curtis said the fact that certain grants to agencies had been reduced on occasion did not necessarily mean they had been the subject of controversy within the council.

"But it seems to me that the one question which is certain to generate controversy, and not just within this chamber, is the one concerning tourism."

Curtis said he had "every confidence" in the voter being able to decide on the question, and he was sure the tourist industry itself would take the opportunity to explain its importance to the Greater Victoria area.

NOT CONVINCED

In an interview later Noel said he regretted that the mayor had not raised the referendum proposal earlier, so that the council could have challenged the owners of tourist attractions to debate.

"I am not convinced they are paying a fair share of their gross take back into tourist promotion," he said.

"If they could produce facts to the contrary then I would be prepared to think differently."

Council Undecided About a Dolls' House

Saanich council played — indecisively — with a dolls' house Monday night.

Some aldermen thought it could be a good thing for Saanich to have, others were definitely against it and others appeared undecided.

The polite argument centred on whether to allow zoning changes to a property at 1620 North Dairy Road so that it could be converted to a shop selling "collective dolls," antiques, curios and handicrafts.

INTRUSION

The municipal planner and the council's Planning Advisory Commission had recommended the application of Allan Heard be rejected, as it represented spot zoning and a commercial intrusion into a residential area.

Heard, present at the meeting, told council the cottage-type industry envisaged was well-established and prospering in Britain and other countries.

As examples of the type of product he noted that dolls could be turned out representing Churchill, Mussolini and Hitler.

Mayor Hugh Curtis interjected: "Who'd want a Hitler doll?"

Heard disagreed with the committee's view, commenting that he lived in "a very commercial area" directly facing the main entrance to a department store.

"In our front room we don't need electric light," he said.

Curtis said while he sympathized with the applicant, he had to point out that council was being asked to "move across a line from a strictly commercial shopping area into an area where none exists."

After further discussion council adopted a motion by Ald. Foster Isherwood to table the matter until it has received a further report from the numicipal planner and solicitor.

SPECIAL ZONING

This report will comment on the possibility of creating a special zoning classification to cover cottage industry and handicrafts activities.

Aldermen William Noel, William Campbell and Leslie Passmore opposed the motion.

In other business, council deferred to early next year consideration of the preliminary budget estimates for 1972 of the Greater Victoria Library Board.

It also agreed to the board's recommendation that the present branch library on rented premises in the Town and Country shopping centre, which will close when the new centennial branch library opens next spring, should not be relocated until 1973.

Council passed, without discussion, a recommendation from the public works committee that proposals be drawn up for a start on sewering the Royal Oak shopping centre and the Broadmead housing estate.

ELECT REGIONAL REPRESENTATIVE?

It is important for the man in the street to know who is governing him at the regional level and to have some say in that person's appointment, Ald. Edith Gunning told Saanich council Monday night.

She said she would also like to see candidates running for a seat on the municipal council and on the Regional District board at the same time.

But the alderman confessed she found the mechanics of such a proposition confusing, adding: "I just don't know how it is possible."

Directors on regional boards are either appointed directly by the municipalities or elected from the unorganized areas.

The council discussion arose from a letter from Gordon Campbell, 1515 Oakcrest Drive, suggesting that Saanich representatives on the board should be elected by the votes of Saanich taxpayers.

Mayor Hugh Curtis said regionalism in B.C. is in the process of evolution, and a change to electing directors "may come about."

Ald. Foster Isherwood supported the idea in principle because he felt the more powers the regional board assumed, the less communication and "rapport" it exercised.

"Someone should say what they are doing and why. There should be accounting once a year," he added.

The letter was referred to council's finance and legislative committee for consideration.

Moscow Master Spy Rudolf Abel Dies

MOSCOW — Soviet master spy Rudolf Abel, former top Russian agent in the United States, died Monday at the age of 68, usually well-informed sources reported today. Abel, who was arrested in New York in 1957 and jailed for 30 years but exchanged for Francis Gary Powers less than five years later, had been ill for six months with lung cancer.

WASHINGTON — Tom Forcade, a radical newsman who once threw a pie in the face of a member of a U.S. presidential commission on obscenity, has been denied a press pass to the White House on grounds that he may pose a threat to President Nixon's safety. Forcade, 28, roving correspondent for the Underground Press Syndicate, which sends weekly dispatches to radical left wing newspapers around the U.S. and Canada, said the denial is "politically motivated."

"They just don't want me in there asking embarrassing questions at the president's press conferences," he said.

MONTREAL — The Parti Quebecois has called a meeting of its 150-member council for Nov. 27 to deal with growing dissidence in the party. The meeting will focus on recent public insult-swapping between party leader Rene Levesque and Robert Burns, member for Montreal-Maisonneuve, who dissociated himself from an executive decision and took part in a demonstration Oct. 29 in support of workers protesting a lockout and subsequent closure of La Presse, North America's largest French-language daily.

SAN FRANCISCO — The authority of the United States Air Force to discharge a woman officer who became pregnant during nursing duty in Vietnam was upheld Monday by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. Capt. Susan Struck had appealed from a Seattle federal district court decision holding the air force regulation to be "reasonable and constitutional."

FORT MEADE, Md. — Former Capt. Ernest Medina testified Monday that he lied to Col. Oran Henderson about the nature and extent of civilian deaths when his soldiers swept through the South Vietnamese hamlet of My-Lai. "I was not perfectly candid with Col. Henderson, I withheld information from him," Medina told the seven-officer jury at the trial of his former commander, charged with covering up the incident. Medina, 35, now a business executive in Menominee, Mich., also admitted he once misled the Pentagon's inquiry nto My Lai and that his conduct had disgraced the military uniform. He quit the army after his acquittal in September of mass slaying charges.

TOKYO — Emperor Hirohito said today he acted as a constitutional monarch during the Second World War, but was sorry for some of the things that occurred. He said he acted to end the war on his own at the request of the then Premier Kantaro Suzuki.

"Prime Minister Suzuki left everything to my discretion to make a decision, but that decision was taken at the responsibility of the prime minister," the 70-year-old emperor explained.

Even Handel Has New Beat

HOLLYWOOD (Reuter) — Local record studios are cashing in on the Jesus revival among youth by bringing out two rock versions of Handel's Messiah for Christmas.

One is conducted by jazz star Cannonball Adderley and the other by a 26-year-old Englishman, Andy Belling.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

All Eyes Are on New Cancer Drug

It is good news that Dr. Samuel Danishefsky, a professor of chemistry at the University of Pittsburgh, has discovered a method of synthesizing (making in the laboratory) a drug being used experimentally in the treatment of advanced cancer of the intestine and rectum. The drug, Camptothecin, is in extremely short supply from natural sources. It comes from a tree, camptotheca acuminata, which is native to mainland China.

In the 1930s thousands of seedlings were brought to California for use as an ornamental plant. Then in the late 1950s, Dr. Monroe Wall, in North Carolina, found that the plant had anticancer activity in animals, and a great search for new sources of camptotheca began.

In Chico, California, government workers quickly began cultivating thousands of camptotheca seedlings, but unfortunately, it took some 6,000 pounds of the camptotheca tree to make only 600 grams of camptothecin (there are 4 grams in one teaspoonful), and those proved to be prohibitively expensive. The ideal solution was to be able to create the chemical articially in a laboratory, and this is what Dr. Danishefsky has finally been able to do. He has been working on the project since 1968.

Now, hopefully Dr. Danishefsky will be able to refine the process of synthesis, so that the drug can be tried more thoroughly on human cancers, and perhaps more important, they will also be able to produce a number of drugs that are related structurally to that of camptothecin. It is hoped that some of these relatives will be less toxic (poisonous) to man and more potent against the cancers. Now, at least 18 scientific teams around the country are engaged in attempting to synthesize large amounts of the drug. We will all now watch hopefully to see what is accomplished with the new drug.

PRE-SCHOOL VISION SCREENING

Recently, I had a column on the importance of testing the vision of very young children in order to save them from early loss of vision from such diseases as Amblyopia, or "lazy eye," a condition in which a child unconsciously gets used to seeing with only one eye. This may come as a result of having a "crossed" eye or a squint, or an eye that turns out or upward to downward to a greater than normal degree.

When this condition exists, the child does not see well because his eyes cannot work together properly. The use of the turned-out or turned-in eye has to be suppressed. One way of treating this is for the child to wear an eye patch over the stronger eye for a while, forcing him to make use of his weaker eye, thus making it stronger.

"Lazy-eye" can usually be prevented if it can be detected and treated BEFORE a child reaches school age, but unfortunately if not treated, it can lead to a permanent loss of sight in the affected eye. This can be a great hindrance to the child as he grows up. It is the effect of the two eyes working together, or binocular (bi meaning two, and ocular refering to the eyes) vision, that enables us to judge distances and depth, and to perform many tasks requiring co-ordination of the hands and fingers.

Now the great problem is to test pre-school children. According to the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, perhaps one in every 20 of these children has "lazy eye" or some other type of vision defect.

IT'S AN EXPERIMENT!
IT'S AN EXPERIMENT!!
IT'S AN EXPERIMENT!!!
What is? This advertisement is, that's what is! The experiment is two-fold. ONE, to see if there's a home or lot, or revenue property herein which will be answer to your dreams, and TWO, to see if you're REALLY INTERESTED ENOUGH IN FULFILLING YOUR DREAM TO READ ALL THE WAY THROUGH AND FIND OUT! For yourself! Ready? Set? Then let's go! How about a cosy suite, living, good revenue, fireplace, near sea, park and town? Spotless, excellent condition? ... full price only $24,950. Not quite right? Then try this, fine, modern, 3-bedroom, family home, on very large north Quadra lot. Well AGED BONUS of separate entrance, revenue suite renting for $100 mo. (It's a have your cake and eat it "bargain" at $25,900). Call Dick Batey, 592-4607 or 386-1361, and I'll serve up a viewing! Like living in a park? Super convenience, but don't like gardening (much)? So here's a spotless, as-new, 4-bedrooms, 2-bathroom beauty on Shelbourne near shopping, university, schools and only $25,950! Want something better? With a spectacular view? With 5 BR's, 3 bathrooms? 30' rec. room? Sundeck? And top-drawer quality and condition? No problem! Call me about a $49,500 Cordova Heights opportunity! Dick Batey, 592-4607 or 386-1361. Still better, you say? And waterfront to boot? Presto! No problem! Two lovely Landsenders, one of $55,000, the other at $97,500, and both worth every cent! Both have a lovely acre of land with private waterfront, the 55-er has 3 BR's, 2 bathrooms, the 97.5-er is ultimate luxury-crafted and has EVERYTHING, including it can please a following ground level swimming pool! Want more info or details? Still with me? But not yet found yours? So how about a lot? Say a superb virgin, timbered, near-sea and-marinas, paved cul-de-sac, sewered, Sidney lot, prime, one of V.I.A. sized — for $10,650? Or an unparalleled rock-headland matchless view. Landsend-acre, secluded yet convenient, and very, very unique, for only $29,900? Remember the name and number to call? DICK BATEY, 592-4607 or 386-1361. But perhaps just perhaps and it will depend on your personal preferences I've saved the best twosome for the tag-end! One is a virtually new, timbered, children-in-mind-designed, spacious, and distinctive, Broadmead home with 5 BR's, sufficient bathrooms, rec room, Inn-style LR, separate DR, and feed-a-family kitchen. A genuine Broadmead bargain at $44,950. Tother is a sort of close-in-Quadra ranch acreage with two houses many trees orchard and outbuildings, affair. Unbelievably close in (3½ mile circle) near University and a living-and-holding chance not to be missed if you can wangle it! Price? With almost 11 acres, less than $9600 per acre? There, see? you made it! All the way thru, that is! So call me if any, here, click; and call me if they don't maybe I'll find you one that will! Click. I mean, DICK BATEY, 592-4607 or 386-1361.

Waterfront Acre For Referendum

Central Saanich voters will decide in a referendum Dec. 11 if they want the municipality to buy a controversial waterfront acre in Brentwood for $53,100.

The area would be made into parkland with a senior citizens' centre possibly being created in a home on the property.

The decision came on a split council vote Monday night.

Alderman Don MacLaurin and Ken Stanlake, who opposed the referendum decision, announced later they will not stand for re-election.

More than 60 persons crowded the council chamber to support petitions for and against the land purchase.

Two weeks ago first and second readings were given a bylaw authorizing purchase of the Brentwood parcel known as the Brownlee property which contains a substantial house and 270 feet of waterfront.

BOOS, CHEERS

Mayor A. M. Galbraith frequently pounded his gavel to maintain order as council debated among boos and cheers the motion to put the Brentwood purchase to referendum.

"Over 1,000 people have indicated by petition that they are interested in this matter," Galbraith said. "It is the right of council to take this issue to the voters."

PROCEDURE DEFENDED

The mayor had earlier read a prepared statement describing events leading to consideration by council of the Brentwood plan.

The mayor named Messrs. Bolster, Dawson and McLister as "three public spirit individuals" who have purchased the Brentwood property and were offering it to council at the price they paid for it plus legal fees, taxes and bank interest.

Although Ald. Ted Clayards charged that the action of one alderman who had acted as a private individual during negotiations invalidated council's actions, the mayor defended the procedure, saying that legal advice had been obtained.

MOTION APPROVED

MacLaurin and Stanlake strongly opposed the referendum motion.

MacLaurin charged that council had passed on to other bodies a decision-making process. Information gathered at polls was, he said, very much suspect, depending on the political atmosphere and phrasing of the question.

Stating that he was not in favor of "ducking out of repsonsibility," the alderman announced he would not stand for re-election.

Stanlake, originator of the policy adopted by council in August to acquire recreational land with funds from municipal gravel sales, also said he would step down.

"I feel so strongly that this is what we should be doing," protested Stanlake, referring to purchase of the Brentwood property.

The alderman said he was very disturbed that the public did not have the true story, adding "we have the Colonist to thank for a good deal of this."

FEEL DUPED

Stanlake said he had personally surveyed the residential section on Sunday to ascertain local opinion on the proposed purchase.

"Most people didn't even know there was a house on the property and signers of the original petition against purchase feel duped."

Galbraith promised that full information on the property will be made in a letter to all taxpayers. The matter will also be discussed again at the all-candidate meeting before election day on Dec. 11.

The bylaw authorizing acquisition of the property was given third reading with Clayards and Ald. Margaret Salt opposing as they did the first and second readings two weeks ago.

Voting for the acquisition were Aldermen Percy Lazarz, Tom Michell, Don MacLaurin and Ken Stanlake.

MP Forecasts Long Fight

The right of Canadians to intervene in U.S. court actions will be tested by Esquimalt-Saanich MP David Anderson in his battle against the dangers of tanker shipment of Alaskan oil.

Anderson said Monday he and the Canadian Wildlife Federation would jointly seek the approval of a Washington court to be heard in a court action brought against the U.S. government by American conservation groups.

Herbert Pittle, a U.S. justice department lawyer involved in the case, said the Anderson action "raises some interesting questions" about the right of foreigners to join U.S. legal proceedings.

FIRST TIME

It is believed to be the first time a foreign citizen has sought to make such an intervention in American environmental court action.

Anderson expects a preliminary hearing on his application to be held in Washington within five days. Appeals could be carried to the U.S. Supreme Court, indicating a possible lengthy legal battle.

The MP estimated his chances of winning permission to intervene at "better than 50-50."

The original court action was launched against the government by three U.S. environmental groups — Friends of the Earth, the Environment Defence Federation and the U.S. Wildlife Society.

Anderson wants to make sure Canada gets Washington's "consideration of the great danger to our west coast if and when plans for the proposed pipeline are approved, and oil is transported along the coast by supertankers."

Legal grounds for such consideration may be found in the U.S. Environment Protection Act of 1959, aimed at protecting the U.S. ecology.

The courts must decide whether Canada also is entitled to environment protection under the act, Anderson said.

The U.S. has several times applied its own laws to subsidiaries of American companies operating in Canada.

'ON OTHER FOOT'

"The shoe is on the other foot now, and it may hurt a little bit," he said.

"These cases could be considered precedents. They have applied their law in Canada when it was beneficial to the U.S. Now we want them to apply American laws that favor Canada."

Legally, the litigants can seek to ensure only that the U.S. interior department consider the impact of the environment of the trans-Alaska pipeline and the tanker route before issuing the necessary permit to build.

DID ITS BEST

Anderson said Canada "did its best in the traditional diplomatic sense" to assure that its interests are taken fully into account before such a permit is issued.

But diplomatic efforts could not succeed "if one party isn't interested in replying" to the other's objections.

Anderson, chairman of a special Commons committee on environmental pollution, said the committee hearings last summer had concluded that the pipeline-tanker proposal would "profoundly affect" the B.C. coast.

"Environmental damage will occur from the tankers," the Liberal MP said without qualification.

His particular concern is the danger of collisions or oil spills from other causes as a result of tankers plying the international Juan de Fuca Strait, with its narrow passages and tidal currents, to reach a refinery at Cherry Point, Wash., near the B.C. border.

'HORRIFIED'

In Ottawa, the Canadian Wildlife Federation was busy today preparing a massive package of material to back up the action launched jointly with Anderson.

"We are absolutely horrified over the potential dangers of oil spills, Said Richard Passmore, executive-director.

"The navigational record of oil tankers around the world is terrible. There must be more testing of navigational equipment, more testing of personnel involved in oil transportation, and so on."

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the U.S. interior department is insisting that Canadian concerns will be "fully considered" before the department decides whether to approve the pipeline bid.

"We have had for three months now a large number of documents from various Canadian ministries and they are very much under consideration," the spokesman said.

CHAMPION CARRIER of all the Times' newspaper boys, Paul Poupart, 13, of 257 Ontario, receives congratulations from Times' publisher Stuart Underhill. A Grade 7 student at South Park Elementary School, Paul sold the most new subscriptions in a recent seven-week contest, winning top laurels and a 19-inch portable television set.

Trustees Scold Students

DUNCAN — Five members of the Duncan Students' Action Committee from Malaspina College at Nanaimo were scolded Monday night by Cowichan school trustees.

"You children should be ashamed for coming here tonight when we are trying to protect the interests of your mothers and fathers," said Trustee Stan Turner.

A plebiscite asking Cowichan School District residents if they wish to continue to participate in the college concept will be held along with the December civic elections.

Trustees, who have already pulled out of the college once due to a disagreement over the cost-sharing agreement, said they want guidance from Cowichan residents before they are asked to approve a construction referendum for the college next year.

David Mitchell, spokesman for the youths, said they appeared before the board in an effort "to relate to you the good and the extremely diversified possibilities of the college."

Mitchell defended the group's action in writing a letter to the editor of the Cowichan Leader several weeks ago. He said the students feel the board hasn't publicized equally the positive and negative aspects of the college.

"This group believes the board must change its attitude towards the college and tell the voters of the advantages such an institution has to offer—especially in the light of the amalgamation program which has been started between Malaspina and the Nanaimo Vocational School," he said.

"Rather than wasting your time here I suggest that you should be out enlisting community support," replied chairman Dave Haywood.

'NO MONEY FOR PEOPLE'

Municipal Affairs Dan Campbell today attacked the way federal funds to assist depressed areas are being used in Canada.

"The money is mainly going into administration and in programs which do little to assist Indian and non-Indian depressed areas," he told the annual conference of the B.C. Association of Non-Status Indians at the Empress Hotel.

He said the money is not getting to the people, but is mainly used to govern.

"We are pouring money into a pipeline but nothing is coming out at the other end," he stated.

He pointed out that since provincial governments signed the equalization agreement in 1964, $6 billion has been poured into depressed areas.

"The depressed areas have not benefited one iota," he said. "They are still with us."

Campbell said for 100 years the Canadian government has not changed its policy in assisting depressed communities most of all the funds going to govern.

He advocated a policy where funds would go directly to the people.

"Funds for people to help themselves," he said. "This is the policy we have adopted in British Columbia."

Heart Attack Killed Driver

A 66-year-old Sidney man who died in hospital Saturday 19 hours after his car crashed into a downtown building died of heart attack, coroner Edmond St. Jorre ruled Monday.

Archibald Davies, 9989 Fifth, died at St. Joseph's Hospital about 6:45 a.m.

He was the driver of a car that went out of control on Herald near Blanshard, crossed over a traffic median and slammed into the Morris Printing building, 1745 Blanshard, Friday.

St. Jorre, who made his ruling after an inquiry, said it had been determined the victim suffered a heart attack before the crash.

The coroner said the man said, "Oh my God," and slumped over the wheel just before the car went out of control.

Stream Clearing Begins

Vancouver Island trout streams will become more habitable for fish because of debris clean-up programs begun by the logging industry, the provincial fish and wildlife branch said today.

In its October report, the branch says several logging companies are clearing debris from the Qualicum River, Gold River and in the Chemainus area.

MacMillan Bloedel has agreed to a long term clean-up program on the upper Chemainus River, the branch says.

"Miles of stream which were previously littered with log jams and debris piles will eventually be restored to a much more productive environment for trout under this program," says the report.

Indian Chiefs Urged To Stop Quarrelling

British Columbia's Indian leaders were told bluntly today to stop quarrelling among themselves and work together for the common good of all Indians in the province.

At the opening of the annual convention of the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs in Victoria, Chief Dennis Alphonse of the Cowichan Indian band said there are many good Indian leaders in the province but they cannot work together effectively.

"The minute they get in a position where they can help the most people, jealousies and suspicions come into play," he said.

OWN ENEMIES

"We are undermining our leaders by petty politics. Are we going to fight among ourselves or work together? Are we going to build this organization or destroy it?"

Alphonse told the delegates from more than 170 Indian bands across B.C. that they are their "own worst enemies" and said instead of working against their leadership they should strive for the common good of all Indians.

He particularly urged the convention to take united action on one of its most important agenda items, the land question.

In an interview before the conference opened Chief Heber Maitland of Kitimat Village in northern B.C., one of the three members on the union's executive committee, said the question of Indian land rights would be discussed at closed sessions Wednesday.

"This is going to be one of the main issues of the conference," he said. "We shall be considering a land claims presentation which we hope to put before the federal government, and which has taken two years to prepare."

Improved health services, fish conservation, housing and education are some of the other subjects scheduled for discussion at the conference, which continues through Friday.

In an eloquent address at today's opening ceremony noted Indian author Dr. George Clutesi, of Port Alberni, paid tribute to those who had helped organize B.C. Indians to co-operative efforts over the last 50 years.

He also traced the history of native organizations in the province, leading up to the formation of the UBCIC three years ago.

Ald. Percy Frampton welcomed delegates on behalf of Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock.

Copters Hit Crowd

MONTEVIDEO (AP) — Two navy helicopters performing a public demonstration of rescue techniques collided in the air Sunday and fell on a gathering of spectators, killing at least eight persons and injuring others, officials said. The exercise marked the 154th anniversary of the Uruguayan navy.

Foster Home Policy Hit

A charge of discrimination was levelled at provincial and municipal welfare services for placing Indian foster children in white homes at the annual meeting of the B.C. Association of Non-Status Indians at the Empress Hotel today.

Tony Belcourt, president of the Native Council of Canada, said he is appalled at the number of Indian foster children who have been placed in white homes in Vancouver.

He estimated that more than 100 children have been placed with white families.

"The excuse for doing this is that they have a better chance for a better life," he said. "This is discriminatory. This has not been proven and such a policy should be stopped."

Trailer 'Theft' Case Dismissed

A Victoria county court jury was instructed Monday to return a verdict of not guilty against a 46-year-old man charged with theft when the judge said there was no evidence.

Judge M. L. T. Drake told the jury "there was not a scrap of evidence of theft" in the case of Budd Westley Lewis.

The trial lasted about two hours.

The case involved a trailer sold to Lewis by a Victoria couple for $1,000 on the understanding that he would re-sell it.

The accused took the trailer April 25 and evidence showed he resold it May 3.

He was charged with theft over $50 when he hadn't paid the couple the $1,000 by May 10.

Judge Drake said no evidence had been presented to show that any deadline for payment was set.

The judge said it was impossible to say that Lewis had committed theft by May 10 because he was under no legal obligation to pay by that date.

Prosecutor Alan Bigelow presented the Crown's case but was missing his two key witnesses.

Court was told the Victoria couple who sold Lewis the trailer were in California. Testimony they had given at a preliminary hearing in provincial court was read into the record.

Defence counsel R. D. Wilson moved for dismissal because the prosecution had not proved theft.

Drake made his remarks after Bigelow and Wilson argued the dismissal motion with the jury out of the room.

Leaf Color Changes Disrupted by Frost

It was not until the middle of this month that the truth about our fall color suddenly became clear — this year it was in many instances disrupted by the two frosty nights back in the last week of October.

Until that time all was well, though the mildness and late rains had many trees and shrubs flaunting unseasonably green leaves.

Horsechestnuts, apples and willows were among them; the native dogwoods and poplars; and the garden shrubs weigela, philadelphus and Magnolia soulangeana. All these had maintained green coloring instead of gradually ripening their leaves in preparation for leaf fall.

The result has been as observed in several areas which experienced the two nights of sharp frost, the green leaves were frozen on the trees or the shrubs.

Instead of maturing through the customary stages of color preceding leaf-fall, the frost-damaged leaves are still hanging on the plants. A somewhat similar, though more devastating, situation occurred in November, 1955.

Technically, the frost this year is only partially responsible for the brown leaves; the bright morning sun that followed played its part as the rays burned through the frost coating each green leaf.

In some cases, the liriodendron (Tulip-tree) was one, a few of the strangely truncate leaves had assumed the typical clear yellow of fall. These dropped to the ground after the frost since maturity was reached and leaf stems were ready to separate.

But the remainder, which were still green, merely turned a soggy brown as the sun struck them and remain on the trees as this is written.

No doubt the winds will remove them as they become more brittle.

Some parts of the Greater Victoria area escaped this type of damage, but I have noticed it in several parts of Saanich and out into Colwood. The nearer to salt water the less frost effect was experienced.

How the trees and shrubs will react in spring remains to be seen then; only a scientific horticulturist could have all the answers for the many different native and cultivated plants affected.

Noticeably free of harm are the broadleaved evergreen shrubs. Rhododendrons, pierises, camellias, skimmias and drimys all are in perfectly normal November health.

But first-year seedling camellias, each having produced a pair of new leaves since September, had the new leaves browned by the sun after the frost.

These observations may help you to account for some of your own garden puzzles.

SOLUTION WEDNESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

By and large, National Championships are won by those who possess great technical skill in both bidding and play. Psychological strategy — in the form of "putting one over" on less astute opponents — is also an important requisite for the attainment of victory. And, of equal importance, is the ability to capitalize on blunders made by error-prone adversaries.

But, at times, National Championships are determined by pure gambles, in which control of one's destiny lies not in his own hands, but in the hands of the opponents. The latter theme is illustrated in today's deal. The hand arose in the Men's Team-of-Four event, held during the National Championships of 1969. Neither side vulnerable. North deals.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	7♡(!)	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ace of ♠.

It is rather obvious that South's opening bid of seven hearts was a pure shot in the dark. The success of this contract depended not only on the failure of the opponents to cash a diamond trick immediately, but also, if that hurdle were overcome, on South's being able to dispose of his losing diamond. In all fairness to South, however, he felt that his team was behind in the match, and that he had to take a gamble.

The opening lead of the spade ace was ruffed by South, after which West's trump was picked up. South next cashed his clubs, on the fourth of which he discarded dummy's jack of diamonds. He then ruffed his losing diamond, and claimed his grand slam contract.

As is evident, if West had been clairvoyant, and had led a diamond initially instead of more mundane ace of spades, South would have been defeated at trick one. Certainly, however, no one will fault West for his election to lead the spade ace.

When the deal was replayed, East opened the bidding with a pre-emptive call of three diamonds. South, figuring that he had a sure diamond loser, abandoned any hope of reaching a makable grand slam, and bid six hearts directly. West, having the feeling that South would fulfill his contract (how right he was), decided to take a "sacrifice" at seven diamonds. This contract was doubled, and defeated by four tricks, for a score of 700 points to North-South.

Rhodesia Bound

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (Reuter) — British Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home headed for Salisbury Monday for what could be a final attempt to break the six-year Anglo-Rhodesian independence deadlock.

In Rhodesia, there was an atmosphere of anxious waiting as the two governments cleared the decks for a week of crucial talks.

The next few days could show whether the long-sought settlement of the independence dispute, started by Rhodesia's seizure of independence in 1965, is within reach.

Sir Alec was due in the Rhodesian capital Monday afternoon, heading a top-level peace-seeking mission and scheduled his first meeting with Prime Minister Ian Smith soon after.

LEG-SHAVER UNIMPRESSED

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Barber Guy A. Mudd is claiming a world's record for shaving 58 pairs of women's legs in one sitting but he is quick to admit that the number is unimpressive.

"I had aimed for 500 pairs in eight hours and 58 is a far cry from that," Mudd said after he spent the last 2½ hours of the record attempt without a single customer.

"Of course, I still can claim the record for 58 since it's never been done before," he said.

Duncan Plans December Start On $50,000 Park Project

DUNCAN — City council hopes to start the $50,000 Rotary Park development in December, Mayor Jim Quaife said Monday.

He said the city will utilize the federal-provincial winter aid program where the city can recoup 75 per cent of the actual work costs.

He said the sum is a tentative figure until professional parks and community planner Clive Justice from Vancouver can draw up a plan along with all costs and a breakdown of labor costs so council can determine how much the city will have to raise.

"As soon as he can supply us with those figures, and indications are that they will be available by the end of the month, we will make application to the federal-provincial program. It is conceivable that work could start in December and we could work until the end of May," Quaife said.

30 ACRES

Council endorsed in principle last month a resolution to develop Rotary Park, which consists of about 30 acres on the Cowichan River in the McKinstry and Campbell Street area.

Although the Duncan Rotary Club gave the park to the city in 1966, arrangements for the transfer into the city's name could not be completed until 1970.

Park development plans basically include hiking and playing areas as well as a new senior playing field suitable for soccer, rugby and Canadian football; a fish spawning channel; and possibly a swimming pool.

HUNTER KILLED BY FALLING TREE

QUESNEL — Thomas Bruinsma, 33, of 91 Larch, Lake Cowichan, was killed by a falling tree Sunday while on a hunting trip 30 miles northwest of here.

RCMP said he and his companions were chopping down a tree which fell on him.

Bruinsma, a mechanic with McKenzie Logging Co., is survived by his wife Joan, and four children, his parents Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Williamson of Cumberland, and six brothers and two sisters.

An inquest has been ordered.

Haywood to Seek Seat on Council

NORTH COWICHAN — Cowichan school board chairman Dave Haywood announced today he will run for an aldermanic seat in North Cowichan in the Dec. 11 elections.

Haywood said he intends to continue as a school trustee until his term expires in 1972, but he will not remain board chairman for another year.

"I think other people on the board are looking forward to being chairman, Haywood said. "However, I would like to remain as a trustee until several critical developments involving the school district are finalized. Should I be elected and the demands of the two offices become too great, I will, of course, review my continuation as school trustee."

There will be three two-year and one one-year aldermanic positions open in December. Ald. George Whittaker has resigned one year short of completion of his term to run against Mayor Gerry Smith.

While Ald. Jim Roome has announced he will not stand for office again, incumbents Margaret Robertson and Tom Burge will run again.

Ron McKinnon, Peter Idema, Henry Bepple and Archie Stevenson will also compete for the council seats.

Course Excluded

A replotting plan for roads in the Ardmore district of North Saanich will not include the golf course.

A printing error in the Times Monday had come out: will now include the golf course.

Fine of $500 For Assault

DUNCAN — Kenneth Gordon Roesch, 19, of Duncan, was fined $500 Monday for assault causing bodily harm.

Provincial court judge Lanee Heard said, "This type of conduct has to be stopped" after he heard evidence about the assault of Jerry Thomas Cumpston on Oct. 9 in a Duncan cafe.

SQUATTERS SLIP AWAY

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — The last of the squatters have moved away from the Long Beach area, part of Pacific Rim National Park.

The squatters, who had lived in makeshift driftwood shacks along the beach, were ordered by park officials to move out of the park by the end of September but about 80 persons were given additional time to move.

Fluoride Vote Set

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — City council decided Monday night to conduct a fluoridation referendum as part of the Dec. 11 municipal elections.

It will be expression of opinion only, and council will not be bound by the outcome. Fluoridation was defeated by Port Alberni voters in a 1958 plebiscite.

TRUDEAU-PHIL ACCORD FINGERED

Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi said Monday he is glad to see that Prime Minister Trudeau agrees with him about the availability of jobs in Canada.

Trudeau said on the weekend there are lots of jobs available in Canada for people who are willing to travel to get to them.

Gaglardi said he has been saying that all along, and used the occasion to urge B.C. workers to go to the Peace River area, for instance, where many jobs go begging.

There is a serious shortage of saw filers in the north and mechanics of all kinds, Gaglardi added, urging people with skills to get out into "God's great nature" to seek the jobs.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Rene P. Pepin walked into a downtown car rental agency Sept. 25 in an RCMP tunic and trousers and tried to rent a car.

But the 22-year-old Pepin was not an RCMP officer and Monday he was convicted of impersonating a police officer.

Judge Edmond St. Jorre fined the man $50.

Defence counsel Robert Heath said, arguing for dismissal Monday, the Crown had failed to prove the intent of the accused or that he used the uniform "in a manner likely" to cause someone to think he was an officer.

Heath said the accused was more a "Don Quixote-like character" at the time because besides the RCMP tunic and trousers Pepin was wearing an Apache belt with tassles, laceless shoes, a "weirdly-colored" shirt and an ascot. The lawyer pointed out that Pepin had long hair and did not have an RCMP hat.

Heath called the affair a "harmless, drunken frolic" that Pepin became involved in with friends during a drinking bout.

Prosecutor J. W. Anderson noted that when Pepin was asked by Harry Dunn of Avis Rent a Car, 800 Douglas, how long he had been in the force, he answered five years, pointing to a star on his tunic sleeve.

Dunn, when testifying last week, said the accused said he was with the Colwood detachment and had just come off the night shift.

He said Pepin was trying to rent a car about mid-day.

Dunn said he was uncertain of the accused's status as an officer and was going to phone the RCMP Colwood detachment. He added that when Pepin couldn't produce an RCMP identification card, the car-rental deal fell through and the accused left.

City police officers testified that they spoke to the accused at his home at 847 Inskip later Sept. 25 and recovered the tunic and trousers.

Pepin testified that he had been drinking through the night with friends before the incident occurred.

He said he collected uniforms and was given the tunic and trousers by a step-brother who is an RCMP constable in another province. He had been given the uniform by the brother with a warning not to wear it.

Frank R. Typlychnuke, 31, of 568 Yates, was sentenced to six months in prison when he pleaded guilty to breaking, entering and theft.

Court was told that the accused took a 19-inch color television that he wrapped in a bedspread from a room at the Tally-Ho Hotels Ltd., 3020 Douglas, about midnight Nov. 13.

He entered the room by taking a screen off an outside window.

"If I was sober I would never steal a peanut," Typlychnuke told the judge.

He had a criminal record.

INDIA CLAIMS 135 KILLED IN ATTACK

NEW DELHI (Reuter) India said Monday 135 Pakistani soldiers were killed when 3,000 men attacked an Indian border post in West Bengal last Friday.

A government spokesman said many Pakistanis were wounded and captured during the day-long battle. Indian casualties were much less, he said.

There has been no report from the Pakistani side of a major action this year.

The scale of the action reported by the Indian spokesman would make it the biggest clash to date in the series of border incidents that followed the build-up of troops along the Indo-Pakistan border.

NEW FACES at the Greater Victoria Public Library are Mrs. Barbara Lowther, left, who was appointed branch co-ordinator Oct. 18, and Donn Carmichael, who is director of the new Oak Bay centennial branch library, due to be officially opened Dec. 18. Formerly documents librarian in the serials division of the University of Victoria, Mrs. Lowther received a Canadian Historical Association award for a biography of British Columbia history from 1849 to 1899. She received her library sciences degree from the University of British Columbia. Holding a similar degree from the University of Ottawa, Carmichael recently retired as a lieutenant-commander in the navy.

Victorian Junque Reclassified

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — The Victorian era, long the Cinderella of the art-collecting world, has received the accolade of respectability from one of Britain's leading authorities on fine art.

The time has come to cast a fresh appraising eye on great-grandma's florid porcelain ornaments, ornate parlor furniture and all those vast, sombre oil paintings of stags in Scottiss glens and ladies in Greek draperies reclining in marble halls. The cream of such objects may eventually end up in Sotheby's newly-opened London salesroom devoted entirely to 19th century works of art.

This imposing new auction centre, first of its kind in the international art market, is housed in a colonnaded Regency building in the exclusive Belgravia district—striking proof of the pace at which serious interest is growing in the once-despised artistic products of Queen Victoria's reign.

Marcus Linell, the saleroom's enthusiastic, 31-year-old director, says the object of Sotheby's Belgravia, as it is known, is "to present the 19th century in a fair and balanced way" by drawing together under one roof such aspects of Victorian art as silver, furniture, paintings, porcelain and even toys and mechanical devices.

STUDY CATALOGUES

Because Sotheby's is such an "establishment" name, he anticipates that the venture will encourage a serious new evaluation of the period, aided by carefully documented catalogues.

Much of the research on the origin of sale items has to be done from scratch, with Linell's staff poring over back numbers of the Art Journal in the Victoria and Albert Museum, or hunting through catalogues of the 1851 Great Exhibition and the dozens of international trade fairs which followed it up to the outbreak of the First World War.

"The scope is endless," says Linell, who formerly worked for Sotheby's in New York and was responsible for organizing the firm's twice-yearly sales in Toronto. The eight specialists on his staff are all young and driven by enthusiasm for their period—"they feel the 19th century was the greatest thing that ever happened."

Linell himself was an exert on Chinese porcelain before he became immersed in Victoriana.

"This period was the absolute height of British world power, when we were at our peak, but it has been, so far, substantially ignored."

CAUSED UPROAR

He cseerfully agrees that much of his stock once would have been briskly rejected for sale at Sotheby's. The 24 sales scheduled before Christmas contain such unlikely items as a curly mahogany easel, an electro-plated helmet worn by a Victorian fire chief, an oil lamp with adjustable beam used for surgical operations and a do-it-yourself electric shock machine labelled "an improved magneto for nervous diseases."

Some of the top treasures, however, are spectacular. Gracefully surveying visitors in the entrance lobby is J. A. Gibson's famous Tinted Venus of 1856, a marble statue of the goddess colored by the sculptor in the fashion thought to have been used by the ancient Greeks.

ANIMATED SCENE

The half-draped Venus caused an uproar when she went on show at the 1862 London International Exhibition. Since 1916 she has been in the possession of a private family and Linell estimates she may fetch anything from £4,000 upwards.

Pride of the first sale, of fine Victorian paintings, is a huge oil by George Elgar Hicks depicting a scene in the London general post ofice at one minute to six on an evening in 1860. The painting, crammed with animated Victorian citizens watching a torrent of newspapers being sorted for delivery, was based on a magazine article by novelist Charles Dickens.

Sir Edwin Landseer, Lord Leighton, Sir Edward Burne-Jones, William Holman Hunt and Dante Gabriel Rossetti are other names represented in the sale—painters long unfashionable but now rapidly climbing the price scale.

The new saleroom will not restrict itself rigidly to the 64 Victorian years between 1837 and 1901. The decorative arts section, for instance, will stretch to include Tiffany lamps, the whole range of art nouveau and its developments up to 1930.

Linell and other experts believe the present surge of interest in Victoriana began between three and five years ago. Silver collectors turned to the Victorian era in 1969 after burning their fingers with a spectacular fall in the value of Georgian silver.

Painting values have risen impressively. Ten years ago a Sotheby expert sold a Burne-Jones for £35 — today's value is £600. In 1960, a small painting by the lesser-known Albert Moore went for under £5 — now it would fetch £750.

On a wider scale, there is growing nostalgia in Britain for the days of vigor and self-confidence which the Victorians epitomized in their works. The Victorian Society in London has aroused public interest in preserving such 19th century landmarks as the pinnacled skyline of St. Pancras railway station.

Parade of Stores Eyed in Oak Bay

Developer John Mace approached Oak Bay council Monday with a proposal to develop part of the block bounded by Windsor, Goodwin, Newport and Currie with a "parade of stores," a courtyard, pedestrian ways and apartments.

Mace, speaking for his firm, Mace Holmes and Investments Ltd. and Grahams Developments Ltd., of Vancouver, said he and his partners had abandoned plans for over-all development but had reconsidered after property owners on Newport had offered to join them and invest in the development.

The developers' original proposal to build two nine-story highrises on the block had been turned down after a stormy public hearing.

Mace described the new project as a "greatly reduced scheme," and promised the construction would be "compatible with the buildings that remain in the block."

It is proposed that a four-storey apartment be built on four Goodwin lots conforming with the present zoning which requires non-combustible materials be used and permits buildings of 45 feet in height.

Asked what he meant by a parade of stores, Mace said that if 15,000 square feet of store space on the ground floor was used on Newport it would average out at about 15 stores.

MORE SETBACKS

The Newport side of the block, which overlooks Windsor Park, is now zoned for retail and three-storey frame construction.

Mace said he is not in favor of frame construction but would like to be able to build up to 45 feet on that side of the block as well.

But, he noted, that if he had to meet the increased setbacks required for the 45 feet height this could mean the loss of the courtyard.

"Twenty-five feet (setbacks) could in fact be detrimental, he added, "taking away the courtyard."

Mayor Francis Elford asked Mace if he would be willing to enter into a land-use contract if the area was designated for development.

Mace said he would.

He was asked to prepare sketches and plans and present them to a committee for study.

Council also set Dec. 6 at 7:30 p.m. as the time for a public hearing in a zoning by-law that will rezone the 300 block of Foul Bay from single-family to townhouse.

Developer John Fitterer has presented plans to council for 10 townhouses on the site, which is just over one acre.

INVITATION DRAWS FIRE

Tempers flared Monday night at Oak Bay council when Mayor Frances Elford outlined plans to entertain "between 35 and 40" directors of the Canadian Federation of Mayors Nov. 26.

Mrs. Elford had explained that at the federation's meeting in Halifax, Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis had issued an invitation that the 1975 meeting be held in Victoria.

The contingent would be here Nov 26 and 27 to decide whether Victoria was suitable.

She said the only place large enough and suitable to seat a banquet for 1,200 could be the Victoria Curling Rink. The Memorial and Esquimalt arenas had been turned down and the University of Victoria was too small.

She asked that Oak Bay pay its share of the $300 that would be needed to host the investigating directors at a reception.

Noting that Victoria was without a suitable convention centre for meetings of this size, Ald. Brian Smith said:

"I'm for feeding them, but not for bamboozling them."

Ald. Alan Hoey brought the discussion to a fast halt when he said:

"I suggest you not go on, madam mayor. The Saanich mayor is a friend of mine but he needs his head read to issue such an invitation."

WORKSHOP PLANNED

Experts in the field of child care, including a psychiatrist and a social worker, will conduct a "Workshop for Parents" on four consecutive Monday evenings starting Nov. 22 in the metropolitan United Church Annex, Pandora Avenue.

The sessions, sponsored by the Citizens Counselling Centre, start at 7:30 p.m. and cost $2.50.

Regional Board Plan Still 12 Months Away

It will be more than a year before a regional plan can be expected from the Capital Regional Board, Mayor Frances Elford told Oak Bay Council Monday.

Ald. Douglas Watts had asked what progress had been made and when the plan could be presented.

The mayor said she felt it would be "13 or 14 months and, perhaps, that is being optimistic."

The mayor explained that preparations for the plan were to be in three phases. The first included a study for the Gulf Islands, completed in 1970. She said the "feedback" from a tabloid circulated to Gulf Island residents on the proposals could not be expected before well into 1972.

The second phase, on which some preliminary work had been done, was the study of life on the land and a social and economic study of the urban areas.

The third phase would concentrate on the Sooke and Port Renfrew areas.

Watts observed: "In this sort of thing time really isn't on our side." He said one of his main concerns was that urban sprawl not eat up farm land that gave the Saanich Peninsula its charm.

In other business:

● Council agreed to participate in an intermunicipal operating grant to the Victoria Self-Help Society for one year only. Watts said: "It should be made quite clear, right at the beginning, that this is a one-shot deal."

● The mayor announced that Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton, a former Oak Bay reeve, would open the combined branch centennial library and senior citizens' centre Dec. 18 at 3 p.m. The linrary section would then be officially opened by former chief librarian, Miss Margaret Clay, and the centre by Mrs. Mary Bunbury, a pioneer Oak Bay resident who will be 100 on Dec. 24.

● Council decided to appeal census figures that showed only an increase of 240 people since the last count, taken in 1966.

● Council asked municipal solicitor D. M. Gordon to advise on whether it could order Texaco Co. to clean up its property on the corner of Windsor and Newport. Building inspector Bill Skead had asked that this be done under section 873 of the Municipal Act. The lot, he said, was considered dangerous by many of the neighbors because of an 18-inch drop-off from the sidewalk to the lot.

● Council gave first, second and third readings to bylaws that would allow borrowing of funds under the federal-provincial works loan program for improvements at Henderson and Carnarvon Parks.

Ottawa, Wealthy to Benefit From Tax Reforms—Expert

VANCOUVER (CP) — The provinces and the upper middle class will lose while the federal government and the wealthy benefit from major changes in Canada's tax structure taking effect Jan. 1, the Canadian Tax Foundation was told Monday.

John Bossons, a professor of economics and finance at the University of Toronto and a research associate with the university's institute for policy analysis, said federal legislation to establish a capital gains tax and abolish death taxes is "highly advantageous" for the federal government and the wealthy.

"The big losers from this exchange are provincial governments and those middle-class individuals who are in the process of accumulating wealth," he told about 1,400 taxation specialists from business, universities and the professions attending the foundation's annual conference.

Mr. Bossons and other speakers at the opening session of the three-day meeting criticized elimination of estate taxes and aspects of the capital gains tax, which the federal government has tied together under Bill C259, a new Income Tax Act, while offering to help any province wanting to implement its own estate tax.

HARD TO EXPLAIN

"It is difficult to find any social or economic rationale for eliminating the estate tax," Mr. Bossons said.

"From a social point of view, the combination of eliminating the estate tax and imposing a tax on capital gains serves mainly to increase the concentration of wealth and to reduce social mobility."

The capital gains tax—a levy on profits from sale of investments—would be applied to increases in the value of investments when a person dies.

Mr. Bossons estimated that shareholders in widely-held mining and oil companies will suffer a 20-per-cent reduction in returns on investments as a result of over-all tax changes, including the addition of capital gains and corporation tax revisions.

Returns on investments in large Canadian-owned private companies and widely-held companies not in the extractive industries would drop by about 15 per cent, he said, giving a 10-per-cent figure for small Canadian-owned private companies.

Tax revenues lost over several years through elimination of estate taxes would be sufficient to pay for a reduction in personal income taxes of about 10 per cent for individuals with incomes about $15,000 a year.

Elimination of the tax "turns out to be the equivalent of a lump-sum transfer of approximately $4.5 billion to individuals who currently own wealth that would be taxed in future years under the estate tax," Mr. Bossons said.

He projected that the provinces will lose $160 million in 1972 by giving up their 75-per-cent share of revenue from estate taxes. The figure would rise to almost $400 million annually by the end of the century.

Parents Blast Teacher Role

DAWSON CREEK (CP) — "Corridor constables," "toilet attendants" and "locker-room snoopers" were among names used Monday night to describe teachers as about 25 parents attended the first hearing of the commission on the public's role in education.

The parents complained that teachers with masters' degrees and professional salaries are wasting time on such supervisory duties. They said delegating teachers to such jobs destroys their effectiveness.

The parents suggested more custodial staff be hired for these functions.

The commission, a project of the B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation supported by the department of education and Educational Research Institute of B.C., is to hold hearings in 20 centres, ending its tour in Victoria Dec. 11.

Trustees of the local South Peace school district were criticized at the hearing by parents who said dealing with the school board brings nothing but frustration. They said the board has been unapproachable on many issues and has not been consistent in making rulings.

Notre Dame School of Dawson Creek pleaded the case for independent schools in B.C., saying they should get "an equitable share of the education tax fund for the amount of education we provide according to the intent and requirements of compulsory education law." A Notre Dame brief also said there should be legal recognition of the professional status of teachers and teaching experience in independent schools.

Appeal Dismissed

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Court of Appeal Monday dismissed Ernest Leonard Boultbee's appeal against a B.C. Supreme Court decision which gave his former wife, Mrs. Dallis Boultbee, a lump sum maintenance award of $150,000.

The maintenance award was made following a divorce granted Mrs. Boultbee a year ago. Boultbee appealed the award on grounds it was excessive. The appeal court, in dismissing the appeal, held that the amount determined by the supreme court judge was appropriate.

Canada Loser

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Neil V. German of Calgary, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, says Canada would be the loser in a Canadian - American common market proposed by Premier Bennett.

German, here to address the New Westminster chamber of commerce, said in an interview Monday that a common market is an arrangement where participants have a common external tariff and a determination of who controls the money supply. On both counts, he said, Canada would be overwhelmed by the United States.

Office 'Depressing'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver architect Arthur Erickson said the office of the prime minister of Canada was "unbelievably dark and tattered and depressing" before his firm completed a recent refurbishing job.

"I doubt whether there was another executive in the country working in such poor conditions," Erickson said in an interview.

IRA Jail Break Succeeds for 9

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Letter carriers in Ontario and Nova Scotia launched the second day of 24-hour rotating strikes against the post office to protest hiring practices with walkouts today in Halifax, Toronto and several other Ontario cities.

Members of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada shut down mail delivery from the main post office in Halifax and several substations. However, in Saint John, N.B., hit Monday by a letter carriers' walkout, the men were back on the job today.

The letter carriers walked out of two post offices in Toronto's west end and shut down mail delivery in Weston, northwest of the city. Other walkout targets included Windsor, London, Amherstburg, Chatham, St. Catharines and Thorold in southern Ontario.

In Hamilton and the two nearby communities of Burlington and Stony Creek, the mailmen returned to their jobs today after walkouts Monday.

Today's walkouts, described as illegal by post office officials, involved about 700 letter carriers in Ontario, including 194 in London, 184 in Windsor and about 100 in Toronto. Another 500 inside workers—sorters and handlers—didn't report for work in post offices hit by the walkouts.

About 90 carriers and clerks were involved in the Halifax walkout.

Meanwhile, talks resumed today in Ottawa between the union and representatives of the letter carriers' employer, the federal treasury board. No progress was reported following Monday's meetings.

Ladders Flung Over Wall

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Nine men held on what police sources said were charges connected with using weapons and explosives broke from Crumlin Road prison today in a well-planned, daylight escape, government officials said.

The officials said two teams of prisoners were playing football in an exercise yard at the rear of the prison when two rope ladders were flung over one 25-foot wall from outside the jail.

COLLEGE GROUNDS

They said a number of the inmates, members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army apparently had been awaiting the ladders. Nine men immediately clambered up and over the wall to freedom in a maze of nearby streets after passing through the grounds of adjoining St. Malachy's College, the officials said.

Prison officers on duty in the yard sped forward to halt the escape but were blocked "in a concerted movement of remaining prisoners," said an official at the home affairs ministry.

"There was some scuffling between guards and a number of prisoners gaining valuable time for the prisoners to make good their escape," the official said.

British army troops and police raced to the prison and flung a net of roadblocks across streets in a two-mile radius of the prison, home office officials said.

By late afternoon, the men had not been recaptured, they said.

FALSE REPORTS

A number of persons stopped by police and questioned brought a flurry of false reports that some of the men had been caught, police sources said.

Police sources said the inmates were awaiting trial on charges connected with using arms and explosives.

Legislature Protest Urged by Unionists

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Federation of Labor annual convention has been urged to hold a second demonstration outside the legislative buildings in Victoria to protest the unemployment situation.

Two delegates recommended the action Monday despite a near-riot which occurred last year when the first demonstration got out of hand on the opening day of the legislature.

Secretary-treasurer Ray Haynes was not opposed to the idea, saying "if the situation arises that this would be worthwhile, we will recommend it."

Trade union leaders were generally blamed for not properly organizing the first demonstration, which saw some people actually storm the buildings.

RETURN VISIT

Suggesting a return visit, Lorne Robson of the Carpenters Union said that "a few provocateurs" disrupted the first outing, adding that these people should not be the determining factor on whether another is held.

Nick Chernoff of the Campbell River, Courtenay and district labor council also supported a second demonstration.

"We failed when we disbanded in front of the legislature instead of marching on," he said. The march to the buildings and the speeches there were "flawless," said Chernoff.

"Let's face it," Mr. Johnston said as he reviewed the issure of unemployment and poverty, "our efforts in these areas are not good enough."

Job Scheme to Bring $8 Million to B.C.

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Manpower Minister Otto Lang told the provincial premiers today that British Columbia will get $8 million of the $80 million spent by the federal government on job-creating projects this winter.

B.C.'s share compares with $20 million for Ontario, $25 million for Quebec, $9 million for Atlantic provinces and $9 million for the Prairies.

Mr. Lang and Finance Minister E. J. Benson gave the federal-provincial economic conference a summary of the government's progress on the $498-million program announced Oct. 14 to stimulate winter employment.

Mr. Lang, in a statement released today outside the closed conference, said 25,000 fact sheets and 100,000 folders outlining extended manpower training programs have been sent to manpower centres.

By last Friday "several hundred applications" had been received for the local incentives program, which provides $100 million in grants to municipalities and community groups that undertake winter works projects.

USE IMAGINATION

"The flow of early applications and the heavy demand for information about the program suggest that the imagination and initiative of Canadians will take full advantage of the funds available," Mr. Lang said.

Mr. Benson told the premiers he expects approval by the end of December for loans to the provinces for construction projects that will create about 170,000 man-months of work. He said more loans will be made in January. The cut-off date for applications is Jan. 31.

A similar program last year produced more than 13,000 man-years indirectly, he said.

He also announced a change in a tax incentive given to industry for on-the-job training programs. The incentive allowed firms to deduct from their taxable income 150 per cent of the program costs, meaning that a firm paying 50-per-cent tax would save 75 per cent of the cost of the program.

But a recently-announced cut in corporation tax would mean this assistance would be slightly reduced, he said. Therefore, to keep the saving at 75 per cent, the writeoff was being increased to 160 per cent.

How to spread the country's wealth from the rich provinces to the poor was the prime topic today at the conference.

POLLUTION DEADLINE EXTENDED

A retroactive extension in the deadline for land and water polluters to register their discharges with the provincial government was announced today by Resources Minister Ray Williston.

The extension to March 31, 1972, was attributed by the government to "an unexpectedly high number of persons or businesses" failing to comply with the registration deadline. The original deadline as spelled out in legislation was Dec. 31, 1970.

Nearly 1,000 effluent discharges and 1,100 solid waste dumps were not registered, Williston said.

Student Charged In School Fires

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — A 12-year-old boy has been charged with arson after three fires in the past six weeks caused more than $175,000 damage to Cliffside Preparatory here.

The boy, a student at the school, was remanded to Wednesday without plea when he appeared in Duncan juvenile court today.

Inspector A. H. Taylor of the fire marshal's office in Vancouver said arson is suspected in at least two of the three fires, including the first, when combustible material was ignited in a classroom building closet six weeks ago.

No cause has been determined in the second fire Nov. 7, which resulted in $100,000 damage when the school's kitchen and dining room were destroyed.

The third fire, which Taylor also has attributed to arson, occurred early last Wednesday, when a $75,000 classroom building was destroyed.

Council Debating Reid Compromise

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE
Times Staff

The Reid Centre may still be built.

Victoria council's planning committee today rejected the two-tower development proposal but approved design guidelines which open the way for a new project.

After an hour and a half of tense debate the so-called "compromise" development was unanimously rejected by planning chairman Harold Olafson, Mayor Courtney Haddock, Ald Clyde Savage and Ald. Ove Witt.

A repeated attempt to close off from the city a future choice to buy the Reid property failed. Haddock's motion to guarantee that "private capital be used" to develop the site was given a rough ride by Ald. Peter Pollen.

How have the Scandinavian countries approached urban development? Times reporter Clement Chapple recently spent an intensive two weeks touring various Scandinavian centres with 16 Canadian and American planners and architects.

UN ENVOYS SURPRISED BY TOUGH PEKING STAND

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The People's Republic of China became part of the United Nations Monday with a speech full of revolutionary fervor, criticism of the United States and pledges to oppose the superpowers when their interests conflict with those of small countries.

"We are opposed to the power politics and hegemony of big nations bullying small ones or strong nations bullying weak ones," said Deputy Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua, in the first China speech in the General Assembly.

"We hold that the affairs of a given country must be handled by its own people, that the affairs of the world must be handled by the countries of the world, and that the affairs of the UN must be handled jointly by all its member states, and the superpowers should not be allowed to manipulate and monopolize them."

Then he said that at no time will China regard herself as a super power.

Chiao pledged Chinese support for the Palestine Arab guerrillas in the Middle East and the revolutionaries of southern Africa.

He called the United States an aggressor and said its troops must get out of In-

Patriotic Lansky Is American Dream Upside Down

By NICHOLAS GAGE
(Second of a Series)

When Maier Suchowjansky arrived in New York from Grodno, Russia in 1911, his mother, in all the confusion, could not remember the day or even the month in which he had been born nine years earlier. So the immigration officials gave him July 4 as a birthdate, hoping, perhaps, to instill in the boy a sense of patriotism and high aspirations.

In many ways Maier Suchowjansky, who Americanized his name to "Meyer Lansky," lived up to that hope. He became so patriotic that he moved heaven and earth to get his oldest son into West Point. He is as ardent a supporter of U.S. involvement in Vietnam as any man in America. As for material success, he set his aspirations high and has achieved the directorship of a network of enterprises as big as General Motors. His personal fortune is estimated to be somewhere between $100 million and $300 million.

The thing that sets Meyer Lansky apart from most men who have achieved the American Dream is his line of business. He chose to pursue his ambitions not in steel or oil, not in automobiles or banking, but in crime. Lansky is the main architect of the giant conglomerate that is organized crime in the United States.

As a director of the organized crime syndicate, of which the Mafia is the biggest branch, Lansky is so powerful that he controls legitimate corporations, runs a gambling network that stretches from Las Vegas to the Middle East, and "buys" whole governments with bribes. Even the U.S. Navy once had to plead for his help.

He has convinced the syndicate to enter new fields such as banking, investments, manufacturing and real estate by using thousands of fronts, some so sophisticated they may never be penetrated. In addition, he has developed new ways to promote the most lucrative traditional sources of income — gambling — in the Caribbean, England, Europe and the Middle East.

Lansky the man is a fascinating series of contradictions. His personal style is radically different from that of the cigar-smoking professional mobster portrayed by Hollywood. At 69, Lansky is gray-haired, 5 feet 4 inches tall, and thin. His suits are conservative in cut, and his home, until 1969, was a modest three-bedroom ranch-style house in Hallandale, Fla., a suburb of Miami. He drives (rented) Chevrolets, walks the family dog and goes home every night to his wife.

In the summer of 1970 Lansky moved to Israel and settled down at a suite in the Dan Hotel in Tel Aviv. It so happened that about the same time Federal agents were investigating the skimming of millions of dollars of gambling profits from the Flamingo Hotel in Las Vegas from 1960 to 1967.

In March, 1971, Lansky was indicted by a Federal grand jury in Miami for conspiracy to engage in illegal gambling activity and to conceal and distribute proceeds from the Flamingo Hotel. Lansky, of course, declined to return to the United States to face the charges.

Acting like any good businessman with a social conscience, Lansky makes occasional contributions to charity, but he is careful to make them small, in keeping with his image. They are usually between $2,500 and $5,000 and are given to reputable institutions. Lansky had made at least two small contributions to Brandeis University at the behest of his friend Joseph Linsey, a Boston businessman with underworld links who is a large contributor to the university.

Even Lansky's tax returns, it is said, portray a retired investor living in moderate comfort off the return of a few prudent holdings. Lansky can justify every expenditure to the last cent, and he often doesn't take even the deductions to which he is entitled.

Another ploy used to justify his income came to light in November, 1969 when the Toronto Telegram told the story of a bemused Toronto stockbroker who, not knowing who Lansky was, agreed to arrange the purchase of $250 worth of mining claims in Canada for him. Four months later, Lansky had the broker handle the sale of the same mining claims to two New York brothers for $40,000.

Lansky subsequently claimed the $38,750 "profit" on the deal as a capital gain and paid tax on it to the dismay of the Internal Revenue Service. The IRS believe that Lansky himself had given the brothers the $40,000 to buy the claims and thereby legitimatize or "dry-clean" nearly $40,000 of mob profits. Because the deal had taken place in Canada, there was no legal action the IRS could take.

Lansky's main pleasures are simple. He likes to travel, to go for walks and to lie in the sun. Like many another self-made millionaire, Lansky adheres to a brand of politics that is distinctly right-wing. On Vietnam, for example, "He thinks we should go in there and blow Hanoi to pieces," says an acquaintance. "He's really disgusted with all these demonstrations against the war."

Lansky is so patriotic, in fact, that in 1949 he used all the political influence at his command to win an appointment to West Point for his oldest son, Paul. The appointment was made by the late New York State Supreme Court Justice Arthur G. Klein, who was then a Congressman. Paul Lansky did fairly well at the school and rose to the rank of captain in the Air Force before resigning in 1963 to begin an engineering career on the West Coast. He now lives in Tacoma, Wash., with his wife and children and is a respected member of his community. Lansky has two other children, another son named Bernard and a daughter, Sandra. Bernard, who is known as Buddy, lives in a comfortable house near his father's old home in Hallandale, Fla., and is often seen in supervisory positions in hotels and motels in which Meyer is said to have an interest.

Lansky's daughter Sandra has been married twice and had a reputation as a swinger when she was young. During her swinging period she got into scrapes that gave Meyer more than a few sleepless nights.

Good Reasons

Lansky is easily the most heeded underworld leader, and for several good reasons. First, he has survived longer than anyone in the underworld. In his 50 years in crime he has spent only three months in jail. Second, anyone who has associated himself with Lansky has made big money. Third, and most important, Lansky possesses the best brain in the underworld.

It was Lansky who developed the world-wide network of couriers, middlemen, bankers and frontmen that allows the underworld to take profits from illegal enterprises, send them halfway around the world and then have the money come back laundered clean to be invested in legitimate business. The way this works is beautifully simple. Lansky's couriers take the Mafia's "black money," profits from illegal activities — to secret bank accounts in Switzerland where middlemen in Europe take the money out of the accounts and send it back to the states through various devices such as mortgages and loans. This "clean money" is then used for legitimate investments. There is no way to find out the ultimate source of the money because it can be traced back only to the Swiss banks and they won't divulge the names of depositors.

In Europe, Lansky's chief watchdog and head of operations is John Pullman, a former bootlegger who started out in the rackets with Lansky in the 1920's.

Lansky got an early start in crime. He was first picked up by the police when he was 16. By the time he was 27, he had been arrested five times on charges ranging from disorderly conduct to suspicion of homicide. But not once were the police able to make the charges stick.

Lansky became a close friend and partner of Benjamin "Bugsy" Siegel. Short and hawkfaced, Lansky admired the tall, boyishly handsome Siegel, so much so that he borrowed his idol's nickname, calling himself Bugs Meyer for awhile. They first hired themselves out as gunmen to Legs Diamond, and then started their own gang. Siegel and Lansky did so well that when various East Coast gangs formed an alliance to co-ordinate rum-running on the Eastern Seaboard, they became members of the governing board.

In the early 1930s the Eastern syndicate began to link up with the Cleveland and Reinfield syndicates — groups that specialized in smuggling bootleg booze from Canada — and other regional mobs to form the National Syndicate.

The tieup with the Cleveland syndicate provided important lessons in Lansky's education as a gangster. The four leaders of this group — Moe Dalitz, Morris Kleinman, Sam Tucker and Louis Rothkopf (now dead) — were more subtle and often more effective than crime leaders in the East. They relied more on the bribe than the bullet, led inconspicuous personal lives and kept well hidden behind numerous fronts. Lansky was to study their methods, refine them and use them to lead organized crime in the United States into a new era.

For a time Lansky, Bugsy Siegal, Louis Lepke and Lucky Luciano ran a factory in the Bronx section of New York to extract morphine from an opium base for the illicit drug market.

Each man had other things going. Lepke, for one, teamed up with Gurrah Shapiro to recruit a group of vicious contract killers like Albert Anastasia and Abe Reles into the infamous Murder Inc.

Murder Inc. ended the lives of an estimated 800 persons before prosecutors Burton Turkus and the late Thomas E. Dewey moved forcefully against the New York mobs.

Bugsy Siegel went to Hollywood, Calif., where he socialized with the movie stars he had always envied. And Lansky went to Hollywood, Fla., although he kept returning to New York where he kept an apartment until 1953.

The top man, Lucky Luciano, refused to leave the center of his operations at all. He was ultimately convicted by Dewey on so many counts of white slavery that he was sentenced to 50 years in prison.

Dewey's Favor

Dewey in an indirect way did the organization a favor. By compelling many of the remaining leaders to leave New York, he forced them to spread their operations and make the syndicate truly national.

Lansky, for one, built a whole new empire in Southern Florida and the Caribbean by imitating the Cleveland group. With Florida secure, he went on to Cuba in 1937 to see what he could do about expanding his operations to the island. He found a willing listener in Fulgencio Batista, the former army sergeant then in power, and the two made plans for turning Havana into a playground for the rich. World War II, however, put an end to this initial effort.

During the war Lansky played a key role in one of the strangest deals in which the U.S. government has even been involved — Operation Underworld. The full story has never been told, but as it was outlined during the Kefauver hearings, Naval intelligence decided that it needed the help of the Mafia to protect East Coast shipping from sabotage. Lucky Luciano was the only man who could arouse the Mafia to such service, but he was still in prison — and not likely to be feeling patriotic.

The Navy turned to Luciano's attorney, Moses Polakoff, who promised to talk to his client. But he said he needed someone with him whom Luciano would trust — Meyer Lansky. For several months Polakoff and Lansky visited Luciano regularly, and ultimately got some kind of agreement from him.

How much Luciano's cooperation contributed to the nation's welfare is still a military secret, but it certainly contributed to Luciano's welfare. Lucky was paroled at war's end and allowed to return to his native Italy, on the condition that he wouldn't again set foot in the Western Hemisphere.

In exile Luciano continued to influence the syndicate, but active leadership passed to a triumvirate that included Joe Adonis, Frank Costello and Meyer Lansky.

Got Divorce

Right after the war, Lansky met Thelma Schwartz, a manicurist at a New York hotel, and decided to marry her. But he was already married to the former Anna Citron and had two sons and a daughter by her. So he had to persuade Anna to give him a divorce and to allow him the companionship of the three children.

To add to his problems, Lansky's old friend, Bugsy Siegel, was causing trouble for the syndicate. He was spending too much of its money to build the Flamingo Hotel in Las Vegas. And he was ignoring advice and getting involved in a factional struggle for control of the wire service supplying bookies with race track information.

Siegel was showing the kind of growing indeidklisind and recll

Siegel was showing the kind of growing independence and recklessness that threatened the subtle organization that men like Lansky were building. So, early in 1947, syndicate leaders met in a Havana hotel suite with Lucky Luciano, who had sneaked back temporarily from Italy, to decide what to do about Bugsy.

On June 20, 1947, Siegel was sitting in the Beverly Hills home of his mistress, Virginia Hill, when two steel-jacketed slugs from an Army carbine tore into his face.

The Flamingo Hotel, which had gotten Siegel into trouble, started paying dividends the very day he was shot. Lansky, one of the original 21 investors, got back the $62,500 he had put up many times over.

Hard Work

Lansky worked feverishly to take advantage of the postwar boom by launching hundreds of new operations all over the country. He started real estate companies in several states; set up juke-box-distribution outlets in Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York; opened a string of new casinos that stretched from Miami, Fla., to Saratoga, N.Y. and bought into several television manufacturing and servicing companies.

Then in 1950 the Kefauver Committee turned the spotlight on Lansky and America caught a glimpse of his power for the first time. The heat the committee generated forced officials in Florida and New York to shut down his casinos and to make noises about sending him to prison. He was indicted for gambling violations in both states and an effort was started to have him deported. But in the end he served only a three-month sentence in New York — the first and last time Lansky ever went to jail.

Revive Dream

When he got out, he headed for Cuba to revive his old dream of turning Havana into a gambling paradise. His old friend Batista, who had won back the presidency in 1952 with syndicate financing, gave him free reign and Lansky turned Cuba into a gambling monopoly for himself and selected syndicate friends.

Lansky began instituting a number of changes that enabled the syndicate to penetrate deep into the economic life of America. He curtailed the practice of buying up small companies through friends and relatives. Such men always turned out to be more loyal than competent, and the businesses never got very far.

Instead, he started sending syndicate money to numbered accounts in Europe, where authorized middlemen would take it and lend it to American executives in quick need of capital. "Some of the biggest mergers and acquisitions in recent years have been financed with syndicate money from Europe," says a Securities and Exchange Commission official.

Lansky began recruiting bright young men with no links to the underworld and training them in the art of being invisible which he has perfected. These men will be the inheritors of power in organized crime, making the job of law enforcement officials in the future even more difficult than it is now.

Never a man to live in the past, he became resigned to losing Cuba and was already focusing on the Bahamas.

In 1963 a plush new hotel, the Lucayan Beach, was built in Freeport on Grand Bahama Island by a group of companies under the control of Wallace Groves, an ex-convict who had settled on the island 20 years ago.

Soon after it opened, the casino was running with professional efficiency worthy of the best gambling parlors controlled by Lansky in Las Vegas.

Then in 1966 it was revealed that some of the highest officials in the United Bahamian Party had received secret payments from several companies controlled by Groves. Sir Stafford Sands, then minister of finance and tourism, actually got some $1.8 million under the table.

Toppled Party

The revelations toppled the United Bahamian Party from power. Sands left the Bahamas for a castle he owns in Spain, and Lansky's men were expelled from the Islands by a new party.

With the heat on in the Bahamas, Lansky turned his attention to the growing number of casinos that were opening in England, Europe and the Middle East. It was not surprising. At an age when several of his old partners in crime are selling their interests in the syndicate, setting up trusts for their children, and retiring, grateful to have the chance to die of natural causes, Lansky is still scanning the world for new outlets for Syndicate activities.

Handful of Directors Charged With 'Backroom 'Politicking'

Chamber Exploited, Pollen Says

The Victoria Chamber of Commerce is a front for backroom politicking by a handful of directors who are wasting the talents of a capable business community, Ald. Peter Pollen said Monday.

In a campaign speech to a Gyro luncheon, Pollen called the chamber attitude in civic affairs "symptomatic of the disease" Victoria suffers from.

Pollen's comments came in an apparent response to a chamber luncheon last week at which many people present stood up and applauded Vancouver developer J. A. Reid.

Pollen told his Gyro audience of about 60 the chamber is "full of very, very able, capable people" but it is a "front for the backroom boys" who are its directors.

And he added the chamber is "now hiding behind a woman's skirts, by the way," referring to chamber president Helen Beirnes.

He said ordinary members of the chamber should come out and take a direct interest in the affairs of the city. He recalled chamber executives last year wrote a letter to city council endorsing the Reid centre without ever taking a vote of the membership.

This letter was written by a "real estate scion" who made "completely unjustified statements" of support for the project.

(The letter was written during the time Philip Holmes was chamber president.)

He said the talent in the membership is being "stultified" by chamber directors.

Pollen said there has been no economic justification for the Reid development, despite repeated requests made to Reid. The Reid project would be part of a pattern of development that would one day end up killing the city.

"We have to face the facts that we are going to kill Victoria . . . if we don't smarten up."

Pollen said the city has been "starved" for information on alternatives to its development. He said some people "don't really want information because it gives them responsibility."

He said he is advocating creation of an advisory board of businessmen from the downtown district "to get these guys from the back rooms out" into the open.

Pollen said he had been called an "obstructionist" on city council.

He said the Reid centre was "self-destructive" and compared his alleged obstructionist role to "Scott Wallace stopping W. A. C. Bennett."

FAMILIAR CHRISTMAS KETTLES of the Salvation Army, soon to appear on Victoria streets, are checked over by Mrs. Major Hugh Tilley. Contents of the kettles and mail donations will provide hampers and toys to needy families and treats for more than 1,800 persons in hospitals and other institutions in the area. Kettles will be ready for filling Dec. 10.

Brothers Can't Understand Teacher Pay List Refusal

Education Minister Donald Brothers today denied there was anything sinister in his request for a list of teachers' salaries, which was refused by Greater Victoria school board Monday night.

The board voted to withhold the list of teachers and salaries and some questioned the motives for the request.

TRUSTEES RESERVED

But today Brothers said he wanted the list only "to have this information available at my fingertips. I'd like to know just how much teachers are being paid."

Some trustees felt such a list could be used for an advertising campaign by the government to show how much money teachers get.

They pointed to the publishing of doctors' salaries by the Medical Services Commission of B.C. in March. The list, carried by several B.C. newspapers, aroused considerable controversy.

Brothers added that the school boards include only a total figure for teachers' salaries when they submit their budgets.

"I don't know why there is any question of making this information available to me," Brothers said. The same request for salary lists was made to each of the province's 75 school districts, he added.

AVERAGE SALARY

Brothers said he did know the relative position of B.C. and Victoria teachers in the teacher salary scale across Canada.

"The average salary for B.C. teachers is the highest in Canada," he said. "And Greater Victoria's teachers are the second-highest paid in B.C."

He said Trustee Peter Bunn, who made the motion to withhold the salary information "has always been an intrepid defender of the concept of full disclosure."

Brothers' request for a list came in a letter to the board, advising that the government would not be willing to share in teachers' salary increases of more than 6.5 per cent.

It asked that school board chairman Allan McKinnon have the board's secretary-treasurer "compile a list of the names of all teachers in your district with their salaries as of next year including increments, assuming that their salaries will be increased by 6.5 per cent."

However, several trustees pointed out the letter did not specify to who the letter should be sent, only that it be compiled.

In fact, a list of teachers and their salaries is available to any member of the public under the Public Bodies Information Act.

"The minister could come right up here and get a list," trustee Dr. Carron Jameson pointed out. "He has the same rights as any private citizen."

VOTED AGAINST

Several trustees voted against the motion to withhold saying it is not possible to impute motives to Brothers' request before his intentions are known.

Bunn moved that the list of salaries be withheld "at this time."

"I'm wondering about the motives and end result of this request," Bunn said at the meeting. "I'd hate to see that bad situation where advertisements are bought to say how well-paid people are."

"I didn't like the way the doctors' situation was bandied about in the newspapers," he said.

'NO HARM'

Dr. Victor Rogers said it is impossible to tell what Brothers wants with the list, but even if it is for a newspaper campaign: "I can see no harm in that."

"Teachers are paid by public money," Rogers said. "It is the right of the public to know where their money is being spent, even if the worst comes to the worst."

"I can see nothing wrong with the whole list of teachers' salaries being published in the newspapers."

McKinnon said it is impossible to impute motives to Brothers' action but said "the danger is always there" of the salary list being published.

"It does seem rather unusual for him to ask for the names," McKinnon said.

Dr. Harold Knight noted that the minister's request for names was not actually worded as a request. "One wonders what is behind it," he said.

The motion to withhold the salary information was passed by a vote of 5-4.

O-Positive Blood Needed

Three hospital patients, one of them in Victoria, have produced an urgent need for blood donors with O-Positive blood type, a local Red Cross spokesman said today.

Charles MacNeill, supervisor of the Victoria donor program, said there were only 85 donors at the clinic Monday, 40 short of the objective.

There are two patients in Vancouver hospitals with Christmas disease, a condition which requires massive transfusions, and a patient in a Victoria hospital bleeding heavily, he said.

He urged people, particularly those with O-Positive blood, to turn out to this evening's clinic, between 6:30 and 9 p.m. at Red Cross House, 1046 Fort St.

There are donor clinics in Victoria throughout the week which means in effect it is this area's week to supply almost all of the province's needs.

Clinics in major centres are held in rotation each month and blood donations go to a central Red Cross depot in Vancouver where they are then distributed to hospitals throughout B.C.

Wednesday's clinic is at Royal Roads Military College from 3 to 5:30 p.m. and 6:30 to 8 p.m.

Thursday the clinic is in the Georgian room of The Empress, from 2 to 5 p.m. and 6:30 to 9 p.m. The Saanich fire hall on Vernon Avenue is the site of Friday's clinic, from 9:30 a.m. to noon and 1:30 to 4:30 p.m.

Pollution Fighter Quits In 'Frustration, Despair'

Kurt Horn, president of the Cowichan Bay-Malahat Society for Pollutional and Environmental Control and provincial vice-president, resigned today "in frustration and despair."

Horn, a leader in the provincial anti-pollution campaign, said he had made the decision when aboard the Greenpeace Too at the time of the Amchitka detonation.

"I held back," he said, "thinking I might reconsider. I can't conceive of a future battle that will attain the power and calibre of the Amchitka fight. It still proved futile."

Horn, 40, said there was an increasing apathy and indifference to an environmental situation that was fast approaching critical.

He added there was no further point in expending his health, energies and money "in a totally futile battle."

Harbor Condition 'Serious' Following Minor Oil Spills

A "very serious" condition exists in the Inner Harbor following two or three days of minor gas or oil spills, Ald. Peter Pollen said today. Pollen told council's B committee jurisdictional problems have prevented attempts to clean up the mess.

But harbormaster Capt. Ron Newell denied any knowledge of any serious spills, as did Bob Baird, steamship inspector for the department of transport.

The matter rose before committee which heard arguments from Imperial Oil Ltd. representatives, who have applied for a 60,000-gallon marina tank farm on Huron.

Pollen said there has been no attempt to control spills in the Inner Harbor, but did not describe where the spills had originated. Pollen also told Fire Chief Eric Simmons he had last year advised the Victoria Advisory Planning Commission tank farms near the shore created a serious hazard.

Simmons said, however, the application by Imperial Oil included adequate facilities against the danger of spills or fire. He said the plans include the first built-in protection against fire on any tank farm in Victoria.

A bylaw to allow the tank farm to built is before council so a decision was not made today.

Both Baird and Newell said they had no knowledge of any oil spill that would cause concern except for the one occurred near the foot of the Johnson Street bridge on the east side several days ago.

Source of that spill has never been determined although a full investigation was made. It was thought that it might have come from one or two storm drains entering the harbor.

He summed up: "I'm not getting out of the kitchen because I can't stand the heat. I'm getting out because the kitchen's on fire."

Ask The Times

Q. Can you advise what rank Mr. Trudeau attained in the services and which branch of the services he was in during the Second World War and the Korean conflict?—J. G.

A. The prime minister was enrolled for a time in the Canadian Officers Training Corps during the Second World War while he was studying law at the University of Montreal and later was in a reserve unit of Les Fusiliers de Mont-Royal. He saw no military service during the Korean War. Trudeau has been quoted as saying he was "kicked out" of the COTC for lack of discipline although other accounts insist he was not dismissed.

Former Doctor Fined $400

A former doctor, whose case was termed "very tragic" by Judge Edmond St. Pierre, was fined $400 today for possession of a narcotic.

John D. Good, 39, of 3975 Bear, earlier pleaded guilty to possession of a bottle of medicine containing the narcotic hydrocodone (dihydrocodeinone).

The judge said he felt the accused deserved a fine rather than a prison term. He noted that Good's case had been publicized.

Defence counsel Edwin Popham said earlier his client had imposed more punishment on himself than the court could impose.

Police found Good in a car Oct. 5 with a near-empty bottle of the medicine.

A policeman testified that the accused had phoned a drugstore and identified himself as a doctor using another name. The officer said the accused ordered the medicine as a prescription for another person.

The medicine was picked up by a person purporting to be the man named in the prescription.

Good was found in the car with the bottle a short time later, the officer said.

Bureau to Give Certificates

Gift certificates instead of hampers will be distributed by the Christmas Bureau this year so that needy families here will have "maximum freedom of choice" in planning their Christmas.

However, should a donor wish to provide a hamper, the bureau will provide the name of a family in need. Requests from recipients for hampers must be referred through a social service agency, public health, the Victorian Order of Nurses, a clergyman, a doctor or a hospital.

The bureau, sponsored by the Community Action Group, asks organizations and individuals planning to assist families to register as soon as possible.

Keg-Shaped Beer Bottles Likely to Go Following Talks

Canadian Breweries Ltd. and the B.C. Liquor Control Board will get together next week to discuss elimination of the company's distinctive Heidelberg keg-shaped beer bottle.

Canadian Breweries' Alan Branston said today he had contacted LCB chairman William Bruce immediately following an Ontario decision to do away with the keg bottles.

Heidelberg Brewing Co., a division of Canadian Breweries, has decided to drop the bottles in response to a request by the Ontario government, an announcement from the office of Premier William Davis said Monday.

The changeover to regular-shaped bottles was asked in the interest of standardizing all beer-packaged in Ontario, an announcement said.

Heidelberg was introduced in 1970 and its keg bottle was designed as a marketing advantage — one that has worked well in B.C., where the newcomer is ranked at the top of retail sales with Molson's Old Style.

"We asked for the meeting with the board because the whole issue of recycling has become an important fact of life, one which must be taken into serious consideration," Branston said.

The meeting is set for next Tuesday.

Old Song to a New Arrangement

THEY LAUGHED WHEN Walter Gordon sat down to play, but his melody does seem to have lingered on. It's the theme song of the Gray report on foreign ownership in Canada, which by well-timed leakage made headlines last week.

Revenue Minister Herb Gray proceeds somewhat more moderately than the headlong ex-finance minister Walter Gordon was in the habit of doing. But the message is the same — a warning against the dangers of uncontrolled foreign investment and a pitch for a Canadian screening agency which would keep an eye on the performance of foreign-controlled companies operating in Canada.

It interests me to note that Gordon was still urging a Canadian watchdog operation when he addressed a Victoria audience in the fall of 1970. On that occasion, he predicted that the Trudeau government would come up with a developed policy on American control of Canadian business in a matter of months. This policy, he added too modestly, "would be based on the work of Revenue Minister Gray."

Since the gist of the Gray report has now found its way into the public domain, a certain amount of speculation is unavoidable.

Was the report leaked in the strict sense of the word?

Or was government itself indulging in the devious but frequently useful tactic of kite-flying as a roundabout means of acquainting us with the shape of things to come?

If so, we can wonder whether the Canadian Development Corporation — Walter Gordon's battered brain-child of 1963 — may emerge from the parliamentary works as an instrument with a dual role.

First, to act as a screening agency of the sort Gray has in mind. And second, to "buy back Canadian industry," as Gordon proposed.

Present Finance Minister Edgar Benson was much less blunt when he dusted off the CDC motion and laid it before Parliament last January.

It was designed, he said, "to help develop and maintain strong Canadian-controlled and Canadian-managed corporations in the private sector, and to provide greater opportunities for Canadians to invest and participate in the economic development of Canada."

If the Trudeau government is indeed giving us a repeat performance of Walter Gordon's song, it would be well for Canadians to be aware of the dangers implicit in a nationalism that might make our trading relations with the U.S. even less friendly than they now are.

At worst, it might be necessary for us to decide how proud, and how poor, we can stand to be.

But even with that extreme contingency in mind, I'm dubious about the effects of the remedy proposed by Premier Bennett at the Federal-Provincial Conference on the economy in Ottawa Monday.

In what seemed mighty like a rebuttal to the Gray report, B.C.'s premier offered a brimming dose of Bennett think-big. In the course of the next 10 years, we should seek to achieve economic union with the United States.

I'm all for amiable relations with our large neighbor in trade as elsewhere. Before committing ourselves to so sweeping a union, however, it would be necessary to arrive at answers to certain questions.

For a start, we would need to know whether the U.S. had any desire to enter into an economic union of the sort envisioned by Premier Bennett. After all, in terms of advantages to be gained, the partnership might well seem pointless and even encumbering in American eyes. Better, perhaps, to do business with a Canada anchored in her role as a home away from home for American branch companies, a source of raw and semi-processed materials, and an importer of American manufactured goods.

Another question. If economic union were agreed to on terms acceptable to Canada, how long until pressure for a more comprehensive bonding began to make itself felt?

For if control of foreign investment has its dangers, so does union in any shape or form. That could get us gobbled up.

The Gray modification of the Gordon thesis may offer at least a partial solution to the problem of retaining a firm hold on our country while not unduly discouraging the foreign investor.

In any case, that cat is out of the bag, and it will be interesting to see what, if anything, Ottawa does with it.

U.S. Hunters Invade Canada

REGINA (CP) — Unprecedented numbers of hunters from the United States are swarming over field and woods in Southeastern Saskatchewan following the opening of the province's deer season Monday.

Issuers of game licences couldn't meet the demand, restaurants were sold out of food and motels and hotels from the Trans-Canada Highway north as far as 100 miles were filled to overflowing.

All licence forms in Melville were sold out before the season opened Monday.

GAME LICENCES

"They are still coming in droves," said Mrs. Harry Anweiler, whose husband is an issuer of game licences.

Anweiler couldn't be reached for comment—he had gone deer hunting.

A spokesman for the department of natural resources in Regina, whose office was almost deserted as all available personnel were in the field doing opening day checks for violations of game laws, said the reasons for the pressure on that area of the province was because the hunting zones there are either two- or three-deer zones. No non-resident hunting is permitted this year in one-deer zones.

At Preeceville, the manager of Bill's Sporting Goods said he was sold out of licences by 3 p.m. Saturday with all 80 going to U.S. residents.

Daria Wilgosh of the Gateway Motel in Canora said she served 47 for breakfast between 5 a.m. and 7 a.m. Monday. Her usual number is six.

DEER HUNTERS

It is a different story in towns like Moosomin, Maryfield and Whitewood, long the mecca of deer hunters from south of the border. There is no non-resident hunting in these areas this year and the regulars are going elsewhere, much to the sorrow of the businessmen.

While there is happiness at the unexpected flow of business in many communities, concern was being expressed about the possible effects of heavier hunting pressure on the area's wildlife and at the possibility of accidents with so many in the field.

Many local residents said they would not go hunting because they feared for their safety.

A Tisdale district farmer, Albert Leslie Senton, 59, was killed Monday when shot while hunting in the Prairie River area, 200 miles northeast of Saskatoon.

Alberta Indians Damn Bennett Dam

PEACE RIVER, Alta. (CP) — Northern Indians are short of money because some chiefs are too complacent, Edward Bellerose of the Briftpile Reserve said Monday.

Bellerose, northern vice-president of the Indian Association of Alberta, told the all-chiefs conference for Northern Alberta that southern reserves have money because they fight for it.

"The High Prairie and Fort Vermilion Indian agencies have been the most neglected in the last 35 years and it is no fault of the Indian affairs department."

But he criticized the department for being paternalistic in arranging the 1972-73 budget without consultation with the chiefs.

Chief Aubrey Gladue of the Fort Chipewyan reserve said the department should provide more money to create job generating projects.

Many of his people are forced to take welfare because of poor trapping that has resulted from "the white man stealing our water with the Bennett Dam."

The Bennett Dam is located on the Peace River in British Columbia.

Chief Gladue said there is ample timber and qualified Indian people in his area to operate a sawmill if one was located there.

The 19 northern chiefs will meet with local and Ottawa members of the department of Indian Affairs today.

Oil Plans Dead

CALGARY (CP) — Social Credit plans for an oil sands development project involving the Japanese government are dead, says Progressive Conservative Premier Peter Lougheed.

In an interview before leaving for the federal-provincial conference, he said policy on the Athabasca oil sand will not be reviewed until next spring when all oil royalties are reassessed. Sketchy details of plans for a third oil sands plant were released by the Social credit government during the campaign for the Aug. 30 election in which they were defeated.

7-Day Sale Urged

SASKATOON (CP) — The sale of liquor on licensed premises should be allowed seven days a week, the Prince Albert Chamber of Commerce said Monday.

The recommendation was contained in a brief submitted by the chamber to a special legislative committee studying the sale, distribution and advertising of alcoholic beverages in Saskatchewan.

Hopes Dim

EDMONTON (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson has held out little hope to Edmonton that it will get aid for its proposed trade and convention centre through the Ottawa anti-recession programs.

Allan Rowe, executive assistant to Mayor Ivor Dent, said the city received an answer Monday to its telegram requesting a $10-million loan and a $7-million grant for the centre, called Omniplex. Benson's reply said Alberta's share under the proposed incentives program was $9 million and the responsibility for allotting the money lies with provincial government.

Ministers Unload

CALGARY (CP) — Premier Peter Lougheed says his cabinet ministers are in the process of disposing of their interests in firms which do business with the provincial government.

"I haven't issued a formal request or set a rigid deadline, but my ministers are in the process of phasing themselves out of their various businesses."

Bibles Recalled

CAMBRIDGE, England (Reuter) — A major British publisher has called back 2,000 copies of a new edition of the Bible because of a printing error. But one copy is being kept by a vicar because he says he doesn't read the passages concerned. The error put 42 lines of Ecclesiasticus into the Book of Leviticus.

Hercules Overhaul Set for Edmonton

EDMONTON (CP) — Northwest Industries Ltd. of Edmonton has won Canadian Forces contracts totalling more than $8 million to overhaul and modify 23 C-130 Hercules aircraft.

The work involves replacement of the centre wing sections of the giant four-engined planes with an improved centre wing box assembly, installation of crash position indicators and other modification and maintenance work.

E. L. Bunnell, president of Northwest, said the contract could provide for as many as 75 jobs at the peak of work in 1973.

The first of the 23 aircraft—the whole Hercules fleet of the Canadian Forces—is expected to be received at Northwest in April, 1972, and completion of the project is anticipated in 1974.

The wing modifications are designed to increase the life of the aircraft by 15,000 to 20,000 hours of flying time.

Northwest is a wholly-owned subsidiary of CAE Industries Ltd. of Montreal.

ONTARIO, N.S. TARGETS OF ROTATING STRIKES

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Letter carriers in Ontario and Nova Scotia launched the second day of 24-hour rotating strikes against the post office to protest hiring practices with walkouts today in Halifax, Toronto and several other Ontario cities.

Members of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada shut down mail delivery from the main post office in Halifax and several substations. However, in Saint John, N.B., hit Monday by a letter carriers' walkout, the men were back on the job today.

The letter carriers walked out of two post offices in Toronto's west end and shut down mail delivery in Weston, northwest of the city. Other walkout targets included Windsor, London, Amherstburg, Chatham, St. Catharines and Thorold in southern Ontario.

In Hamilton and the two nearby communities of Burlington and Stony Creek, the mailmen returned to their jobs today after walkouts Monday.

Today's walkouts, described as illegal by post office officials, involved about 700 letter carriers in Ontario, including 194 in London, 184 in Windsor and about 100 in Toronto. Another 500 inside workers—sorters and handlers—didn't report for work in post offices hit by the walkouts.

About 90 carriers and clerks were involved in the Halifax walkout.

Meanwhile, talks resumed today in Ottawa between the union and representatives of the letter carriers' employer, the federal treasury board. No progress was reported following Monday's meetings.

Ladders Flung Over Wall

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Nine men held on what police sources said were charges connected with using weapons and explosives broke from Crumlin Road prison today in a well-planned, daylight escape, government officials said.

The officials said two teams of prisoners were playing football in an exercise yard at the rear of the prison when two rope ladders were flung over one 25-foot wall from outside the jail.

COLLEGE GROUNDS

They said a number of the inmates, members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army apparently had been awaiting the ladders. Nine men immediately clambered up and over the wall to freedom in a maze of nearby streets after passing through the grounds of adjoining St. Malachy's College, the officials said.

Prison officers on duty in the yard sped forward to halt the escape but were blocked "in a concerted movement of remaining prisoners," said an official at the home affairs ministry.

"There was some scuffling between guards and a number of prisoners gaining valuable time for the prisoners to make good their escape," the official said.

British army troops and police raced to the prison and flung a net of roadblocks across streets in a two-mile radius of the prison, home office officials said.

By late afternoon, the men had not been recaptured, they said.

FALSE REPORTS

A number of persons stopped by police and questioned brought a flurry of false reports that some of the men had been caught, police sources said.

Police sources said the inmates were awaiting trial on charges connected with using arms and explosives.

The prison initially housed

Legislature Protest Urged by Unionists

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Federation of Labor annual convention has been urged to hold a second demonstration outside the legislative buildings in Victoria to protest the unemployment situation.

Two delegates recommended the action Monday despite a near-riot which occurred last year when the first demonstration got out of hand on the opening day of the legislature.

Secretary-treasurer Ray Haynes was not opposed to the idea, saying "if the situation arises that this would be worthwhile, we will recommend it."

Trade union leaders were generally blamed for not properly organizing the first demonstration, which saw some people actually storm the buildings.

RETURN VISIT

Suggesting a return visit, Lorne Robson of the Carpenters Union said that "a few provocateurs" disrupted the first outing, adding that these people should not be the determining factor on whether another is held.

Nick Chernoff of the Campbell River, Courtenay and district labor council also supported a second demonstration.

"We failed when we disbanded in front of the legislature instead of marching on," he said. The march to the buildings and the speeches there were "flawless," said Chernoff.

Self-flagellations got under way right at the beginning of the convention with the cue provided by president George Johnston.

"Let's face it," Mr. Johnston said as he reviewed the issure of unemployment and poverty, "our efforts in these areas are not good enough."

Job Scheme to Bring $8 Million to B.C.

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Manpower Minister Otto Lang told the provincial premiers today that British Columbia will get $8 million of the $80 million to be spent by the federal government on job-creating projects this winter.

B.C.'s share compares with $20 million for Ontario, $25 million for Quebec, $9 million for Atlantic provinces and $9 million for the Prairies.

Mr. Lang and Finance Minister E. J. Benson gave the federal-provincial economic conference a summary of the government's progress on the $498-million program announced Oct. 14 to stimulate winter employment.

By last Friday "several hundred applications" had been received for the local incentives program, which provides $100 million in grants to municipalities and community groups that undertake winter works projects.

Mr. Benson told the premiers he expects approval by the end of December for loans to the provinces for construction projects that will create about 170,000 man-months of work. He said more loans will be made in January. The cut-off date for applications is Jan. 31.

He also announced a change in a tax incentive given to industry for on-the-job training programs. The incentive allowed firms to deduct from their taxable income 150 per cent of the program costs, meaning that a firm paying 50-per-cent tax would save 75 per cent of the cost of the program.

But a recently-announced cut in corporation tax would mean this assistance would be slightly reduced, he said. Therefore, to keep the saving at 75 per cent, the writeoff was being increased to 160 per cent.

How to spread the country's wealth from the rich provinces to the poor was the prime topic today at the conference.

POLLUTION DEADLINE EXTENDED

A retroactive extension in the deadline for land and water polluters to register their discharges with the provincial government was announced today by Resources Minister Ray Williston.

The extension to March 31, 1972, was attributed by the government to "an unexpectedly high number of persons or businesses" failing to comply with the registration deadline. The original deadline as spelled out in legislation was Dec. 31, 1970.

Nearly 1,000 effluent discharges and 1,100 solid waste dumps were not registered, Williston said.

Student Charged In School Fires

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — A 12-year-old boy has been charged with arson after three fires in the past six weeks caused more than $175,000 damage to Cliffside Preparatory here.

The boy, a student at the school, was remanded to Wednesday without plea when he appeared in Duncan juvenile court today.

Inspector A. H. Taylor of the fire marshal's office in Vancouver said arson is suspected in at least two of the three fires, including the first, when combustible material was ignited in a classroom building closet six weeks ago.

No cause has been determined in the second fire Nov. 7, which resulted in $100,000 damage when the school's kitchen and dining room were destroyed.

The third fire, which Taylor also has attributed to arson, occurred early last Wednesday, when a $75,000 classroom building was destroyed.

Council Debating Reid Compromise

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE
Times Staff

The Reid Centre may still be built.

Victoria council's planning committee today rejected the two-tower development proposal but approved design guidelines which open the way for a new project.

After an hour and a half of tense debate, the so-called "compromise" development was unanimously rejected by planning chairman Harold Olafson, Mayor Courtney Haddock, Ald. Clyde Savage and Ald. Ove Witt.

A repeated attempt to close off from the city a future chance to buy the Reid property failed. Haddock's motion to guarantee that "private capital be used" to develop the site was given a rough ride by Ald. Peter Pollen.

Humans Before Brick, Mortar

How have the Scandinavian countries approached urban development? Times reporter Clement Chapple recently spent an intensive two weeks touring various Scandinavian centres with 16 Canadian and American planners and architects.

After seeing developments in Stockholm, Copenhagen, Helsinki and other areas he says the human focus takes priority over brick and mortar.

The first of a five part series by Chapple begins today on Page 5.

UN ENVOYS SURPRISED BY TOUGH PEKING STAND

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The People's Republic of China became part of the United Nations Monday with a speech full of revolutionary fervor, criticism of the United States and pledges to oppose the superpowers when their interests conflict with those of small countries.

"We are opposed to the power politics and hegemony of big nations bullying small ones or strong nations bullying weak ones," said Deputy Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua, in the first China speech in the General Assembly.

"We hold that the affairs of a given country must be handled by its own people, that the affairs of the world must be handled by the countries of the world, and that the affairs of the UN must be handled jointly by all its member states, and the superpowers should not be allowed to manipulate and monopolize them."

Then he said that at no time will China regard herself as a super power.

Chiao pledged Chinese support for the Palestine Arab guerrillas in the Middle East and the revolutionaries of southern Africa.

He called the United States an aggressor and said its troops must get out of In-

Patriotic Lansky Is American Dream Upside Down

By NICHOLAS GAGE
(Second of a Series)

When Maier Suchowjansky arrived in New York from Grodno, Russia in 1911, his mother, in all the confusion, could not remember the day or even the month in which he had been born nine years earlier. So the immigration officials gave him July 4 as a birthdate, hoping, perhaps, to instill in the boy a sense of patriotism and high aspirations.

In many ways Maier Suchowjansky, who Americanized his name to "Meyer Lansky," lived up to that hope. He became so patriotic that he moved heaven and earth to get his oldest son into West Point. He is as ardent a supporter of U.S. involvement in Vietnam as any man in America. As for material success, he set his aspirations high and has achieved the directorship of a network of enterprises as big as General Motors. His personal fortune is estimated to be somewhere between $100 million and $300 million.

The thing that sets Meyer Lansky apart from most men who have achieved the American Dream is his line of business. He chose to pursue his ambitions not in steel or oil, not in automobiles or banking, but in crime. Lansky is the main architect of the giant conglomerate that is organized crime in the United States.

As a director of the organized crime syndicate, of which the Mafia is the biggest branch, Lansky is so powerful that he controls legitimate corporations, runs a gambling network that stretches from Las Vegas to the Middle East, and "buys" whole governments with bribes. Even the U.S. Navy once had to plead for his help.

He has convinced the syndicate to enter new fields such as banking, investments, manufacturing and real estate by using thousands of fronts, some so sophisticated they may never be penetrated. In addition, he has developed new ways to promote the most lucrative traditional sources of income — gambling — in the Caribbean, England, Europe and the Middle East.

Lansky the man is a fascinating series of contradictions. His personal style is radically different from that of the cigar-smoking professional mobster portrayed by Hollywood. At 69, Lansky is gray-haired, 5 feet 4 inches tall, and thin. His suits are conservative in cut and his home, until 1969, was a modest three-bedroom ranch-style house in Hallandale, Fla., a suburb of Miami. He drives (rented) Chevrolets, walks the family dog and goes home every night to his wife.

In the summer of 1970 Lansky moved to Israel and settled down at a suite in the Dan Hotel in Tel Aviv. It so happened that about the same time Federal agents were investigating the skimming of millions of dollars of gambling profits from the Flamingo Hotel in Las Vegas from 1960 to 1967.

In March, 1971, Lansky was indicted by a Federal grand jury in Miami for conspiracy to engage in illegal gambling activity and to conceal and distribute proceeds from the Flamingo Hotel. Lansky, of course, declined to return to the United States to face the charges.

Acting like any good businessman with a social conscience, Lansky makes occasional contributions to charity, but he is careful to make them small, in keeping with his image. They are usually between $2,500 and $5,000 and are given to reputable institutions. Lansky had made at least two small contributions to Brandeis University at the behest of his friend Joseph Linsey, a Boston businessman with underworld links who is a large contributor to the university.

Even Lansky's tax returns, it is said, portray a retired investor living in moderate comfort off the return of a few prudent holdings. Lansky can justify every expenditure to the last cent, and he often doesn't take even the deductions to which he is entitled.

Another ploy used to justify his income came to light in November, 1969 when the Toronto Telegram told the story of a bemused Toronto stockbroker who, not knowing who Lansky was, agreed to arrange the purchase of $250 worth of mining claims in Canada for him. Four months later, Lansky had the broker handle the sale of the same mining claims to two New York brothers for $40,000.

Lansky subsequently claimed the $38,750 "profit" on the deal as a capital gain and paid tax on it to the dismay of the Internal Revenue Service. The IRS believe that Lansky himself had given the brothers the $40,000 to buy the claims and thereby legitimatize or "dry-clean" nearly $40,000 of mob profits. Because the deal had taken place in Canada, there was no legal action the IRS could take.

Lansky's main pleasures are simple. He likes to travel, to go for walks and to lie in the sun. Like many another self-made millionaire, Lansky adheres to a brand of politics
